

Sigmund Freud's Facebook Page

Step 1: Read the mini-bio information on Sigmund Freud

Sigmund Freud is one of the most notable deceased psychologists. His Victorian era was a time of tremendous discovery and scientific advancement, but it is also known today as a time of sexual repression and male dominance. Men's and women's roles were clearly defined, with male superiority assumed and only male sexuality generally acknowledged (discreetly).

Long before entering the University of Vienna in 1873, young Freud showed signs of independence and brilliance. He so loved reading plays, poetry, and philosophy that he once ran up a bookstore debt beyond his means. As a teen he often took his evening meal in his tiny bedroom in order to lose no time from his studies.

After medical school he set up a private practice specializing in nervous disorders. Before long, however, he faced patients whose disorders made no neurological sense. For example, a patient might have lost all feeling in a hand--yet there is no sensory nerve that, if damaged, would numb the entire hand and nothing else. His search for causes of disorders set his mind running, looking for human self-understanding.

Step 2: Develop a Facebook Page for Sigmund Freud

- On the facebook page, you must have Freud have a conversation with another psychologist.
- Have Freud explain the following terms on the facebook page in the conversation section, have him "talking" to another psychologist. MAKE SURE TO HIGHLIGHT THE TERMS
 - Free association
 - Psychoanalysis
 - Unconscious
- Blank Facebook Page Link, only do the first two pages
 - If for whatever reason the link doesn't work, you can go to google, type PDF Blank Facebook template and use any of those