

The marine ran through the hallways frightened by the sounds and shocking terror what he had seen. He didn't know if his squad was dead or alive he had been separated, but managed to find himself with a couple of them only to see them picked off by THINGS. He has managed to find him self on the top of the ten story building. He looked down. he saw creatures attacking everything alive like parasites. He didn't want them to know he was there, so he used his rappelling tool to attach to the building across from the one he was currently at. He slid across the line as quickly as possible. He smashed through the window. He saw the parasite eating on a worker of that building. He took his rifle off safety and fired he managed to save the civilian. Then the marine asked him what was that thing? the worker said " i don't know thanks for the help though, lets see what my computer says maybe there is a news report". The marine replied "lets hurry id bet there are more in the building" . Hastily the marine and the worker rushed to the computer and discovered that outbreaks have been reported and no one can identify what the creature wants except to feed.

0700 hours 14/36/2552. Sergeant Thomson had come out of the spaceships command center to brief us on our mission. He turned on the screen, and we saw a large grey, and tan mass in the middle of New Mombasa. He told us that we are being sent in to investigate the object and identify this new enemy. He told us to grab all our gear and load up on the pelican. It would take us 4 hours to get to New Mombasa from the space frigate. the Sarge looked at me and said "Johnson if i don't make it guide these marines". he made it obvious i was second in command. I found my friend Macmillan from my unit and we went and got our rifles serviced and grabbed a box of ammunition and began filling our magazines with bullets. By the time we were loaded up the shock troopers were being deployed and we had 2 minutes to board the pelican, we ran through the frigate to the hanger. We found our assigned pelican 4A and got in. The hangers doors opened and the pelicans doors closed. I was scared for my life being second in command of my whole unit was a scary thought. If Thomson were to die id be in charge of all these marines. In just nearly 4 hours we will all face an unknown threat.

The pelican hovered just at the ground and we unloaded. There were 10 pelicans all with around twenty marines in each of them. whatever this thing is its serious. We all moved slowly towards the center of the city to investigate the large object. As we approached a tall building right next to the object hundreds of squid things attacked the marines. sergeant was the first to go i ordered everyone to fire the sound of the things crawling around was drowned out by gunfire and grenade explosions. We killed all of the ones that attacked. i ordered everyone into the building, but out of nowhere nearly a hundred more came out from the building across from us and killed nearly forty marines, But the marines were not dead. They turned into zombie like creatures and attacked us. the survivors were amazed but did not hesitate to kill the creatures that were once their fellow marines. after we survived the second attack i yelled, "get in the building before more attack". we flowed into the building only to find debris blocking all the entrances to the stairs, and elevators. We turned around to see the zombified creatures breaking the glass doors trying to get in. I ordered the marines to fire at the creatures. we survived the wave. there was now way to open the elevators doors or go up on the stairs. I ordered everyone to the building across the street. As we left the building hundreds of the creatures nearly wiped out the unit. Me and three other troops sprinted towards the building as we ran through the door. we turned around and locked it. The last people were the people i knew from this unit. Macmillan, Jenkins, and Jensen. we heard a noise and turned around. there were two shock troopers standing with their guns pointed at us. they asked us if we were infected. Jensen spoke up, and before he could explain the shock trooper blasted him with his pistol. before i could think i had shot the trooper in the head. blood splattered all over me, his helmet was torn with bullets. the other trooper dropped his gun and got on his knees and screamed. he was tired of losing his squad members. i tried talking to him, but as i walked over to him he had grabbed his pistol and committed suicide. we had no time we planted a charge onto the elevator door and blew it. we had gone through a panel in the roof of the elevator we climbed up a rope to the top floor. Jenkinson the last one didn't have enough time to go through the top floors door and the shaft collapsed in on him. the building was falling apart. Macmillan and i were 12 feet apart debris from the roof separated us. i turned around and i saw one of the zombified creatures i noticed the shock troopers armor. his dead body was infected with what is now a host for a hostile parasite. it charged at me and i shot it down with my pistol. i took some stairs too the roof, at the top i used my grappling tool to get to the other building across the street. i crashed through the window, and shot at a creature trying to infect a worker at the building. we looked at the computer and found out a few things. i gave the worker my pistol and we moved through the hallways. we heard a loud bang then we saw a door fly open. it was Macmillan. he found the grappling line and used it. we noticed the worker was gone. we heard a screech. we rushed around the corner to see the worker being transformed into one of those creatures. we fired at him until there was no movement. i picked up my pistol slid it into my holster and told Macmillan there was a hard chance of finding a landing zone. he understood. we moved into a large lobby and to our surprise the lobby was full of them. we either died or fought our way out. we tried to fight our way out.
