We provide personalized legal representation from our team of seasoned attorneys, striving to help clients receive just compensation.

Q: Can a settlement be achieved without going to court?

A: Yes, settling a case without court intervention is often possible and can be beneficial if pursued early under your attorney's advice. Nonetheless, initiating a lawsuit might be essential. The majority of claims with merit are generally resolved before trial. Preparing as though you will go to trial is advantageous as it can help achieve a more substantial settlement by fortifying your case.

Q: What is involved in a contingency fee agreement?

A: Personal injury lawyers frequently operate on a contingency fee basis for meritorious cases, meaning their fee depends on successfully winning compensation. This arrangement ensures that clients are not financially liable if the case is unsuccessful, as there are no upfront payments required. Lawyers are thereby incentivized to secure the maximum possible compensation, as their fee is a percentage of the awarded amount.

Q: What happens if my accident involves an uninsured driver?

A: Being hit by an uninsured driver in Pennsylvania can complicate your ability to secure compensation, but you still have legal options available. Your attorney can leverage your policy's underinsured or uninsured motorist provisions to file a claim, ensuring that you can seek necessary compensation even from an uninsured scenario.
