Michael Sampey - Filmmaker

Michael Sampey is a highly skilled documentary filmmaker hailing from Hobart, Tasmania, with a passion for shedding light on pressing food and environmental issues. With over a decade of experience in the field, Michael has dedicated himself to creating impactful films that provoke thought and inspire action.

With a career spanning more than 40 years, Michael's expertise in sound recording and filmmaking is extensive. He has worked on projects both internationally and for renowned institutions such as the BBC in London and the ABC Tasmania. This wealth of experience has honed his ability to craft compelling narratives that resonate with audiences worldwide.

One of Michael's most notable achievements is his documentary titled "Heart of the Island." This groundbreaking film delved deep into the cultural, biodiversity, and community impacts of fish farms around Flinders Island. Through meticulous research and powerful storytelling, Michael exposed the potential ecological disaster posed by these operations. As a result of the film's impact, a proposed project was withdrawn, effectively averting a catastrophe and preserving the delicate balance of the area's ecosystem.

Michael's dedication to his craft and his unwavering commitment to addressing environmental issues make him a formidable force in the world of documentary filmmaking. His work serves as a catalyst for positive change, inspiring audiences to become more conscious stewards of the planet.

MEDIA ENQUIRIES

For enquiries, including interview requests / assets, contact Curious PR, London:
Sophie Wesley: SophieW@CuriousPR.com T: 020 3397 9111 or M +44 (0)7880 290702 or Hannah Kapff: Hannah@CuriousPR.com T: 020 3397 9111 or M +44 (0)7747 794306
CuriousPR.com | Instagram: CuriousPR | Twitter: Curious_PR | FB: Curious PR | LinkedIn: Curious-PR