My loving mother,

No wonder why people say that mothers are the most caring creatures on this planet. You are the person whom I love the most in this entire world and I think you deserve it, mom. You were, you are and you will always be my first priority.

You started taking care of me even before I was born, though dad left you after knowing you are pregnant and you are going to keep the baby. You fought against everyone and always protected me and tried to make my life easy.

You cannot even imagine how much you mean to me, how important you are to my life. If you were not there for me today since day 1, I am sure it would have been impossible for me to become the person I am today and I am so thankful to you for this. Being a single mother you have never let me feel the absence of a father, from taking me to soccer classes to picking me up from my school you were always beside me in every single step.

You made me understand that no matter what happens I need to stay strong and I should keep an aim to focus on. Even though you didn't buy anything for yourself for Christmas or Thanksgiving, you never missed giving me gifts on any occasion. You work so hard doing extra shifts just to make my life easy, just so that I don't have to struggle.

You have always said to me that I should keep focusing on the things I love and pursue a career out of it. You did all this hard work just because you wanted to see me successful and now I know the value of your scolding and groundings. As you always say, hard work pays off. You were and will always be my support system, my backbone. I love you very much mom.

Always yours,
