Method of Testing

ASTM Method C 738-94, Standard Test Method for Lead and Cadmium Extracted from Glazed Ceramic Surfaces as required by FDA Guideline 7117.06 and 7117.07 for analysis of food containers and AOAC Method 973.32 Inductively Coupled Plasma with Atomic Emission Spectrometric Determination of Cadmium and Lead Extracted from Ceramic Foodware.

Date & Place of Manufacture

This certificate applies to all products made from 2009 to present. All Heath dinnerware is crafted in our facility located in Sausalito, CA, USA. Heath Ceramics changed ownership through an asset purchase in August of 2003. Due diligence (based on independent lab testing) was done to ensure products produced between September of 2003 and January 2009 were in compliance with current FDA and California standards. To the best of the current company's knowledge, all prior Heath Ceramics dinnerware was produced with compliance to FDA and California standards of the time, though we have no complete records for dinnerware produced by the previous company manufacturing Heath Ceramics products.
