

Tom Higgenson, is excited to return as Million Miler with his new single “Neon Lights” featuring Jordan Michelle, set to be released on November 14, 2022.

Tom Higgenson is releasing a new solo track under the pseudonym “Million Miler”. In 2019, the Grammy-nominated singer created a record label called Humans Were Here. Humans Were Here boasts five acts across a wide array of genres, including the 80s-inspired Million Miler.

Taking inspiration from the writing sessions that led to the Plain White T's 2019 record “Parallel Universe”, Million “Milly” Miller dives deep into nostalgic 80s sounds and tells a story with Higgenson's iconic synth-pop sound. In the last two years alone, Milly has released three successful singles and a cover of WHAM's famous song “Last Christmas”.

After releasing his debut album, “MILLY” in 2021, Tom Higgenson is excited to announce Milly's latest single, “Neon Lights.” This song is his first collaboration while recording as a solo artist. Jordan Michelle is a pop music artist, songwriter, and model who discovered her passion for music during the Covid-19 pandemic. Her latest single “It's my Birthday RIP Me” feat. SK8 and Tosh The Drummer is reminiscent of Avril Lavigne and Demi Lovato's pop-punk rhythm and Sound.

With Jordan's vocals and Milly's sound, the two artists' voices blend beautifully to create a modern-day 80s-inspired synth-pop-influenced dance party anthem. “Neon Lights” is guaranteed to be on your next playlist all night long.
