Character Application

*I see trees of green
Red roses too
I see them bloom
For me and you
And I think to myself
What a wonderful world*

*I see skies of blue
And clouds of white
The bright blessed day
The dark sacred night
And I think to myself
What a wonderful world*

Personality

- A soft-hearted, whimsical filled cat with sincere intentions and overflowing with compassion. She is very passionate about doing the right thing and being considerate about everyone's feelings in a situation. Quite well-natured and easy-going, she is easy to forgive if she senses true repentance from wrongdoers. She however is not a pushover and will ordain punishment as she sees fit to those that question her authority, act out of line or cause harm.
- She always speaks cordially and kindly, and has an eye for caring for the needs of her colonymates. She checks up on them often and finds it important to have a strong personal relationship with everyone. It would take a lot to make her angry, as she seems to have infinite patience.
- The thing that hinders Vision the most is how high her head is in the clouds. She has difficulty with practicality and estimating the doability of her plans and projects, much to the ire of colonymates who want to get stuff done at a reasonable time. When faced with conflict she has the confidence to stand her ground but lacks the charisma to argue her side, words often fail her when she needs them most.
- She holds those close to her to sometimes a coddling point out of attachment, for fear of them leaving (like her family before her).

History

Parents

- Flore was a house cat who received less than ideal care from her humans. She was an impulse buy and the family that owned her did not do their research on proper cat care, so they quickly came to loathe the responsibilities that came with introducing a new family member. They placed her in a cage on their porch for most of the day to keep her from scratching furniture. Flore was miserable until the day a tom (Laszlo) came across her and with cunning ingenuity unlocked the clasp on the door's lock with his deft paws, freeing her. He promised her the life of her dreams in exchange for her hand. Enamored by her savior, Flore agreed to follow him on his travels.
- Living with Laszlo was not as glamorous as she thought it would be. The spark that seemed to have brought them together had fizzled out, leaving them as simple partners in living, but not lovers. On the day she gave birth to his kittens, Laszlo did not return to the den. Flore was left alone to raise the three (and she mourned a fourth one that died shortly after birth).

The Docks

- The old warehouse by the docks served the home that Vision (at the time named Clover) and her siblings were raised for their whole childhood. Flore taught them to value kindness and hospitality above all things, and they afforded this to all travelers passing through. Vision was close with her sibling Faith for their eerie similarities in personalities: empathetic and considerate, except Faith was the more withdrawn of the two. Lullaby was a grump hiding a heart of gold, who longed for a life beyond the forests. Hearing stories of the human towns, he bid his family farewell once he grew up and left for them. It was around this time that Vision realized herself to be a molly and came out to her remaining family, retaining the name Clover. Months later, Faith was courted by a nomad that she accepted the suit of, and left for a life in a promised place for her with him. The goodbye between her, Vision and her mother was teary and bittersweet. Soon it was just Vision and her mother left in the old warehouse. Flore, having grown old and fragile, passed away in the night while Vision was perched on a windowsill, staring at the stars and wondering where her siblings were now in life.

The Vision

- Now she was the sole resident of the dock warehouse. Her motivation to keep going with her days was low, and she struggled to care for herself. This continued for a while, until, being known among the nomads for her vivid and fantastical dreams, one night she was filled with a drive to bring the feelings and sensations inside of her to an audience. She exclaimed she had been touched by The Muse, an intangible figure which resided in everyone and need only be brought out through creativity and art. Because of her friendliness and charisma she gathered friends and followers to journey away to a new home and form a colony. Eventually they found unclaimed forest land and settled there, marking the beginning of Muse Colony. As part of her claim to power, she renamed herself Vision.
