

Purpose Statement

Crow Line is a literary publisher that gives a voice to parts of America that are often left out of mainstream media, especially the South. There are countless stories across small towns, rural areas, and overlooked communities that deserve to be told. Crow Line publishes fiction, nonfiction, poetry, and photography that reflect the everyday lives and beauty of these places. Our goal is to create a space where honest and powerful storytelling can thrive.