

Essay layout

Your essay should include the following sections:

Section heading	What to include
Introduction	Give your reader a clear idea of what your essay will cover
Background and context	Describe the importance of the chosen theme, the magnitude of the problem, and how is it relevant to the Indonesian context
Analysis and potential solutions	Examine existing public health programmes, describe the strength and limitations of the existing problem in comparison to other new/existing potential solutions being implemented somewhere else
Enablers and barriers to the proposed solutions	Critically evaluate and highlight factors that may enable or pose a barrier to the implementation of the proposed solutions
Conclusion and future recommendations	Draw conclusions and formulate a set of recommendations for public health policy and future research
References (not included in word count)	Cite all of your sources using the Vancouver referencing style

Presentation requirements

- Use a minimum of 12 point font, with double spacing and at least 2cm page margins
- Include a statement of word count
- Submit your report as a Microsoft word

Sources and referencing

You are expected to cite from a range of sources, which may include:

- Government reports and publications, non-government reports, and other similar official materials
- Peer-reviewed scientific literature that you have sourced for yourself through literature and database searches (e.g. scientific journal articles, papers and books)

You must cite all of your sources using the Vancouver referencing style.

A maximum of one Table and one panel of figures that are directly relevant to your text may be included (these will be excluded from the word counts). All tables or figures should be accompanied by a caption describing its content and citing its source.
