Title IX

In this course, the topic of sex (including sexual misconduct/sexual violence) may emerge either purposefully or inadvertently in readings, films, class discussions or other class materials. While making personal connections with these topics can be a meaningful and important endeavor, we recognize that such topics may be particularly upsetting for some. As such we encourage all students to seek the support they need. You are welcome to utilize the resources available to you from Sac State’s Title IX website.

In addition, please be aware of the following policy regarding confidentiality and disclosures of incidents of sexual misconduct/sexual violence:

As your instructor, one of my responsibilities is to help maintain a safe learning environment on our campus. In the event that you choose to write, speak or otherwise disclose information about having experienced sexual misconduct/sexual violence, including rape, sexual assault, sexual battery, dating violence, domestic violence, or stalking and specify that this violence occurred while you or the perpetrator were a Sac State student, federal and state laws require that I, in my capacity as a “responsible employee,” must notify Sac State’s Title IX Coordinator. The Title IX Coordinator will contact you to inform you of your rights and options and connect you with support resources, including possibilities for holding accountable the person who harmed you. Please be advised that you will not be forced to share information and your level of involvement will be your choice.

Sac State's Title IX Coordinator is Skip Bishop (Director of Equal Opportunity, Del Norte Hall 2005). You may contact him at william.bishop@csus.edu, 916-278-5770.

If you do not want the Title IX Coordinator notified, instead of disclosing the experience to me, you can speak confidentially by contacting the following confidential resources³:

PARTICIPATION

Participation points comprise 200 points total (or 20% of your overall course grade). Participation includes, but is not limited to: attendance, participation in class and online discussions, Socratic activities, and group work activities.

Respect for One Another

In order to help maintain a successful and flourishing learning environment, I ask that you follow some of the following guidelines:

1. Please be on time to class, and pay attention as you would in any other in-person class.
2. Be respectful to the instructor and classmates, in both your speaking and your listening.
3. Avoid distractions and multitasking (for example, don't be preoccupied with your phone).
4. Actively participate by asking questions or responding to questions. Try not to interrupt, though (raise your hand instead).

Do recognize some of our discussion topics are very important and personal subject matters. While passion for the subject is great, please do not confuse that with emotional/irrational outbursts. Any comments/criticisms not made in the interest of academic pursuit are not tolerated. Please also be aware of the University's Honor Code.

Electronics in the Classroom

Unless your device is an e-reader tablet designed specifically for distraction-free note-taking (such as reMarkable, Boox, Supernote, etc), all electronic devices (phones, computers, music players, etc.) must be turned off or put on "silent" mode. Occasionally we may have activities (such as Socratic) that will involve the use of the web. In those instances I will allow you to take your devices out. In all other instances, please do not be tethered to them during class time.

You may be interested in reading this study, published in Psychological Science, which contends that longhand note-taking is more effective than laptop note-taking (Saclink login is required): pss.sagepub.com.proxy.lib.csus.edu/content/25/6/1159.full

Please be aware that if you persistently fail to comply with my electronics policy, you will have participation points deducted from your overall scores.

Socrative

Socrative is a free online application used to help facilitate class participation and discussion. Occasionally I may use this app to take in-class polls, encourage participation, and assign fishbowl peer reviews. You may access Socrative from a browser (www.socrative.com) or from an app store. Please note that Socrative polls are required, and completion of these polls will count toward your participation scores.

To log in, please click on the login button, and select “Student Login.” Enter the room name (which I will give in class), and then your full name. Please provide your last name first.

Group Work

This course will occasionally utilize in-class discussion groups to help facilitate the learning environment. Group work activities can vary from section to section, and will usually require that the group submit some form of written work.

Please note that group work participation is also required, and will be counted towards your participation scores.

Absence Policy

If you are unable to attend our class sessions, please let me know as soon as possible. I may still mark you as “absent” in the course, however. I generally require some form of documentation giving evidence for absences (such as doctor’s notes, funeral notifications, flight reservations, etc.). Most of the time, though, these are taken on a case-by-case basis.

Keep in mind that you are still responsible for the information that you missed, even if you are absent from class. For example, if there is a Socrative activity, group work activity, or presentation that takes place during your absence, you will still have points deducted if you are not present to complete the activity. You are welcome to contact me if you are interested in completing makeup work; some assignments, however (such as Fishbowl activities) may be ineligible for makeup.

READING ASSIGNMENTS

Reading assignments are found on the calendar schedule at the very end of this Syllabus. Readings may be found either in your assigned textbook or on Canvas. You should be reading the corresponding material for homework while it is being covered in class lecture and class discussion.

You may notice that these readings can be a little hard and deep. Don’t be surprised if it takes more than one reading to really understand the material. I would advise you to join regular study groups – they can help!

QUIZZES

Quizzes comprise a total of 200 points, or up to 20% of your overall course grade. There will be a total of 10 quizzes, worth 20 points each.

Reading Quizzes will be given online in Canvas, and are generally due on a weekly basis. They will cover all of the readings assigned in the particular section of the course. However, more questions will be dedicated to the material that is covered in class. Do note that these readings can be difficult, and may require several reading attempts in order to full understand the content. Please be sure to schedule your time accordingly.

Note that completion of all quizzes and exams will require the Respondus Lockdown Browser. You may look at the textbook and any written notes in front of you to complete the quizzes and exams, but you are not allowed to access any other window while you complete these assignments. Please be prepared.

Make-up quizzes are not allowed unless you are able to provide evidence for: 1) death in the family (please provide funeral program, obituary news, etc.); 2) illness or injury of yourself or an immediate family member, such as your child or spouse (please provide a doctor's note); 3) U.S. military service (please provide notice); or 4) religious and/or cultural holiday.

A schedule of the readings and their corresponding quizzes are found in the Calendar Schedule, found at the end of this Syllabus.

FISHBOWL DEBATE/PRESENTATION

The fishbowl assignment is a presentation/debate that you will participate in with a group of classmates. Fishbowls will comprise a total of 100 points, or 10% of the overall course grade.

I will talk more about the format of a fishbowl in our in person class meetings. As a brief breakdown, you will be asked to choose a "side" of a particular debate (you are welcome to choose a side that you do not agree with, just to play the devil's advocate position). During the debate, your group will be given a set amount of time to present your position, and well as an opportunity to rebut/respond to the opposing position. After some time, we will be able to have an open discussion between the two sides, and then one with the rest of the class.

The Fishbowl will come in three parts: Presentation (50 points), Questions (20 points), and Peer Reviews (30 points). The presentation portion will be relevant for the individuals presenting during that particular day; but the questions and peer reviews will be relevant for all those listening to the presentation/debate.

Signups for fishbowl presentation topics will be made available to you in the People section of Canvas. Please check the calendar for the topics and presentation dates (see Weeks 9-15).

More information on the Fishbowls will be provided for you in the relevant Assignment section in Canvas.

PAPER ASSIGNMENTS & OTHER RELATED NOTIFICATIONS

You will have one in-class writing assessment due this semester. The paper will coincide with your Midterm Exam, and will be a moral theory application paper. This assignment will involve answering a specific set of questions related to a moral theory. Further details will be made available to you in Canvas. In the meantime, please pay attention to the following policies and guidelines. Though your writing assessment will take place in-class, I will still post my no-AI-use policy below, in case it is relevant for any work you submit.

Academic Honesty

You are responsible for knowing the policies and procedures regarding academic honesty, found in the University Policy Manual. In addition, you may be interested in utilizing the Academic Honesty Tutorial. Plagiarism at Sac State includes, but is not limited to:

1. The act of incorporating into one's own work the ideas, words, sentences, paragraphs, or parts thereof, or the specific substance of another's work without giving appropriate credit and thereby representing the product as entirely one's own. Examples include not only word-for-word copying, but also the "mosaic" (i.e., interspersing a few of one's own words while, in essence, copying another's work), the paraphrase (i.e., rewriting another's work while still using the other's fundamental idea or theory); fabrication (i.e., inventing or counterfeiting sources), ghost-writing (i.e., submitting another's work as one's own) and failure to include quotation marks on material that is otherwise acknowledged; and
2. Representing as one's own another's artistic or scholarly works such as musical compositions, computer programs, photographs, paintings, drawing, sculptures, or similar works.

In addition to this, I do have a no-AI-use policy. Do not utilize, cite, or quote any AI source in assignments, even if you were to give appropriate credit and citation (note that this includes, but is not limited to, chatbots such as ChatGPT, paraphrasing tools such as Quillbot, and grammar tools such as Grammarly). In this course you are not allowed to use AI text generators or tools to assist you in any way on your assignments. Improper use of AI technology can be grounds for a charge of plagiarism or other academic misconduct, leading to academic penalties (like failing a course) and administrative penalties, regardless of when the academic misconduct is discovered.

I do believe that there is great benefit to you in doing the hard work yourself and struggling through the daily grind. You may be interested in reading the following article from MIT. Preliminary studies reveal that people who rely on LLMs like ChatGPT have weaker brain function than those who don't: <https://www.media.mit.edu/projects/your-brain-on-chatgpt/overview/>.

Citing Sources

It is very important that you properly cite sources. The most important thing I look for is that you are giving credit to the authors and providing page numbers for all your quotes and paraphrases. Failure to provide correct citations will be given point penalties and may be counted as "plagiarized."

Late Work Policy

Late assignments will lose 0.5 points for each hour that it is late. If you come up to me during class and ask, "Can I submit it late?" my answer will be "Yes. But your paper will be considered late." The circumstances that may excuse a late assignment include: 1) Death in the family; 2) Debilitating illness or injury of yourself or an immediate family member, such as your child or spouse; 3) U.S. military service; or 4) Religious or cultural holiday. Documentation must be provided in order to demonstrate your reasons for requesting an excuse. Computer problems are not legitimate excuses. Be sure back up your work.

EXAMS

You will have two exams in this course – a Midterm, and a Final Exam. Each exam will comprise 20% of your total grade (200 points). Together, the exams will comprise 40% of your grade (400 points). The Midterm will assess material covered between Weeks 1-7 (Moral Theories), and the Final Exam will assess material covered between Weeks 9-15 (Moral Issues). Please bring a bigger (8.5 x 11) Blue Book or Green Book to class on the day of your exam.

Exams will generally follow the following pattern: 1) Identification (multiple choice, fill-in-the-blanks, short answer, etc.); and 2) Definitions (defining/explaining significant terms and concepts).

CALENDAR SCHEDULE

Please see the attached calendar below for a tentative schedule of our course. Note that the assigned (required) readings may be accessed either in Canvas or via your textbook. However, they are subject to change due to any unforeseen circumstances. In addition, please keep in mind that the list of due dates is not exhaustive of all of your assignments. You may have in-class group activities, Socrative polls, or other participation activities to complete.

If there are changes, I'll let you know, either in class or on Canvas!
