

Creating and Sharing Google Calendars with others

When looking at sharing Google Calendars it's important to keep privacy in mind, namely to ensure you are setting the correct sharing permissions and sharing with the correct people.

Open up Google Calendar

The screenshot shows the Google Calendar interface for the Newfound & Labrador English School District. The main calendar view is for June 2016, showing a grid of dates from 29th to 9th. A sidebar on the left lists 'My calendars' including 'Richard Snow' (selected), 'Admin PL', 'Apr 20 PL Class N...', 'Avalon West PS PL', 'Birthdays', 'Blended Learning ...', 'Collaboration and ...', 'Computer Lab Boo...', and 'Cowan Heights El...'. A context menu is open over the 'Richard Snow' calendar, listing options: 'Display only this Calendar', 'Calendar settings', 'View Trash', 'Create event on this calendar', 'Share this Calendar', and 'Edit notifications'. Below the menu is a color selection palette with a red square checked and an 'Edit color...' option. Annotations with arrows point from the text 'Options to use with your personal calendar' to the context menu, and from 'This is your personal calendar for NLESD Google' to the 'Richard Snow' calendar entry.

For your personal calendar, the default setting is to keep it private. That can be changed, with some restrictions.

If you have your calendar made public, you can share a link/url with others to access your calendar.

Although you can change the privacy settings on your personal calendar, good practice would indicate that it best to keep it private and to create a new calendar for sharing with others.

The screenshot shows the Google Calendar interface for the Newfoundland & Labrador English School District. A new calendar titled "Test for privacy per..." is being created. The interface includes a search bar, navigation buttons, and a list of calendars. A dropdown menu is open, showing options like "Display only this Calendar", "Hide this calendar from the list", "Calendar settings", "View Trash", "Create event on this calendar", "Share this Calendar", and "Edit notifications". A color selection grid is also visible. Annotations include:

- "Sharing options for new calendar" pointing to the sharing menu.
- "Locate the new calendar in the list of calendars" pointing to the "Test for privacy per..." entry in the "My calendars" list.

With a newly created calendar, the permissions are somewhat greater.

- Make this calendar public Learn more
- Share this calendar with everyone in the organization NLESD Online

 A dropdown menu for the second option is open, showing "See only free/busy (hide details)", "See all event details", and "See only free/busy (hide details)". The "Share with specific people" section has a "Person" field containing "richardsnow@nlesdonline.ca" and "Permission Settings" set to "See all event details".

Both these options will allow calendar owner to choose free/busy or event details

G-SUITE

With calendars there is your personal calendar which you may choose to keep private, and calendars you create, which can be shared with others. The access depends upon who you give access to and what exactly you wish them to do with your calendar.
