

Escoria

Trinidad Salinas

Seven Sisters

Italy

Powers:

Striker 7, Brute 6, Breaker 2

Escoria has increased strength and is as durable as thick, heavy stone. Her main power, however, is her striker ability. When any single object, organic or inorganic, surrounds or becomes surrounded by a part of her body, the part of her body in question becomes intensely radioactive. This radiation only affects the object that is triggering the reaction. If impaled through a vital organ other than the brain, a regular human would die from radiation poisoning before blood loss.

Escoria is immune to the damaging effects of all harmful radiation and highly resistant to heat. She can lift a small car with some effort, and stab her right arm through four inches of steel at most.

Appearance and Personality:

Escoria is a case 53 with only vaguely humanoid appearance, apparently made of a dark red and brown rock with a body temperature of about 82 C (180 F). She stands 8 feet 2 inches tall, but is always hunched over to about 6' 7". Escoria's torso is extremely large, and she has long, arms that she often uses to aid walking and short, thick legs that end in flat, round stumps. Escoria's left arm ends in a clawed hand. Her right arm ends in a single large, jagged spike. The tip of this spike is below the wrist of her left arm, so it is unclear whether this asymmetry is part of her mutation or due to some later injury.

In truth, the asymmetry is an injury, though not one sustained in combat. Asteria forced Escoria to shear her hand off and sharpen it to a point, claiming it would make her "more effective in combat."
