

Seldom A Mistake

So you pause and you think
And you weigh up the odds
Just to be sure
To never make a mistake.

Whichever way I chose
It works against me both ways
How can I judge
Without risking mistakes?

Always trying to take care
You find you should have dared
But when you take a chance
It turns out a mistake.

Always playing it safe
I should have forced the hand
And the only time I push
A crushing final mistake.