10 Intensified End of Year Choice Unit

Overview: This year we have read many different books: 12 Angry Men, 1984, Things Fall Apart (or Purple Hibiscus), Julius Caesar, Persepolis, and a choice graphic novel. Our final book unit is focused on the teenage experience. You will choose a book from the list below. (This is NOT A FREE FOR ALL, so, yes, your book needs to come from the list below.)

Tasks:

- Read your chosen book. Annotate as needed to complete your chosen creative project (see below) and write your explanation paper (see below).
- Complete one of the small projects from the list below.
- Fill in the “Project explanation sheet,” where you will briefly explain your project and include 7-10 direct quotations from your book that inspired your project.
- Present your project to the class over two class periods. For the presentation, you will explain all parts of your project except anything that gives away the ending. NO SPOILERS! You do not have to prepare anything formal, as you will just share your project and explain its connection to your book. I expect presentations will be around 2-3 minutes each, and I will cut you off at 5 minutes to make sure everyone gets a chance to present. I will pass around a sign-up sheet so that you can choose your presentation dates.

Due dates: Either June 14 or June 16 depending on your sign up date.

Grade: 25 point class work grade and a 25 point homework grade.

Books Choices

1984 by George Orwell

- WHEN I WAS PUERTO RICAN by Esmeralda Santiago*

Jurassic Park (We didn't get to this but the librarians helped me pick all of these books out so we may as well read some of them!! Obviously, you are welcome to read Jurassic Park!)

Essential Question: What should the limitations of science be?

- Jackaby by William Ritter
- The Story of Owen: Dragon Slayer of Trondheim by E.K. Johnston
- A Creature of Moonlight by Rebecca Hahn
- The Left Hand of Darkness by Ursula LeGuin
- Bone Gap by Laura Ruby
- Midwinter Blood by Marcus Sedgwick
- The Scorpio Races by Maggie Stiefvater (comes recommended!)
- A Confusion of Princes by Garth Nix
- War of the Worlds by H.G. Wells

*If you wish to read a different book than the ones listed above, I am open to suggestions! You need to run your choices by me. The book should be well-written, an appropriate difficulty level, and related to one of the essential questions.

Name _____

A	“WOW” reaction upon seeing the project. Went above and beyond. Completed all parts of the task including reading the book, creating the project, and writing an explanation paper of the project. Project is obviously engaging and creative. Your peers were interested in it when you presented it. Project is neat, organized and shows a thorough understanding of chosen text. Student demonstrates that they processed the book by creating a project that demonstrates their own thinking. Met all number requirements. Demonstrates a thorough understanding of the character of the book beyond surface-level observations. What drives the character? What types of internal conflicts does he/she have? What makes them complex? Paper (1-1 ½ pages) briefly introduces your book and your project. Body paragraphs should focus on explaining your artistic decisions regarding the project AND includes 3-5 quotations that you used as inspiration for your project. Grammatically correct and organized in a clear fashion. Presented project to peers in a “short but sweet” presentation.
B	Project a bit underdeveloped. Lacking the creativity, detail, organization, and neatness of an A level project. May show a “surface level” understanding of the book. Explanation paper solid but may be a bit underdeveloped/a bit unorganized/ a few grammatical issues, etc.
C	Demonstrates a surface-level understanding of text and characters. Does not dig in and tackle complex ideas. Did not present out to class. Paper disorganized or only partially explains project. Chosen quotations not related to project.
D	No paper
E	Project incomplete or not submitted or completely off-task.
