[Brands]

"I wonder why the marks are so similar." - Young Celica

"It's because they're special. They prove that the two of us belong together. Always. That is, if you're not already tired of a clod like me making you laugh." - Young Alm

"Of course not!"

[Veteran Knight]

"What? Mycen?! What are you doing in a backwater wasteland like— ...Ah. But I think I know." - Slayde

"....." - Mycen

"Now, this...this is indeed good fortune. We never finished what we started in the flames that night, old man. I have much to repay you for."

[Farewell]

"I want to make a new promise. One day, when I'm older and stronger, I'm going to find you. It doesn't matter where the world hides you or how long it takes. I promise to find you. So please...don't forget me, okay?" - Young Alm

[Zofia in Hand]

"It seems Desaix sold Zofia to the Rigelian Empire along with his soul. ... Upon Lima's death, the chancellor and the Rigelian army seized Zofia Castle and began to visit unspeakable injustices upon the king's people." - Lukas

[Thinking of Celica]

"Celica, are you the one who's been calling me? I know that you're out there... I just don't know where. But I can feel it. I hope this journey will bring us together again..." - Alm

[Rescuing Silque]

"Some brigands kidnapped you and took you here. Don't worry, they're gone. We dealt with them before they could do you any harm." - Alm

"I see. Thank you, sir. ... I am Silque. I hail from a priory far to the east, on the island of Novis." - Silque

[Zofia's Crisis]

"Where am I...? That's Zofia Castle! This is our kingdom? What happened here? Is the Deliverance too late?!" - Alm

[Bossy Lady]

"You there! The boy will offer a lady his hand." - Clair

"Who, me? ...Oh, uh, sorry." - Alm

"Very good. I say, it DOES feel good to move about again! I thought I might never emerge from that disgusting pigsty." - Clair

[Fernand's Departure]

"I've heard enough of this idiocy! I only joined this damned army because YOU were leading it! And now you want me to take orders from some wretched farmchild?" - Fernand

"This is no mere farmchild, Fernand! He has Sir Mycen's blood!" - Clive

[Champion of Zofia]

"Burn this memory into your heart, boy. These are the people whose burdens you will carry the rest of the way. Remember what lies upon your shoulders." - Mycen

[Employment]

"You're Saber, yes?" - Celica

"Yep. Who're you, girl?" - Saber

"My name is Celica. The people here speak quite highly of your skill with a blade. I'd like to enlist your services as a protector..."

[Faraway Island]

"Alm... Where are you right now? And what are you doing? ... You've left your home behind, haven't you? I want to see you so badly. There's so much I need to ask. Perhaps Mila will cause our paths to cross on this journey..." - Celica

[Repayment]

"Wait, you two are comin'?" - Valbar

"Well, obviously. I go where you go—that's the deal. And I don't care who doesn't like it." - Leon

"And I just go wherever the money flows like wine!" - Kamui

"You jokers are a couple of real class acts."

[Masked Knight]

"Begone, you base filth. You are unfit to lay hand or eye upon the young woman." - Masked Knight

"Wh-who are you?!" - Cantor

"My name is a greater boon than you deserve. If you would keep your heads, you must depart this place at once."

[Quarrel]

"Alm and Celica's heartfelt reunion was dashed by heated words, and once again, the two were parted. ... And while they both sought to attain peace in their own way, their chances of finding it together seemed to grow increasingly slim." - Narrator

[Landslides]

"Look out! The cliff is crumbling!" - Saber

"Oh, you have to be joking! As if anything else could have gone wrong on this blasted adventure!" - Boey

"Everyone, be careful!" - Celica

"Celica?! No! Don't come any closer!"

[Princess's Hug]

"Are you unhurt?" - Masked Knight

"It appears I am...thanks to you. I owe you an apology." - Celica

"Do not apologize. But stop allowing petty emotion to cloud your judgment. Your choices steer the fates of more than just yourself."

[Black Knight]

"As I live and breathe... The Deliverance! Well, this is simply delightful." - Berkut

"Huh?! Fernand! And who's this?" - Alm

"My name is Berkut. I am nephew to His Majesty Emperor Rudolf."

[Mathilda in Prison]

"Has madness taken you?! ... Don't you care about Zofia?" - Mathilda

"Zofia? You mean the proud kingdom whose riches fell to wild and ignorant savages? Zofia is dead to me. I have buried her and will not look back." - Fernand

[Royal Sword]

"Sometimes I don't get you, Tobin. This thing's light as a feather. Was this all some kind of jape? Who put you up to this?" - Alm

"But...but it wasn't a jape! Zero japes! I thought my arms would snap just trying to lift it!" - Tobin

"Hmm. But that means..."

[Puppet Delthea]

"ENEMIES OF TATARRAH...MUST...DIE." - Delthea

[Mother Liprica]

"Mother..." - Celica

"I am so very sorry, Princess Anthiese. But I would implore you to spare your tears. Lady Liprica thought only of your health and happiness until her final breath." - Irma

[Sisters Reunited]

"Palla! Catria!" - Est

"Est! Oh, I'm so glad you're safe! Do you have any idea how much worry you've caused us?" - Palla

"I'm sorry, Palla, but I... I... I was so scaaaared! Catria!"

"Wha—? Hey! Stop this at once, Est!" - Catria

[Pledge of Alliance]

"Hee hee. Celica is just fine, you two. Though from this day on, I will no longer conceal my identity. I expect that will bring even more hardship than we've faced till now. But I hope I can still count on you all."
- Celica

[Sluice Gate]

"Anthiese... Did a member of the royal family really open the gate? Celica, are you..." - Alm

[Malevolent Force]

"So this is Duma's power? It's...it's hideous..." - Berkut

"You did this?!" - Alm

"You've no need to know any more. You'll die here with the rest."

"Berkut, wait! WAIT! ...Rragh! I won't let it end here. Not before I see you again, Celica!"

[Nuibaba's Conspiracy]

"All will be mine soon enough. I'll not let the likes of Jedah claim a bearer of the Brand. The power of such a soul could grant me life eternal! Eee hee... Eeeeeee hee hee hee!" - Nuibaba

[Savior of Valentia]

"Some time ago, Emperor Rudolf gave me what I thought was odd advice. He said that if I met a man with a mark on his left hand, I was to follow him. 'For that man is chosen,' he said. 'He shall save all of Rigel. And with it, all of Valentia.'" - Zeke

[True Face]

"I was so worried about you, I decided to follow and make sure you were safe. I never wanted to lie to you, but... Well, you weren't the only one in hiding." - Conrad

"Heh. So that's why you wore the mask?" - Celica

"Well, it IS rather dashing, isn't it?"

[Celica's Message]

"I mean, sure, I was sad you didn't seem to see my side of things. But I'd never get mad at you." - Alm

"Why not?" - Celica

"...Why not? You sure do like putting me on the spot. Didn't we have a similar conversation years ago?"

[Jedah's Phantom]

"You're the one holding Mila!" -Celica

"Oh, indeed I am! However, if you wish for her release, I propose a bargain. ... Mila is well and good, but what I truly desire...is you. If you will offer up your soul to Lord Duma, I will cede Mila." - Jedah

[Albein]

"Take the Divine Falchion that... sealed Mila's strength... .. Use the blade... .. Please, my son... You must..." - Rudolf

"No, wait! Emperor Rudolf! Were you truly my father? Then I've just... Oh, gods... What have I done? Aah... AAAAAAUGH!" - Alm

[Alm's Decision]

"Alm had taken his father's life, and that sadness would stay with him always. ... Valentia lay yet in the grip of Duma — the wicked god, the War Father — as well as Alm's dear Celica, who would become Duma's willing servant..." - Narrator

[Fernand's Advice]

"Haah...ha ha... Strange, isn't it...? ..." - Fernand

"Not in the least. I still count myself among your friends." - Clive

"You always were...too nice for your own good. Always so...quick to pardon me... Along the way, I...I forgot how to ask for forgiveness..."

[Sealed Mila]

"That statue... Mila? Is that really the Earth Mother?" - Alm

"But how could the goddess have been turned to stone? Only the sacred blade can seal a divine dragon's power. ...Look there. The blade protruding from her forehead must be Falchion." - Lukas

[Across the Grate]

"That's not... Celica, none of what's happened is your fault. You're not to blame for any of it!" - Alm

"...I'm sorry. I wish it could have been different. I always have. I wish I could have gone home to the village and lived there with you." - Celica

[My Emperor]

"Even without crown or throne or castle... You were ever my emperor. A just, right, and noble man..." - Rinea

"Rinea..." - Berkut

"You were born to lead... This just wasn't your empire. So come with me now. Let us find our empire together. If you'll still take me for your empress?"

[Entrusted Hope]

"Children of fate... You have overcome much to reach me here, and I thank you both. You have shown me the strength possessed by mankind. ... I entrust Falchion to your care. I pray you will use it to free my brother from the depths of his pain." - Mila

[The Continent's Joy]

"Only one truth is clear: War will come again ... raging until the very earth itself lies scorched and bare of life. For whatever madness lay in the hearts of gods... a darkness deeper still beats wild in the hearts of man..." - Narrator

[Mila Tree]

"But they're at peace now, you know? Asleep. ... Together." - Alm

"Yes. They'll look down over this new Valentia forever from their mountaintop graves. ... They say that where divine dragons sleep, sacred trees take root and grow." - Celica

[Main Story Quotes]

Prologue:

"Say, Alm? Why are you so nice to me?" - Young Celica

"...Why? Do I need a reason?" - Young Alm

"Seize her!" - Slayde

"No... L-let me go!" - Young Celica

"Get your hands off her!" - Young Alm

(loud thud)

"Ooof!" - Slayde

"Alm, you did NOT just punch a knight!" - Young Gray

"Ha ha! It's all in the wrist." - Young Tobin

"You wish. We only survived because we did exactly as Sir Mycen commanded." - Young Kliff

"Oh yeah? Does that mean Sir Mycen commanded you to sob like a baby?"

"I won't let you do this to her! She needs me!" - Young Alm

"You? A foolish boy who won't listen to reason? Celica has proven she has the strength to make hard choices. Yet what of you?" - Mycen

"Please... Just don't take her away..."

"The days I spent here with you and Alm were wonderful. The experiences I had and the friends I made all mean the world to me. You don't have to be my knight in shining armor, Sir Mycen—you just have to promise to always be my grandpapa." - Young Celica

Act I:

"Suppose you do set forth with your sword and your wits. So what?" - Mycen

"....." - Alm

"Will the grand story of your life be how you met the end of a brigand's axe? Before you dream of changing the world, learn your damned place in it."

"Lukas, wait!" - Alm

"Alm? What is it?" - Lukas

"I'll go. I'll join the Deliverance."

"You?"

"Alm, what the hell?! You can't do that! ...Wait. CAN he do that?" - Tobin

"I've seen a lot of cake-taking in my day, but this REALLY takes the cake!" - Gray

"But... maybe all of you could come with me?" - Alm

"Er, what?" - Faye

"Splendid idea. Maybe we could all get impaled on the same lance." - Kliff

"I'm just saying we could do it together. ...Fighting, I mean. Not the lance." - Alm

"Oh, sod it all. I'm not as bright as I'd like to think I am, so, uh...count me in!" - Gray

"Gray! Not you too?!" - Tobin

"Me too, Tobi-poo. It's better than waiting for Rigel to reach Ram and kill-slash-enslave us. Might as well bring the fight to them."

"Listen, everyone, try not to be amazed when I show Alm up on the battlefield." - Tobin

"You know they don't pay extra for that, right, moneybags?" - Gray

"You know, I guess I don't mind going along. The Deliverance is fighting all across Zofia, right? Well, I've always wanted to see the world, and now's my chance. ...All I have to do is not get killed. Easy, right?" - Kliff

"I'm coming too! I'm staying with you no matter what! End! Of! Discussion!" - Faye

"I HAVE to go. Not just to prove him as a teacher, but to prove myself to me." - Alm

"... You've always wanted to put Ram behind you, right? This is your big chance! Your first adventure writ large! We'll call it Alm's Epoch! Or maybe... The Tale of Gray! ...Plus That One Guy." - Gray

"In my travels, I have witnessed the sorry state of our kingdom. With no goddess to bless them and no king to rule, most Zofians are at a loss. And I, for one, refuse to stand by and watch them suffer. I would ask for permission to accompany you on your quest." - Silque

"Clair is a GIRL. And if we save a GIRL... Eh? You follow?" - Gray

"I can't believe you're the same man who mocks the fact that I fight for gold." - Tobin

"Yes, because it's gold. This is GIRLS. Don't you like girls?"

"I mean, I admit they're...not bad?"

"The peasant must forgive his lady for this gauche breach of etiquette." - Clair

"It's alright. The peasant—whose name is Alm—will get over it." - Alm

"Woof! She's going to be a handful." - Tobin

"Yeah, I uh... cough That's what I'm hoping." - Gray

"You don't have to lower yourself for a miserable human being like that." - Gray

"Oh my..." - Clair

"Oh, great. Here we go..." - Tobin

"What? I have no idea what you're talkin' about." - Gray

"That's enough, Python. There's no call to play at trickery with our new recruits." - Lukas

"Ha ha ha! Lukas, you ginger stud. You still draw breath. I was worried Desaix's dogs might have punched your ticket to the boneyard." - Python

"It gladdens me to see you safe! I couldn't bear to lose you on top of everything else we have sacrificed." - Clive

"You look so pale, Clive. Forgive me. You must have been worried sick. But I'm all right. Alm and the others arrived before true ill could befall me." - Clair

"Sir Clive captains the Knights of Zofia! He's the finest knight in all the realm! Seriously, man. Read a book." - Gray

"Okay, okay. ... But then why is the 'finest knight in all the realm' LOSING the war?" - Tobin

"Well, he's obviously... I mean, he... Shut up, Tobin."

"If it's within my power, I'll do it. Please, go on." - Alm

"Then I shall state it plain. I would like you to become the new leader of the Deliverance." - Clive

"WHAAAT?!"

"Please, Alm. For me. For all of us. My brother tries to hide it, but I know the anxiety takes a toll on him. You can relieve him of at least a portion of that burden." - Clair

"I want to, but... All right. If you think me worthy, then I won't let you down." - Alm

"I'll rip that traitorous tongue from your throat!" - Fernand

"Then you'll finally have the truth in your grasp!" - Lukas

"You can say whatever nasty things about me you like. I'll get over it. But Lukas deserves your respect." - Alm

"I beg your pardon? Do I look like a man who listens to the opinions of peasants?" - Fernand

"Then you can listen to me, because I happen to agree with him." - Clair

"We were supposed to be a band of noble knights. ... I would rather die than kneel to some whelp who was birthed in the hay. Today we part ways for good and all. I am finished with you and your 'Deliverance.' Farewell." - Fernand

"Fernand's hatred for commoners is understandable. The peasants living on his lands were starving 'cause of the drought. They blamed Fernand for not providing for them and stormed his manor. His family died during the attack. ...Truly, a terrible thing." - Deliverance NPC

"Greetings, friends. The Deliverance welcomes you. I am Forsyth, Sir Clive's lieutenant and advisor. Together, let us take back the castle and return Zofia to her people." - Forsyth

"Heading off, are we? Well, take care! Don't let the Terrors bite! ...Eh? Am I coming with you? Well, I COULD...but I don't HAVE to. Howzabout I just let you decide?" - Python

"...What? Mycen's grandson?!" - Desaix

"Indeed. ... He's made the boy a figurehead just to leverage some decrepit hero's name." - Fernand

"But this doesn't make sense. Mycen didn't have any... Ah... Now I see this for what it is. Rudolf, you villainous dastard..."

"You may watch from on high as my finest troops cut them down like wheat." - Desaix

"I may just take you up on that offer. Shall we, Rinea?" - Berkut

"I have no desire to see such bloodshed. War is horrible, and I will make no spectacle of it." - Rinea

"Heh heh. I jest, my dear."

"Hmph. What nonsense. One is born either noble or common. This destiny cannot be changed. Has a sheep any hope of leading wolves? No!" - Berkut

"Yes! Yes, exactly! Truer words were never spoken, Lord Berkut!" - Fernand

"But this war, no matter how terrible, has also taught me something. It taught me that when we stand up and fight...we help those people. I don't want to stop helping them now. I want to press on and make as much of a difference as I can. ... So then...will you stand with me?" -Alm

"Wow... That gave me goosebumps. Not bad, Alm. Not bad." - Tobin

"Were you even listening to a thing he said? Your goosebump-giver just declared war on the whole damned empire!" - Gray

"I know, but I think it was a nice spee— WAIT, HE DID WHAT?!"

"Sir Mycen the Zofian general?" - Old Timer

"Er, yes, that's the one. I'm his grandson, Alm. He lived in this castle long ago, didn't he?" - Alm

"Well, yes, but...how very odd. I knew the general quite well, and he had neither wife nor child."

"Huh? ... But wait... If I'm not..."

"I know I may be in over my head, and I still have much to learn. But when I say I will fight for my kingdom, I will fight for my kingdom. No one will stop me. Nothing will break me. I'll see it through to the very end." - Alm

Act II:

"Well then, I think I'll be on my way." - Celica

"Mm? You're leaving this very instant? Surely you can stay until the bell's last peal? It rings to mourn your father's passing, as you know." - Nomah

"I'll never think of that man as my father. Now if you'll excuse me..."

"Heh, you say that like you think you can keep us safe." - Mae

"I do! And I can! I'll be more help than you, at least." - Boey

"Uh, rude? AND wrong! I can conjure lightning, Boey. Big, hurty lightning. What've you got, fire? Maybe I'll call you if I want to roast marshmallows."

"But milady, I... I'll face down thieves or rogues any day, but Terrors? Terrors are...different." - Boey

"Oh, Boey. How can you be so scared of spooks and spirits at your age?" - Mae

"Shove off, would you? A man can't help what gives him fright!"

"Brother? I didn't realize you had one." - Boey

"Yes, though by different mothers. He was a sweet thing, but meek. Frightened to death of ghosts. Then he became one, alas. And much too young... Were he alive, you two would have been quite alike, I'm sure." - Celica

"What? Why is this MY fault?!" - Boey

"Uhh, because it's ALWAYS your fault!" - Mae

"I can't believe that old timer tossed his pirate problem right at our feet! Do we LOOK like the type to fight pirates? We're delicate little blossoms!" - Mae

"Speak for yourself!" - Boey

"Will this be sufficient for your services?" - Celica

"You mean will I risk life and limb for a single dagger? Ordinarily, no. BUT... since I like your moxie, I'm gonna go ahead and give you a break. You got a deal. I'll get you to your temple." - Saber

"...Very well then. I shall lead the charge myself. You need only worry about keeping me safe." - Celica

"Now just a—" - Saber

"The people of that island are suffering under the tyranny of those pirates. I can't stand by knowing starving innocents are being routinely plundered."

"Heh. Must be our lucky day. Splitting their forces in two should make Barth that much easier to defeat." - Valbar

"You know why I like you, Valbar? Because you're such an optimist. From where I'm standing, our odds look somewhere between grim and dire." - Kamui

"I'm sorry, what did you need? ...Ah yes. Apologies, but I'm not going anywhere without my dear Valbar. Go talk to him if you're looking for recruits." - Leon

"I'm Valbar, by the way. You really saved my bacon back there. And since that dastard Barth is dead, my family can finally rest... sniffle ...Er, right. Sorry. Got a little emotional there for a second. So hey, is there anything I can do to thank you?" - Valbar

"You're going off with them, old friend? Well, they'd better make room, because I go where you go! No complaints about that, right? Everybody on the same page? ...Great." - Leon

"You joining up with this lot, Valbar? Interesting... Well, it's your call—I don't have a preference either way. ... Do you have Seraphim magic? If not, then you'd best stay clear of the Seabound Shrine. Necrodragons are the one thing I absolutely refuse to tangle with." - Kamui

"sob Valbar... How could you go and leave me all alone like this? How do I go on without you? This is on your heads! All of you! And I'm coming with you to make sure he didn't die in vain." - Leon

"I can't believe that damn fool Valbar is dead. What happens now? Not to be crass, but we had a contract, and now there's no way to collect... ..Say, any chance you lot want to hire me on?" - Kamui

"Really? Here? We have to come HERE, milady? Have you not heard of the unspeakable beast that haunts this place?" - Boey

"I've told you before, lass—you need to stop dumping extra work on my— ...Hmm?" - Saber

"NuuuoooooooooAAAAAAAAAGH! It's HERE!"

"Ooooh, I remember now. You're scared of necrodragons, aren't you, Kamui? How careless of me. It completely slipped my mind!" - Celica

"Slipped your mind... That's it. I'm waiting on the boat." - Kamui

"Er, actually..."

"GyaaaaeeeeeeeeEEEEEEEEK! It's HERE!"

"Oh, my. Are you the priestess Celica? The one who defeated the dread pirates? ... I am Palla. I hail from Archanea, to the east. If I might ask, did you happen to see a young girl in the lair of those pirates? ...No? Alas. Then she was taken elsewhere..." - Palla

"I am Catria. I'm traveling with my sister Palla in search of our younger sister, Est. She was taken by pirates... We followed them this far, but now the trail has gone cold. I'm eager to find her so the three of us can return together to Archanea." - Catria

"Alm... I've dreamt of you for so long. Dreamt I might see you again. But please... not like this. The leader of the Deliverance? I pray this is some horrible mistake. Still, I'll only know for sure once I see for myself." - Celica

"Sweet jumping jesters! Now THIS is a castle! It's huge! I mean, huuuuuge! And it's GORGEOUS!" - Mae

"Keep it down, would you, Mae? We're not here to gawk at the sights like a band of slack-jawed wayfarers." - Boey

"Whatever, Professor Funslayer. Even YOU have to admit it's great."

"...Grandpapa?! What are you doing here?" - Celica

"It's been so very long, Celica." - Mycen

"Oh, Grandpapa! I'd half resigned myself to never seeing you again."

"As had I. And yet here you are, grown into a beautiful young woman."

"But why do YOU have to lead this rebellion? Mycen's grandson or no, you're neither knight nor noble. So why make yourself a target like this?!" - Celica

"Nrgh... If I didn't know any better, I'd swear I was speaking to a blue blood. My station doesn't matter, Celica." - Alm

"But there must be a way to resolve things other than bloodshed, no?" - Celica

"That's a pretty thought, Celica, but I'm not sure it's true. If it were, no one would be risking life and limb on the battlefield." - Alm

"Is it really so naive?"

"If you wish to point fingers, point them at the ruler who failed his people. It's his fault we're in this mess." - Alm

"Maybe you should go become king if it's such a damnably easy job! You're awfully free with accusations for a boy with no idea what royalty entails!" - Celica

"Huh? What, you lot selling something? Maybe pottage spoons or holy relics? Well, sorry to say, but we ain't buying. Nobody's home, see? Well, nobody 'cept for one hardworking guard. ... Handsome too, might I add." - Python

"We haven't heard from you since you left the priory on Novis. We were all worried sick." - Celica

"That was never my intent. Forgive me. But I aim to play my part here, no matter the cost. ... Set a course by your own star, Celica, and never stray from it." - Silque

"Celica, is that you? How long has it been?! I can't believe you came back to the village! Alm and the others are gone, I'm afraid. It's... a long story. Oh, and Sir Mycen vanished around the same time... Ram Village was never all that exciting, but now it's unbearably dull." - Kliff

"Oh, Celica! You're back! Gosh, how long has it been? I've missed you so much! Alm left Ram. Did you know that? Just up and LEFT! I'm so desperately lonely... ... Hey, wait... Are you on a journey or a quest or whatever? Then maybe I could go with you!" - Faye

Act III:

"Yeah, well, Mr. Mask seems to enjoy our company. I wager we'll see him again. And you're sure you've got no guess as to who he might be?" - Saber

"None. I've no allies left in this world, save the ones I travel with now." - Celica

"Oof... Didn't mean to sour the mood."

"A report, sir. A cliff has given way along the eastern ridge. The route to the Zofian coast is blocked." - Mercenary

"The eastern ridge? That's the direction Celica was heading. Oh, Celica. Please be all right." - Alm

"You and the Deliverance took all I believed in and trod it into the mire. In Rigel, they still have ideals worth upholding." - Fernand

"Damn you, Fernand! Listen to yourself!" - Clive

"My king is dead. My country fallen. But I'll not hand this land over to you."

"Come at me. Surely you detestable vermin don't think you can stand against a true nobleman?" - Fernand

"But listen, Lukas... Do you know anything about the Rigelian general Fernand mentioned? Berkut, I believe it was?" - Alm

"Lord Berkut, yes. I am no stranger to the rumors, at least. They say he is about your age. A talented young general of royal blood..." - Lukas

"Hah! What's the matter, farmboy? Afraid you won't land a single blow?" - Berkut

"The name is Alm—not 'farmboy.'" - Alm

"Oh, my mistake."

"Come then! Are you going to entertain me or not?" - Berkut

"I needn't test you as Lord Berkut does. I already know how pathetic you are!" - Fernand

"Luthier and Delthea descend from the founder of our village, so they do. She was a mage, one who was said to be the champion Zofia's finest disciple. For generations, children in their family have been born with a gift for magic ... What fool told those damned Rigelians?" - NPC

"Damn you, Mycen... You think to...hand Zofia over to Rudolf's pup...? T-traitorous dastard...!" - Desaix

"Something's been bothering me lately. Something I can't shake. It feels like every victory I secure takes me one step further from Zofia." - Alm

"...We're a long way from Ram Village, kid. ...I get that you're homesick. But that's okay." - Tobin

"Thanks, but... This is...different."

"Clive! Oh, how I have missed you, my sweet Clive!" - Mathilda

"Forgive me, Mathilda. I should never have left you to suffer for so long. Speak now your loathing for me, and I will gladly bear it all." - Clive

"Oh, stop your nonsense. You did what any commander ought."

"....." - Alm

"What a woman! Yowza! ...Um, Alm? You're blushing." - Gray

"Wh-what? No I'm not!"

"Ah. You must be Alm." - Mathilda

"Y-yes, milady." - Alm

"I would not be alive if not for your fine leadership. I thank you from the bottom of my heart, Alm. And with your permission, I wish to take up arms at your side. Will you have me?"

"Clive, I'm... I'm so sorry about Mathilda. I couldn't save her. I didn't have what it takes." -Alm

"... ..You have ruined everything! First you cost me my best friend, and now the woman I love is dead! Is that what you would have me say?! ...It will not close these wounds." -Clive

"The two boys will hold their tongues! My brother will not be subjected to your abuses! ... You are a loathsome cad, Gray. As are you, Tobin. Clive has just lost someone dear to his heart. If you possessed hearts yourselves, you would leave him in peace to grieve!" - Clair

"...You know, a friend once confronted me about this. She wanted to know why a nobody like me would risk so much to fight. ... I wanted to make a difference in people's lives. ... Every one of you has set my life moving in ways I never imagined. I want to repay that kindness." - Alm

"Back so soon, Berkut?" - Rudolf

"Sire, I was merely—" - Berkut

"Are the tales true? You challenged the Deliverance for sport and lost?"

"...Forgive me, Uncle. They proved to be more skilled than I first imagined."

"Hmm..."

"Do you see now, Lord Berkut? Come to my abode..." - Nuibaba

"...Never. Victory over Alm would mean nothing if not won by my own hand." - Berkut

"So prideful! ...Very well. But at least allow me to give you this."

"What is this? ...A mirror?"

"..... Wait, Tatarrah was CONTROLLING me? Eeeeew! I am SO sorry! I must have been a real handful. But I swear I don't remember any of it." - Delthea

"It's all right, Delthea. All that matters is that you're safe and back with us." - Luthier

"I'm sorry I worried you, Lu. Good thing the Deliverance came along, huh? Yup! Thanks, Deliverance. So if Lu is sticking with you guys, I get to come too, right? I'm pretty darned tough, you know. I'll give all your enemies what-for!" - Delthea

"It's appreciated, Alm. But there aren't words enough to thank you proper, so I'll speak with action. From here on out, sire, I am your most loyal man." - Luthier

"Yeah, maybe let's not have any of the whole 'sire' thing." - Alm

"Stop it, Clive. You're no craven." - Alm

"Aren't I? ... I criticized you roundly for diverting our army to save one person. But you did it anyway because you have something I do not—strength of heart. You understand what is precious and fight for it no matter the cost." - Clive

"Oh, good! I was hoping we'd find you. You really saved us back on the coast. ... Turns out our sister Est is being held by a thief named Grieth. Your strength is beyond reproach. That much is certain... If you're headed to Grieth's citadel, perhaps you'd let us join you?" - Palla

"Ah, there you are. ... You saved us on the Zofian coast, and we are greatly in your debt. Are you perchance headed to Grieth's Citadel? It appears my sister Est is being held there. If such are your intentions, perhaps we could travel together." - Catria

"I was off fighting on the frontier until a short while ago. Came home to find my village in ruins and my brothers taken by Grieth. I want to tear that thief's head clean off his body! ... Are you lot going to Grieth's stronghold? If so, let me come and have my revenge." - Atlas

"SHIELDFISH! DELICIOUS SHIELDFISH! HOW I YEARNED FOR YOUR TOUCH! Er, I mean...uh...here. Take this. You earned it!" - Fish-crazy Man

"Deen, set up in the northern desert. Sonya, you take the south. I want the girl alive.YA GOT IT?!" - Grieth

"You don't need to shout, sir. There's nothing wrong with my hearing. If there's nothing else, I'll be going." - Sonya

"Understood. I'm off as well." - Deen

"So I spotted this girl at the port of Zofia. Real cute, ya know? Anyway, then I hear she's about to get sold off as a slave! You believe that? Well, I don't let ladies get sold into slavery on my watch! No sir! So I up and chased after her, and wound up getting caught." - Jesse

"Whew! You really saved the day. Thanks a million. Name's Jesse, by the by. I'm just your average garden-variety merc. ... You're all traveling together, yeah? Looks like a real fun group. Don't suppose you got room for one more?" - Jesse

"I guess that means you're out of luck." - Jesse sigh - Celica

"Aw, c'mon. Don't give me that look! Damsel-in-distress types slay me. Just break my heart. I mean, not that you're a damsel or anything, but..."

"And if you're wrong and they chase us down while swearing bloody revenge?" - Boey

"Yowza. Yeah, in that case, I'm guessing you're probably dead." - Jesse

"The fact you've worked as a mercenary this long staggers the imagination."

"Nothing personal, but I have to kill you. I promise to make it fast." - Deen

"Naughty children. You ought never have made an enemy of Grieth. Still, this is mere business for my part. No hard feelings, I pray." - Sonya

"Fact is, I owe you my thanks. While you royals were lounging about ignoring your own kingdom, I was becoming a VERY RICH MAN! You people turned Zofia into a place where only the strong survive. Hell, now it's the spitting image of Rigel itself, doncha think?" - Grieth

"Atlas! Did you manage to find your brothers?" - Celica

"Yeah, they're safe. Everyone's safe. You're our savior, m'lady! From this point on, I am yours to command. You just say the word. Now, want me to bust the skulls of any of Grieth's men we might'a missed?" - Atlas

"Like myself, Lady Liprica was a sister in the service of Mother Mila. But all that ended once King Lima's royal procession arrived at the temple. Lady Liprica's beauty caught his eye, and she was stolen away in the night." - Irma

"He took her to his castle and forced her to join his seraglio of countless brides. Despite the luxury, I expect life in the castle proved most difficult for her. She soon took ill, and left this world shortly after bearing Your Highness." - Irma

"Thanks so much for saving me! My name's Est, by the way. I was kidnapped by pirates in Archanea and brought here. I'd really like to hurry home, but... Well, it wouldn't be right to run off before thanking you for your help. I'd like to fight with you, if you'll have me." - Est

"We owe you thanks. Had you pursued us, we couldn't have defeated Grieth. Your restraint was much appreciated." - Celica

"Heh. Quite the gamble. Fortunately, it paid off. ...You've got stones, little one. I like leaders with stones. What say I throw in my lot with you?" - Deen

"I get the feeling you knew all along that's how I would react. Quite the clever one, aren't you? ...It's a bit infuriating. Still, I'll wager your friends are seldom bored. Maybe I'll just have to join up and see. If there's room for one more, that is?" - Sonya

"Take heart, everyone. We're nearly there." - Celica

"Aye, but are you?" - Blake

"Who— Oh, by the Mother! What are Rigelian forces doing all the way out here?"

"Pray think on it for a moment. I'm sure the answer will come to you."

"No. No, that can't..."

"Damn... You're stronger than you look... Shame you're too late... Mila is...already..." - Blake

"Dangit, I hate it when they die right before they say something important!" - Mae

"I... I'm afraid I know little of kingdoms or the scope of rule. But I have people I wish to protect. Both here and elsewhere. I wish for this by my will alone. For my own happiness. Is that resolve enough?" - Celica

Act IV:

"Still, I don't see why the wind here's gotta be so damned cold." - Gray

"Is it really that bad?" - Alm

"You're not freezing your tenders off? I'm impressed."

"It's not that it doesn't feel cold. It's more like...I know this feeling. Like the air here's familiar."

"The right of kings is not decided by blood or station. ... It lies in a man's actions!" - Clive

"You would throw away your pride as a Zofian noble and bow to a commoner?! I see now that the Clive I once knew is well and truly dead. Now it falls on me to bury him!" - Fernand

"Only death awaits those who would profane Rigel's soil. Consider it a mercy your bones will rest here, in sight of your homeland!" - Berkut

"DAMN HIM! Why?! Why can't I beat him?! To be humiliated so by a commoner... And twice, no less!" - Berkut

"My lord, please! You must try to calm down. You are safe. That's all I need to be—" - Rinea

"Silence, woman! What could you possibly know?!"

"gasp Berkut..."

"From childhood, all that's ever been asked of me is strength. It is my duty as one born to stand above others. To rule. I've been taught that all my life. By my father, my mother... How am I to remain calm in the face of defeat at the hands of peasants?!" - Berkut

"If you don't mind my asking, who are you, exactly?" - Tatiana

"We're the Deliverance." - Alm

"Then it's true... Zofia really HAS invaded! S-stay back! Zeeeeeeke! Heeeelp!"

"Um, we just got finished saving you. You realize that, right?"

"You're oddly...convincing. I actually believe you." - Alm

"Of course you do! Just remember, no killing my sweet Zeke. Got it? I know you'll get him out of his predicament. I just know it. Hey, wait a second... Why don't I go WITH you? I just miss my love so much!"
- Tatiana

"All I know is that I washed up on the shores of Rigel grievously wounded. I was thrown in prison and accused of being a spy or worse. But Emperor Rudolf saved me. He gave me a name and took me in. He raised me as a father would his own son." - Zeke

"Eh? Why do I hate Zofia? 'Cause I pour m'blood and sweat into workin' this here barren land, is why! You Zofians have Mila's blessin' or bounty or whatever blasted thing it is. You eat yer fill without workin' a day! Life's just one big party for you lot..." - Young Man

"I mean, it has to be fate or something that the you two of you met, right?" - Gray

"Fate? I don't know about that, Gray. It's a coincidence for sure, but..." - Alm

"Kidding! I was kidding! ...Sheesh, man. You're really starting to worry me here."

"Why do you refuse Duma's truth? It is incomprehensible..." - Hestia

"Pride has never filled a man's belly or warmed him in the snow. And while we're speaking, let me tell you this: I've always despised you. You and your pathetic platitudes! Pride this... Honor that... Only a naif believes that righteousness will keep a man drawing breath!" - Slayde

"You're focused on naught but survival, yet...survival to what end? With no core belief to steel your spine, you turn tail at every shadow. Men broken by life's unfairness who cast all principle aside will never triumph. You, Slayde, will never know victory." - Clive

"Silence... SILENCE! This is merely the desperate barking of a cur faced down by a lion! Well? Don't stand there! Attack! Paint the halls red with Zofian blood! Silence their lies, even if it means cutting the tongues from their mouths!" - Slayde

"Brave warriors of Rigel. You have fought with courage and skill at my side these long years. But the hour of reckoning is upon us. Our empire's light is guttering. Now heed my words well! If I should fall, my final order is that you lay down your arms and surrender." - Rudolf

"A merciful leader may grant a second chance. Only a fool grants a third." - Rudolf

"Your Excellency!" - Berkut

"My army has no place for the weak. You'll remain here and watch in quiet."

"No... Please! Have mercy, sire! ...Your Excellency! ...Uncle!"

"I'd thought you'd have realized by now. Your true name... Your true name is Albein Alm Rudolf. You are...my one and only son." - Rudolf

"I... What? That can't be true... ... No, wait! Emperor Rudolf! Were you truly my father? Then I've just... Oh, gods... What have I done?!" - Alm

"...How could you? You knew all this time, and yet you kept it from me... You KNEW, and you still sent me off to kill my own father!" - Alm

"He knew such heresy would bring forth those who wished for his death. So for that death to come at the hands of his beloved son was...a mercy. He told me himself that he could imagine no more peaceful end."

- Mycen

"And what of my peace?!" - Alm

"... I was worried about you. I followed you as far as this temple, but this place is just so LARGE! I'm embarrassed to say I got a bit lost, little one. Heh heh heh! ... Perhaps we'd both enjoy more peace of mind if we stayed together. Might I travel with you from here on?" - Nomah

"This place gives me chills... Small wonder it's got a charming name like Dead Man's Mire." - Celica

"I can handle dead men. It's this humidity that's killin' me! ... Curse these bones... I can't stand fightin' with mud squishin' in my boots!" - Saber

"What's this? Another graveyard? ...Of course it is." - Boey

"Ugh, seriously? How are you not used to this by now? If you've seen one ghoul-ridden deathscape, you've seen 'em all! ... Actually, looks like this place is full of necrodragons. So that's new!" - Mae

"Eeyaaaaugh!"

"I actually hadn't intended to reveal myself at all. ... But after watching you... I couldn't listen to you speak as if you were all alone in the world. It drove a knife right through my heart." - Conrad

"Conrad... I'm so sorry." - Celica

"I saw you bear the weight of the world by yourself as Zofia's crown princess. From this point on, I'd like to share that burden with you. I'll be at your side and protect you with my life. But you have to promise... Don't ever try to throw your life away like that again." - Conrad

"But man, he sure is a lot less moody once that mask comes off, huh? He's like a completely different guy!" - Mae

"Almost as if he pretends to be someone else while in disguise. ...Imagine that." - Boey

"Oh yeah... Hee hee! Yeah, that was dumb."

"So then, Brother—which way do we head first?" - Celica

"Er, yeah... See, this was actually my first time leaving the woods alone. And I'm not exactly sure how to... you know. Get back? But hey, adventure! We'll just find the path together!" - Conrad

"Y-yes, adventure."

"Jedah!" - Sonya

"Well, if it isn't Sonya." - Jedah

"You've no idea how long I've waited for this day. You stole the lives of my sisters and cursed them to become witches! I will avenge them with your blood!"

"Anthiese, you made me a promise, remember? You promised not to throw your life away again." - Conrad

"I'm sorry, Conrad. I'm sorry, everyone. Please forgive me... I can't tell you how much it means to me that we've come so far together." - Celica

"Anthiese!"

"Wait, Celica... I finally figured it out, but... you're actually... You're the princess of Zofia, aren't you? Princess Anthiese." - Alm

"...I am. Heh. I guess my secret's out." - Celica

"Ugh, now I'm cringing at what I said to you before. Talk about thoughtless! Forgive me, Celica."

Act V:

"All this time... All the effort! What has it all been for?! ...No. It isn't true. It can't be. I refuse to believe it. Nothing but lies... Lies, lies, lies, lies, LIES!" - Berkut

"Alm seems a kind and generous man. I'm certain he'll treat you fair." - Rinea

"And I'm to be content with that?! ... I wanted to BEAT him, Rinea! To dispatch him and claim the throne! I wanted to make you my empress and hold all Valentia in our palms together!" - Berkut

"The truth is, I never wanted to be empress." - Rinea

"...What?" - Berkut

"To stand at your side is all I've ever desired. I don't care if you're the emperor or a swineherd so long as we... Berkut?"

"... You too, Rinea?"

"Duma! O ancient god! I call out to you now! Grant me the power to set this land to ruin for good and all! Take of me what price you will! I care not anymore!" - Berkut

"A moment, Prince Albein? I ask that you show Lord Berkut compassion. He weighed heavy on Emperor Rudolf's mind for many years. ... Berkut was his nephew, and the same age as the son he parted with. So I beg leniency of you, if only to respect Emperor Rudolf's wishes." - Massena

"Please, Alm... Stop Duma. I know I've no right to...ask anything of you... But I beg it of you regardless... You're the only one who can end this. Let no one else be tainted by his madness. Let this tragedy end." - Fernand

"Good... I am...rather tired. Tired of despair... Tired of rage... But Clive...I'm glad I got to see you one last time. You were right... You chose the right king. You always were the...friend I was...proudest to... ..."

"But when I think of the next thousand years, I don't want this. I want to leave behind a world where we shape our lives by our own hands. Where we make our own mistakes and fix them—as many times as necessary. That's a world worthy of a future." - Alm

"Oh, come on! What's wrong with personal feelings?! All of you fought this far because you hold some kind of hope for the world. It's man's individual hopes and fears that shape the world. That drive it. ... Should we let the world crumble on a god's whim? Or his absence?" - Alm

"This is great, guys. Count me in, too. I'm pretty handy with a plow, actually. I'll show you guys how it's done!" - Alm

"An emperor plowing the fields? I never thought I'd see the day." - Clive

"You and I are cousins, after all. Family. I didn't think I had any family in this world, and yet, here you are. I know we can be close friends as well. Let's work together, Berkut. Put all we have toward ensuring all Valentia is—" - Alm

"Silence." - Berkut

"Listen to you, offering mercy and trite platitudes from on high. Work together? Us? Don't make me laugh. Strength isn't lent, it's taken! Pried from the grip of your dead foes!" - Berkut

"You're wrong! He loved you! He worried about you to the last! You knew him so much better than I did. How can you not see that?" - Alm

"SILENCE! I'm tired of listening to your pretty little lies. It's time, Rinea. Come with me. We'll hold our wedding atop his funeral!" - Berkut

"You... You took...everything from me. You will SUFFER for what you've done!" - Berkut

"To have finally found family after all this time... Why did it come to this?!" - Alm

"...Stop talking and finish this. End me, and you can stand alone as inheritor of Rigel's royal blood." - Berkut

"I never wanted that! Don't you get it? I've spent enough of my life alone!"

"Alm... You must...make Valentia a land not... of gods...but of men... A world where people...never again... are corrupted by divine power... You can do it... I know...you..." - Berkut

"Berkut! Berkut... Why? Someone please tell me... I never got to know you... or my father..." - Alm

"That's no fair, Sonya... Why should you be the only one allowed to live as she chooses?" - Hestia

"Oh... It seems so...obvious now. I should have just lived...as I pleased... like you..." - Hestia

"So be it, Alm. I leave Valentia's future to you, her hero. Take from us what lessons you will and shape her into a land to remember. Make her strong like Duma, and fill her with Mila's love. Let our grave mistakes be warnings of where not to tread as you lead her forth." - Duma

"I think Mila and Duma gave us one last gift... The strength to trust in our own abilities. ...Anyway, it's time. Let's go, Celica." - Alm

"Gladly." - Celica

[Final Map Quotes]

"All we're asking is the ability to live as we think best. Is that really so bad?" - Gray

"Even without gods, I have my friends. With them, I can survive anything." - Tobin

"It's all strength and power with you. If you're that desperate for a show of force, I'll be happy to oblige." - Kliff

"This world belongs to Alm. To all of us. There's plenty of room for hope in it... but there's no room in it for you!" - Faye

"A battle between god and mortal? Sounds exhilarating to me." - Lukas

"Merciful Mila... I carry your will within me. I will see Duma freed from his suffering!" - Silque

"This business of relying on gods and... so forth all seems quite absurd to me. The creepy man will excuse himself now!" - Clair

"I'll take a proud death as my own man over a life of kneeling to a mad god!" - Clive

"I have no deference for one who would wield unjust power over his people. Such a despot is no god of mine!" - Forsyth

"Ugh, people who go on and on about power are just the WORST." - Python

"Your spirit's voice is ghastly dark. I have no use for magic so foul." - Luthier

"I alone will decide who I choose to worship. But I can promise you one thing: it certainly won't be you!" - Mathilda

"Come on, who needs gods when you're as strong as me?" - Delthea

"This is my world, and Zeke's as well. I won't allow you to endanger it!" - Tatiana

"Emperor Rudolf... Your loyal servant will see your dreams realized!" - Zeke

"This is a battle I cannot lose. For my own sake or yours, Rudolf!" - Mycen

"You're gonna pay for what you did to Celica, buddy. You're gonna pay HARD!" - Mae

"Sorry, but I've got no interest in the way people like you operate. That's reason enough for me to want to put you down!" - Boey

"I'll never accept a god so horrible..." - Genny

"Well, hell. I've come this far. Might as well see the damn thing through to the end, lass." - Saber

"Foisting your way on the world by force? You're no better than pirates. And it just so happens I don't take kindly to pirates!" - Valbar

"Your fetish for power is simply barbaric. Where's the joy? The love? Your perfect world is as dull as dirt."
- Leon

"I get the feeling my luck ran out the day I got mixed up in all this... But meh, why not? May as well see things through to the end!" -
Kamui

"The greatest of powers is but one mistake away from utter tragedy. We know that all too well, and I refuse to stand aside and watch it happen!" - Palla

"This world doesn't exist as a plaything for dragons!" - Catria

"Ruling the world with might and terror? Talk about your stale clichés. What's the point in living if you're not having fun? I'm not about to find out!" - Jesse

"Yours isn't the world I fought to protect. I'm taking every one of you down!" - Atlas

"Ugh. It's almost painful to watch... Just how hopelessly ignorant can someone be?" - Sonya

"It's our world, and we'll be the ones to shape it—Archanea and Valentia both!" - Est

"Divine Duma, you have lived long enough... It is time to leave a world of hope and possibility to the next generation." - Nomah

"Duma... O ancient benefactor. Consider this an act of mercy. A great god is deserving of a proud and glorious end!" - Conrad

"I won't say a world ruled by might is unappealing, per se... But a world where I bow to YOU is out of the question." - Deen

"I don't know much, but I know this... We will never lose to you!" - Emma

"It's no concern of mine who decides to conquer the world. But something tells me you'd take all the fun out of it—and I can't have that." - Randal

"We come from a foreign land, so perhaps this isn't our battle... But you've given us plenty of evidence that we should MAKE it our battle." - Shade

"What arrogance, to try and seize control of the world. Power is only ever as great as the heart of the wielder—and yours shall falter." - Yuzu

"It's over, Duma! Berkut, Fernand, Mila... Even my father. They and countless others, lost to us— tainted by your precious power. But that chain of tragedies ends here." - Alm

"My heart is full of thanks for all you've given man, O divine Duma. Without yours and Mila's bounty, Valentia could never have existed. ... So please, do not suffer any longer. Let all of our pain end here. Allow your great and weary soul the rest it deserves!" - Celica

[Character Endings]

As first king of the One Kingdom of Valentia, Alm spent his life restoring the continent to glory. He would be remembered fondly by later generations as Saint-King Alm I, who cast off the gods' oppressive yoke and founded a dynasty that would last a thousand years. — End

In marrying Alm, Celica became the first queen of the One Kingdom of Valentia, and aided her king with wisdom and compassion. Believed by the people to be a reincarnation of Mila, she was universally loved for her work fostering peace within the nascent kingdom. — End

As the One Kingdom's new chancellor—and right-hand man to King Alm I—good Sir Mycen worked tirelessly toward the kingdom's restoration. Despite his formal standing and title, the king and queen continued to love him like a grandfather. — End

After spearheading the unification of the Mila and Duma Faithful, Nomah became the new sect's high priest. Despite being adored by a congregation numbering in the tens of thousands, his friends attest that he retained his playful, lighthearted nature all his life. — End

Lukas joined the One Kingdom's Brotherhood of Knights, and after retiring, founded a school where he devoted himself to his students' education. His calm, intellectual mien won him many friends, and he never longed for companionship throughout the rest of his days. — End

With the war over, Kliff bid Alm farewell and vanished—with some speculating that he left for a new continent. Decades later, a young man claiming to be Kliff's son arrived in Valentia to serve the king. The boy was said to have a tremendous gift for magic. — End

As one of the most scrupulous knights in the One Kingdom's Brotherhood, Tobin spent his life serving his friend King Alm. The king, in turn, placed a great deal of trust in Tobin, eventually granting him both a title and his own castle. — End

Unable to move past Gray's death, Tobin abruptly vanished before reappearing just as suddenly several years later. At King Alm's suggestion, he joined the One Kingdom's Brotherhood of Knights. The talkative, playful Tobin of old, however, was gone forever. — End

As a member of the One Kingdom's Brotherhood of Knights, Gray worked diligently at restoring the continent. He applied himself equally to winning Clair's heart, and beat Tobin out in the end. As he was heard to say, "Pick the guy with the big heart, not the pretty face." — End

Devastated by Tobin's death, Gray was nearly lost to the demon drink until Clair convinced him to clean up. After declining knighthoods in the One Kingdom, the two married and lived out quiet lives. Gray was especially fond of his son, whom he named after his friend. — End

Having lost the woman he loved, Gray surprised even himself by embracing the life of a vagabond and setting off for parts unknown. His friends spared no effort in attempting to track him down, but it was to no avail. — End

Unable to get Alm out of her mind, Faye returned to her old life in Ram Village. Eventually, she met and married a suitor who claimed he did not mind her pining for the king, though her habit of vanishing without notice for days at a time continued to worry her new family. — End

As a knight of the One Kingdom, Clair worked hard on behalf of the continent. In time, Gray's tenacity won her over, and she became his wife and then a mother. But Clair never stayed grounded—she and her pegasus continued to race across the sky, gawkers be damned. — End

Gray's death left Clair feeling betrayed and alone, but she joined the knights of the One Kingdom and contributed greatly to their growth. The people were enamored with her melancholy beauty, which was a splash of color amidst the mostly dour men of the Brotherhood. — End

Clive was appointed the first captain of the One Kingdom's Brotherhood of Knights. His talent and honesty made him popular with commoners and nobles alike, and under his leadership, the knights flourished. He and his lovely wife were objects of the people's envy. — End

His heart still heavy from the loss of Mathilda, Clive was appointed captain of the One Kingdom's Brotherhood of Knights. A few short years later, he was killed in a skirmish with pirates. The people grieved deeply over the young loss of so fine a knight. — End

Forsyth joined the One Kingdom's knights after the war, working hard to bring order back to the land. Time took off some of his more caustic edges, and he served many years alongside Clive as a poised and thoughtful lieutenant. — End

Forsyth joined the One Kingdom's knights after the war, and he lived his life for them as the late Clive would have wanted. Time took off some of Forsyth's more caustic edges, giving him a poised and thoughtful demeanor that reminded many of his old commander. — End

Forsyth joined the One Kingdom's knights after the war. The loss of Python left him empty, which is perhaps why he volunteered to go to the borderlands to bring the king's peace. He met and wed a woman from the area, and the two never returned to the capital. — End

While the One Kingdom offered him a knighthood, Python chose a quieter life as head of a frontier militia that defended villages and towns from brigands. His old friend would visit now and then, often with a bottle the two would use to wile the night away. — End

Python accepted a knighthood from the One Kingdom, growing into a new man who worked diligently—almost as if possessed by Forsyth. Sadly, he died a few short years later while fighting to suppress a rebellion, his wounds claiming him while he was far too young. — End

Mae returned to Novis and resumed her work at the priory with Boey. The two bickered endlessly before—and after—their wedding, while managing to raise many children during the pauses between barbs. Both of them often remarked that they couldn't possibly be happier. — End

After the loss of her verbal sparring partner, Boey, Mae fell into a deep depression—but the encouragement of her friends eventually helped light return to her life. She spent her days helping others at the priory, where she was beloved for her kindness and wicked humor. — End

The war left Valentia with many wounded, and Silque traveled to the former Rigel to heal all that she could. Her exact path is difficult to retrace, but anecdotes survive across the continent telling of the countless lives she saved. — End

After falling in a most unlikely love, Genny wed a man no one would ever expect. As for whom she married, exactly, no one can say—whenever her friends asked, she replied only with a smile and an enigmatic laugh. — End

After returning to the priory on Novis, Boey weathered a trying courtship with Mae until the two were wed. Children came soon and in plentiful number, giving the pair a host of new excuses to argue. Joy takes curious forms at times, but Boey was a happy man indeed. — End

Only after losing Mae did Boey realize the nature and intensity of his feelings for her. Wracked with regret, he poured himself into his work, ultimately succeeding Nomah as high priest of the priory. He spent his life there aiding the poor in humble—yet rewarding—service. — End

Post-war, Conrad put down his lance and took up a quill, beginning a long career as a civil servant. Following Mycen's retirement, he became chancellor, shepherding Valentia's prosperity for years. Despite an endless chain of suitors, he remained single all his life. — End

Intrigued by Jesse's idea, Kamui helped to found a kingdom of mercenaries, and lived there happily for a time. In the end, however, his wanderlust prevailed—one day he went for a stroll and simply vanished, never to be seen again. — End

Kamui established a new kingdom of, and for, mercenaries in what was once Grieth's territory. Relations with Valentia were favorable, with Kamui often aiding the king in times of need. In later life, his efforts earned him fame and respect as "the Steel Amidst the Sand." — End

Welcomed into the One Kingdom's Brotherhood of Knights, Leon remained at Valbar's side until an injury ended his fighting career. He then took up work as a merchant in the city market, where he lived free, happy, and dauntlessly true to himself to the last. — End

Dealt a grievous blow by Valbar's death, Leon disappeared for a time before returning to join the One Kingdom's Brotherhood of Knights. There, he fought with the strength of a hundred men, and later served as an instructor to new recruits, contributing greatly to the order. — End

Valbar joined the One Kingdom's Brotherhood of Knights at Alm's request, where he worked to train the next generation. Well-loved for his open and honest nature, he spent his years happily surrounded by friends and admirers. — End

Mathilda cast her armor aside and wed Clive. She was rarely seen in public after that, having perhaps chosen to support her husband behind the scenes instead. However, her legendary exploits as a knight are sure to live on forever in Valentian history. — End

Clive's death forced Mathilda to carry on in his place as captain of the One Kingdom's Brotherhood of Knights. The grief in her heart steeled her, and she became a key figure in the kingdom's growth. Her legendary exploits are sure to live on forever in Valentian history. — End

After returning to the mountain home where his brothers waited, Atlas resumed life as a lumberjack—though his work defending the village from bandits continued to win him admiration. While retired from the army, he was always first to aid the queen in times of need. — End

After successfully founding a mercenary kingdom in Grieth's former land, Jesse then proved successful at ruling it. In times of strife, he worked with Alm to secure peace. Tales of his valor are told even now, in which he's reverentially called "the Steel Amidst the Sand." — End

Sonya's search for a cure for women turned into witches took her across the land. Her trail ended in a remote region, after which she was never seen again. Rumors fly, however, that shortly thereafter a new witch took up residence in Nuibaba's abode on Fear Mountain. — End

Shortly after the war, Deen vanished without a trace, along with the Brave Sword. No record exists of his whereabouts thereafter. — End

Along with Jesse, Saber helped build the foundation for a new kingdom of, and for, mercenaries. He continued working as a sellsword for years to come and aided the One Kingdom on many occasions—always with his stunning bride by his side. — End

Along with his stunning bride, Saber toiled to rebuild Valentia. Though he never officially enlisted as a knight, he put his mercenary skills and experience to work traveling the land and mediating local struggles—either with a fist of steel or a pint of ale. — End

Painfully aware of the inadequacy of his magic, Luthier journeyed across the sea. What he did there is unclear, but stories tell of a steady stream of angry ruffians who later came to Valentia with a bone to pick with an eccentric mage... — End

After the war, Delthea decided to lock away her magic and pursue a wild and happy life as an ordinary woman. She found herself the perfect husband at court, but made a point to return to her village often, where she would liven things up with tales of her brother. — End

Tatiana prayed that Zeke's memory would remain hazy, and the two eventually did live something of a happy life. Though they were parted at times, Zeke always returned to Tatiana's side in the end. — End

Her true love lost, Tatiana holed up in her priory and devoted herself to prayer. One old friend could not bear to see her alone in such a way, and he made it a point to woo her. Eventually, his efforts overcame her grief, and they were wed. — End

Having rescued Est as planned, Catria returned home in triumph. Tales of her further exploits line the pages of Archanea's history books. — End

Though painful loss hung over her return home like a dark cloud, the annals of Archanean history are replete with tales of Catria's glorious exploits later in life. — End

Having rescued Est as planned, Palla returned home in triumph. Tales of her further exploits line the pages of Archanea's history books. — End

Though painful loss hung over her return home like a dark cloud, the annals of Archanean history are replete with tales of Palla's glorious exploits later in life. — End

Successfully reunited with her sisters, Est returned home in triumph. Tales of her further exploits line the pages of Archanea's history books. — End

Though painful loss hung over her return home like a dark cloud, the annals of Archanean history are replete with tales of Est's glorious exploits later in life. — End

The fires of war had illuminated the dark recesses of Zeke's memory. But he loved Tatiana too much to burden her with his tortuous past, so he chose to bear it in silence as they lived out their lives together. — End

The loss of Tatiana, the woman who had loved him deeply and unconditionally, shook Zeke with grief. He abruptly vanished from Valentia shortly after the war ended, and while some claim to have sighted him in Archanea, none of those sightings were confirmed. — End

[Base Conversation Excerpts]

Tobin:

"...Me? Well, let's just say I'm figuring things out. Lukas keeps talking about kings and politics, but that does little for me. I'm actually just in it for the gold. I have a family to feed, after all. Well, that and I'm not about to let you outshine me!" - Tobin

"I was just wondering what you thought of Clair. Because, you know, she seems kind of into you, and... Well, yeah. Mostly just that. What? Don't tell me you haven't noticed! sigh Of course you haven't. Well, good. Then I guess Gray is my only other competition..." - Tobin

"Say, Alm? This may sound a bit strange, but... You've changed lately. Well, not 'changed.' It's more like you've sort of...found yourself? I'd never have known in Ram Village, but when you get in front of people, you become...larger than life? Is that the right expression?" - Tobin

"You're meant to lead, and you have the strength and ability to back it up. My job isn't to be better than you— it's to be part of your strength. I'm not going to say I like it...but I can definitely accept it. So I just want you to know that I'll always be there for you." - Tobin

Gray:

"Honestly, I really don't care one way or another about the kingdom. I don't have the kind of direction you do. It's more like I just have a nagging desire to do SOMETHING. So I thought if I joined the Deliverance, I might figure out what that is." - Gray

"It's not a big deal or anything, but, ummm... Well, how do you feel about Clair? ...Aha. Your face says it all. ...Plus I kind of figured as much. That just leaves Tobin. And that poor kid's hardly what I'd call a challenge... ...Huh? Oh, you're still here?" - Gray

"Ladies, am I right? They just looove to get the last word in. ... When I found out all women share that trait, my poor heart sank. ...Eh? How can I be so sure it's ALL women? How can you even ask that?! I've been to a town! I've seen, like, a dozen women! Hell, maybe more!" -Gray

"It's a shame commoners' lives have to be so damned common. ...Huh? You think it'll change? ... Well, it'd be nice if commoners had the same shot at knighthood as nobles. Heck, if we build that world, maybe the folks I've had to kill can forgive me... Or maybe not. Heh." - Gray

Kliff:

"I never hated learning, per se... I just hated all the other hellish parts of attending school. The other students would hound me from sun's rise to set. Just a bunch of lonely little children desperate for friends... ...What? Don't grin at me like that. I mean it." - Kliff

"But when you think about it, it's kind of selfish. To keep another's secret is a sign of strength and trust. But when we hold our own secrets in, we're only judging everyone else. 'You can never understand,' we think. It's sad, but...it's what we do." - Kliff

"I hated it in the village. My mother never thought of anyone but herself. I couldn't spend my life there. So now I've found all the excitement I longed for, plus a fair lot I didn't! But don't tell the others I'm actually enjoying this. Heh heh." - Kliff

Faye:

"You always were braver than me. I remember when we were children and those knaves cornered us in the woods. You came to our rescue like a knight in shining armor. Ha ha. Look at you! You're blushing! But it's true. You've always been my knight, you know? Then and now." - Faye

"Only someone who's been with you the whole time could ever truly understand. Someone who knows you so well she thinks exactly as you do. Someone who would do whatever you'd ask...if only you would. Those are the sort of friends you need to keep close." - Faye

"I hope Ma and Pa and Nana are doing all right without me... They said I talk too much about you. They want to know what's happening with me, not you. But they don't understand that I AM writing about myself! Or at least I'm writing about what matters to me..." - Faye

Lukas:

"I grew up in the borderlands as well, though not the same as yours. Some in the Deliverance ridicule me for this, calling me a 'backwater noble.' But unlike them, I rose above my origins on my own merits, and as a result, here I stand today." - Lukas

"But those same nobles are guilty of denying opportunities to the willing. They hoard their knowledge and rights and opportunities, and this is wrong. I hope that aspect of the world changes once the dust settles from this war." - Lukas

"You know, I have an elder brother, but I would not say we are close. ... When word rose of the Deliverance, my brother was overjoyed. He ordered me to leave home and enlist at once. ...Ah, well. Regardless of how I arrived, I am deeply glad to have joined the Deliverance." -Lukas

Silque:

"When I was little, my mother and I went on a long pilgrimage. So you see, I'm quite used to grueling marches such as this. I can look at the sky and read the weather. I know which plants are edible. So if you find yourself wanting for advice, simply say the word." - Silque

"But the pirate scourge? Well, that was another matter entirely. They stole food sent from the mainland until we had naught to eat but fish. I'm not complaining—fish is lovely. Another gift from the Mother. But too much of a good thing can grow just a wee bit tiresome..." - Silque

"...My mother was a cleric of the Duma Faithful. It was only later that she crossed to Zofia and left me with the priory. ... But another mother rescued me when I was at my lowest—the Mother Mila. Now I will spend my life repaying that debt however I can." - Silque

Clair:

"When Clive joined the Knights of Zofia, Fernand joined as well. And so did I—mostly because I positively LOATHE being excluded! ...What? Of course they let me in! Why wouldn't they?! Actually, now that you mention it, I never did stop to wonder why." - Clair

"So you and that Celica woman were friends when you were little? That's why you seemed so close! Good, then. I was starting to worry. ... But are you certain Celica is just a priestess? The way she carried herself was more... refined. Like how you carry yourself." - Clair

"I simply miss my manor in Zofia. My parents... My nursemaid... The ladies-in-waiting and servants... I wonder what they're all doing right now. If they knew I was washing my own hands before supper— and a supper of dried fish at that— they would simply keel over in shock!" - Clair

Clive:

"From that day on, he developed an unnatural hatred for commoners. So I pray you can accept my apology for the appalling things he said to you. ...Hmm? You think I sound like his true brother? Heh. Well, this would not be the first mess of his I've had to smooth over." - Clive

"While I wallowed in my stupor and wondered what would become of us, she was the calm voice of wisdom who knew what must be done. I have been pursued by many high-standing women in dresses most fine, but Mathilda was the first to truly stand shoulder-to-shoulder with me." - Clive

"Look how far we've come, Alm. In truth, there were times along the way where I often questioned my choices, but now, I do believe them all to have been sound. Thank you, Alm, for being everything I hoped you would be." - Clive

Forsyth:

"I must say, it's an honor to be fighting alongside Sir Mycen's grandson. ...Laying it on too thick? Ha ha! Oh dear. I'm told I do that a lot. I suppose I just say what I feel without filtering it first. Python told me I should tone it down...But really, what's the harm?" - Forsyth

"Still, every time I was about to give up, Python would cheer me on. He'd say, 'You can't throw in the towel now!' 'That stupid dream is all you've got!' ... Because of him, I kept at it—and look where I am now. A lieutenant in the Deliverance! I couldn't be happier." - Forsyth

"When I first enlisted, the Deliverance was shorthanded. And yet, the men running it were still all knights of noble birth. Only one of them paid any heed at all to my or Python's exploits: Sir Clive. ... I swore to follow that man to the ends of Valentia if he asked." - Forsyth

Python:

"I'm no one special. Pa was a carpenter, and I'm less still. The only reason I joined the army was because it pays better. The world can rot so long as I've still got food on the table. Oh, but don't worry! I'll fight and all that noise. I'm nothing if not diligent." - Python

"Ah, but then Desaix staged his coup and the knights lost their kingdom. That changed their tune. Now it was 'work hard, and you can be an officer!' ... I saw that farce for what it was. There's no quick path to an easy life, and any who say otherwise are liars." - Python

"...Yeah, I guess I'd lead the damn country if I had to. I just don't WANT to have to. I'm diligent, not masochistic. Look, put it this way—I know my limits, and I respect 'em. Heh. Wouldn't want to disappoint anyone, right?" - Python

Mathilda:

"Well, my father was a distinguished warrior of some renown. He trained me relentlessly from a young age, and I embraced it. I saw the pretty maidens around me and wondered if I should be more like them. But they seemed keen on me staying just the way I was, so I did." - Mathilda

"My little sisters back home have been writing me and clamoring for my return. I've started to wonder if all siblings are like that. ... But when you consider how fond Clair is of Clive... Well, perhaps children just naturally look up to elder brothers and sisters." - Mathilda

"Clive and I became close after enlisting in the Knights. Our houses had cordial relations before that, but Clair wouldn't let me near her elder brother. On the battlefield, Clive was like some mythological hero. From the moment I saw him, I knew my heart was his." - Mathilda

Luthier:

"But despite having more talent than me, Delthea has always been ungrateful. She spends more time playing around than training. If she'd taken her studies seriously, she might not have been manipulated. Well, no matter. There is little point in lamenting it now..." - Luthier

"There were others my age in the village, but we were never close. I suppose I never felt the need to get to know them. However, I had a most excellent relationship with one of the cats. ...Yes, I know that doesn't count. You needn't remind me." - Luthier

"Magical ability is in the blood. If one is not born with it... They will never hear the spirits' voices, no matter how hard they train. I know how precious my gifts are, so I intend to spend my life perfecting them. I understand my calling, even if Delthea does not." - Luthier

Delthea:

"All I know is that when I grow up, I'm getting the heck out of my village. I'm gonna go to the city and fall madly in love with someone suave. ...Huh? What does 'suave' mean? You know! Suave! Suavy! Suavicious! ...I think it means 'manly,' maybe? Whatever!" - Delthea

"We're not supposed to talk about the whole 'magical bloodline' thing. That's bullplop, though, right? I think it is. We've got all this incredible magic at our disposal, and we have to HIDE it? I wanna show off! I want people to bask in my awesomeness!" - Delthea

"You know, folks tell me I'm wasting my natural talents. Well, I never asked to be amazing! I'm not even all that interested in magic or fighting. ... I'm glad that I have a way of helping you all out, but I sure hope that doesn't end up being my purpose in life..." - Delthea

Tatiana:

"I was raised in an orphanage in one of Rigel's villages. But I wasn't a sad child. Far from it, in fact. I always had lots of friends, and the clerics were very kind. That's what inspired me to become a cleric myself. I want to help people the way they helped me." - Tatiana

"I kept caring for him, and eventually we started taking walks together. Then I realized how happy I was spending time with him, and fell in love. Zeke calls himself half a man because of the past he's lost. But that half is all I will ever need." - Tatiana

"It's just...what if Zeke's memory somehow comes back? What if he remembers he has another family or another lover? Of course, it would only be right if he returned to her in such a case. But I must be a selfish, awful person, because I don't want him to remember." - Tatiana

Zeke:

"On that day, I will have to aid you in striking down Emperor Rudolf. I know it to be his wish, yet still I wonder if that makes us in the right. The emperor was convinced you would be the one to save Valentia. ... I believe in you, Alm. Know that, if nothing else." - Zeke

"Tatiana was the one who found me and took me in. She tended to my wounded body and comforted my broken spirit. It baffled me how one might go so far to aid a complete stranger. But I would not be alive if not for it. She is the reason I still exist at all." - Zeke

"But as I have said, I prefer to let the past be in the past. If I think on it overlong, my heart begins to ache. I fear whatever I left behind could not have been pleasant. Save for one memory... Apologies. I must let it rest. I have Tatiana's feelings to consider." - Zeke

Mae:

"You should try to have some fun with this too. It'll do you good! Oh, but the whole 'solemn purpose' thing is still top priority, obviously. But we'll be seeing new things, meeting new people... It's important to enjoy it!" - Mae

"What exactly is your relationship with that boy from the castle? I don't mean to be a snoopy pants, but I've never seen you get so mad. So I figured he must be someone really special to you...Wait, for reals? He's just some friend from when you were little? Are you suuure?" -Mae

"You're not hiding something from us, are you? Sorry if it's weird, but I just... I dunno. I kind of got that feeling. And you've always been the type to deal with all your problems on your own. Anyway, I just wanted you to know you can talk to me about anything, okay?" - Mae

"Times like that, it really hits home how we were born into different stations. Me, I just go through life focused on whatever's right in front of me. I hope this journey will teach me to see things with a broader perspective." - Boey

"I mean, Zofia Castle's basically your home, right? I can't really wrap my head around that place being someone's home. There are just five of us in my home, and it's packed to the gills! Being poor's rough sometimes, but we're all still quite close." - Boey

"It's been a rough journey, but I'm still kind of sad to see it end. I always thought my whole life would pass without me ever leaving the island. But I've gotten to experience so much, and for that, I'm thankful. I hope you'll let me stay by your side to the bitter end." - Boey

Genny:

"I've always been the type to stay home and read rather than go on adventures. Guess I'd rather write a story about an epic quest than be on one myself. Though I imagine being left out would feel even worse... Promise me you won't leave me behind, Celica, okay?" - Genny

"And here I thought you'd gone and found a boyfriend! I mean, you two just looked so perfect together. He's around your age, isn't he? Mmm. That wouldn't work for me. I'd prefer to be with someone older. That way you feel like they're really taking care of you. Hee hee." - Genny

"The Rigelian Empire is so cold! It's a bit unsettling. Let's hurry and save Mila so we can get back home. Then I can turn this adventure into a thrilling epoch for the ages! It's the story of..... ...What do you think? Isn't it great? I'm already brainstorming the sequel!" -Genny

Saber:

"...You sure pull some crazy stunts, lass. I didn't think I'd be bum-rushing a pirate fort as soon as I took this job. Doesn't exactly bode well for the future, if I'm honest. Eh? You promise no more detours? Ha! That and some gold can buy me a pint." - Saber

"You said you didn't have any proper family, yeah? Hmm... Well, I won't pry. ...Me? Yeah, I got a little sister. Ain't seen her in forever, but I assume she's fairing fine. She kinda looks like you, now that I think on it." - Saber

"Er, I mean... Ah, hell. Might as well spill it. ...I'm Rigelian. No deal to me one way or the other— just didn't think I'd ever be back, is all. Don't have too many good memories of the place, but nostalgia's a funny thing." - Saber

Valbar:

"If there's anything I can do to help, just say the word. I'm serious! No need to hold back. I owe you my life, after all. Gives me chills to think how I could have died before getting revenge. My family owes you as well, so it's up to me to pay you back on their behalf." -Valbar

"Figured if I joined the army, that'd make life easier for the family. But then I wasn't there to defend them when pirates raided. Damned ironic... ..Hmm? Oh, thanks, but there's no need to worry about me. Can't spend the rest of my life standing around crying." - Valbar

"I'm glad I got the chance to travel with you. I never thought about what I'd do after Barth, but you gave me purpose. That's a princess for you, I guess! Heh heh. You and your friends are a great group. It's been fun. Thanks for letting me see it through to the end." - Valbar

Kamui:

"Me, I can't imagine giving my all for a gig that doesn't pay. No one asked you to solve this mess—let alone paid you—yet here you are. Seems like your job is a tougher one than I'm willing to take on. Makes me wonder if the gods are really worth all that trouble." - Kamui

"I used to be a shepherd. A nomad. Me and my whole family. But another tribe edged us out of the market, so we moved to the city. Still, it feels weird to stay in one place for too long. So now I'm a sellsword who straddles the world once more!" - Kamui

"Turned out to be a fine little adventure, all in all. Truth be told, I don't know what I'm going to do once it's over. Still, I feel like it's scratched my wanderlust itch for the time being. Maybe I'll settle down for a while. See what kind of life I can build." - Kamui

Leon:

"I don't like sea travel, and it sure doesn't like me. I'm nauseous, I'm sunburned, and I'm wind-beaten. I look like death's damp leftovers. But YOU look fresh as a daisy, Priestess! What's your secret? ...What? Nothing? NOTHING?! But you look like a dew-dappled angel!" - Leon

"Great. We finally get off that infernal boat, and now it's the desert. Are you doing this on purpose, Priestess? Is it personal? sigh I want to get out of here before I dry up like a mummy. If I turn hideous and Valbar abandons me, it's your fault." - Leon

"You're thinking I'm a tramp, aren't you? Well, I'm not. It's hardly my fault that the world is full of wonderful, lovable people. Such a thing really motivates one to get out there and save it." - Leon

Palla:

"Back home, my sister Catria and I served as knights of the queen. Not Est, though. She'd already left the order before she was taken prisoner. She chose a peaceful life, and yet ended up with this. It's a bitter irony." - Palla

"Our queen is a beautiful, kind woman. But her siblings caused her terrible grief. Being family allows you to forgive some things you couldn't otherwise. Though I understand it also makes other things unforgivable." - Palla

"Celica, do you have someone you fancy? Heh. Oh, there's no need to be so flustered. ...What about me? Well, I wouldn't say there's no one. Though I expect I'll take my feelings with me into the cold earth. Giving voice to them would only hurt those who I hold most dear." - Palla

Catria:

"When the last war ended, she left the order of knights the next day. Said she was opening a shop with some boy she was fond of. She does what she wants and says what she wants, and damn the consequences. There are times I envy her." - Catria

"Do I really come across that way? Certainly I'm more reserved than either Est or Palla, but isn't that true for most middle siblings? And whenever I DO have something to say, one of them always beats me to it! Who wouldn't seem quiet in such circumstances?" - Catria

"People of high birth have their own unique set of troubles, I'm sure. But there's still some part of me which envies them. Perhaps it's because I don't know the kinds of burdens they carry. If only I could stand as an equal and see the world as they do..." - Catria

Est:

"I mean, I've been through my share of tight scrapes on the battlefield, but I always had my sisters with me. So no matter how bad it got, I knew it would all work out. But this time it was just me, and it was incredibly scary!" - Est

"My sister Palla is very kind. I mean, she's always got some little barb or criticism ready, but that's okay. ... Now Catria... Well, I've never really known what she's thinking. ... I wish she'd open up. Still, I love 'em both to bits. I'm very proud of my sisters." - Est

"I actually wanted to open a shop with my love and live like a normal girl. But right when I got that chance, it all turned around and...welp, here I am. My sisters think I've had it pretty easy, but it's actually been tough... Sometimes I wish they could understand that..." - Est

Atlas:

"Priestess! H-hello! ...Hmm? I seem aloof? No! That's not... Well, I mean, can you blame me? It's just...you're such a proper lady! I don't have a clue what to talk about. ...Talk about anything? Yeah, that doesn't really narrow it down." - Atlas

"See, me, I just love my job. Woodcutting's a blast! The same mountain can be real different day to day. They've got moods. They've all been pretty sad lately, though. ...Wait, you think Mila's responsible? Then it's time we had a talk with her!" - Atlas

"And sure, I want to provide a decent life for my little brothers... But my leaving home has made life harder for them, not easier. I tell ya, dreams of striking it rich can be expensive things. Soon as we're done, I'm gettin' back to the mountain and back to cuttin' wood!" -Atlas

Jesse:

"Heeeeeeey, Celica! You're looking downright radiant today. Ha ha ha! No, I'm not kidding. I'm serious as a stab wound. I just call 'em as I see 'em, and I got the world's cutest girl in front of me. ...Huh? Are all men like me? Gosh, I couldn't really say." - Jesse

"I'm not COMPLETELY shallow. I'm just saying the world's full of beauty and it's a fool who doesn't enjoy it. Women are the gods' most perfect creation. So I want as many as I can g— Er, are you leaving? But I was... No? We're done? Okay, I think we're done." - Jesse

"...My family? Woof. It's been forever since I've seen 'em, honestly. They were...strict, I guess you'd call it. Do this, wear that, stop being friends with whomever... I got fed up and took off. I guess some folks just need to live by that kind of tight framework." - Jesse

Sonya:

"You're no fun to tease—you know that? Pipe up and speak from the gut every now and again. Quit being so stoic. Aw, don't give me that sad puppy look. You make it seem like I'm bullying you. I'm just saying you should speak your mind a bit more. That's all." - Sonya

"I lived in a priory when I was a child, you know. Wearing the same drab habit... Praying day after day after day... Well. No thank you. I'm done with all that. If beautiful women don't celebrate their beauty, the entire human race loses out. Don't you agree?" - Sonya

"Growing up, I had two older sisters. ... The three of us were inseparable back at the priory. We waited for our father to come get us, yet knew the day would never come. Ah, but that was a lifetime ago. And they're both gone now..." - Sonya

Deen:

"Need something? If not, why talk to me? You're a strange one. ...Huh? Why SHOULDN'T you talk to me? You really need an explanation? I don't make small talk. Not with you, not with anyone. If we're clear, move along." - Deen

"Awfully persistent, aren't you? ...Ah, I shouldn't take that tone with you anymore. Forgive me, Your Highness Princess Anthiese of Zofia. Please pay this humble soldier no mind." - Deen

"I don't know if you'll be involved in ruling Zofia or not, but don't forget the tragedies the last royals brought about with their choices. Taking down Desaix and bringing Mila back home won't revive the fallen. ...That's all I wanted to say." - Deen

Nomah:

"Ah, Celica. How are you feeling, little one? Rigel's cold is hard on these old bones. It's not my first time bearing it, though. In fact... Hmm, let me think... Goodness! I suppose the last time I was here was over forty years ago. It all passes in the blink of an eye..." - Nomah

"I mentioned that I'd traveled to Rigel previously, yes? That was when I first met Mycen. ...What, didn't you know? Oh yes. Mycen originally hails from Rigel. We were both so young back then... Ha! Those are fond memories." - Nomah

"I never took a wife or sired children. I've dedicated my life to the teachings of Mila. But I've had the chance to watch you, Celica, as well as Mae and Boey. ... Seeing you grow up has given me both joy and a sense of purpose." - Nomah

Conrad:

"Growing up at the villa, you always were my favorite sibling. Small wonder, what with my mother being Rigelian. The other siblings and their mothers always kept me at arm's length. But you and Liprica were always kind to me, and I appreciated it." - Conrad

"After that, it was long days of sword practice and studying under Halcyon. Not to mention doing all his cleaning and cooking and laundry. Heh. I didn't mind. ... So if you ever get hungry, just say the word and I'll whip up something tasty!" - Conrad

"But don't forget you have me and everyone else at your back, okay? I'm not suggesting you don't believe in us. It's more like... Sometimes it's like you're running off ahead without us, and it's...lonely. I don't know. Sorry. I'm not doing a great job of explaining this." - Conrad

"And just what are you guffawing at? Such behavior is unspeakably boorish!" - Clair

"Sorry! Sorry. Very sorry. It's just...who says, 'Salutations!' on a battlefield?" - Alm

"Wh— Bu— I say it!"

"But Clair, I like you the way you ARE. You're proud, overbearing, and don't give a damn what people think of you." - Alm

"I am NOT overbearing! A boy will take that back at once! I'm the queen of Zofian high society! Why should I care what YOU think?" - Clair

"Tell me, were you not mesmerized and bewitched by my fighting today?" - Clair

"Oh, riveted! How could I look away? You're like a Valkyrie descended. I know that I'LL never trifle with the queen of high society." - Alm

"Ha! Not if you value your life. Heh."

"When you said you like me the way I am, that meant a great deal to me. Because I care for you too—and how we laugh together over the silliest things. I feel simply wonderful when we are together." - Clair

"Wow. Thanks, Clair. ... You're kind of making me blush..." - Alm

Alm & Faye

"Slay...enemies for me? Um... Er, I would hope you're doing it for a better reason than just...me." - Alm

"Oh! Is THAT what you want? ...Because I'll do it. I'll fight for any cause you desire! Just promise you'll be watching, Alm! Promise to look at me!" - Faye

"You're excited about...bread?" - Alm

"No, silly! You touched my hand! ...I was up all night thinking about it. Oh, but don't worry—I drank a bunch of tea, so I'm ready to kill in your name! Just point me at your enemies and watch me go!" - Faye

"Um, that's... Wow."

"Oh, never mind. I should have known such a thing wasn't really possible. But I'd like to keep my feelings for you, if that's all right. At least until we part? Will you allow me that much?" - Faye

"Of course, Faye." - Alm

Alm & Mycen

"So it seems we must finally take up swords together. I knew this day would come." - Mycen

"I'm sorry, Grandfather, but... Well, I'm not sure I'm ready to talk to you just yet. Can you give me a little more time to process what happened?" - Alm

"Of course."

"But, while I felt deceived, that wasn't the thing that hurt me. What hurt me was... finding out that you're not really my grandfather." - Alm

"You will always be my grandson, Alm. ... I never would have known the joys of family had I not met you." - Mycen

"Your skill with a sword has improved markedly, Alm. ... It seems war was a far better teacher than I." -Mycen

"Don't be daft. I never would have survived this long without all I learned from you. I only joined the Deliverance to prove some of your greatness lives on in me." -Alm

"I will be with you to the end—until you finish what fate has in store for you. It was your father's wish, and now it is mine as well. It will not be much longer. Stay focused, boy." - Mycen

"I will." - Alm

Clair & Delthea

"It's about your bro. You know, Clive? I really like him. He's so dashing!" - Delthea

"... Ha ha. I adore my brother, and so I understand why you might be smitten with him. But I fear his heart belongs to Mathilda." - Clair

"Ooo, Mathilda! Gods, why'd I even bother asking?"

"Pardon me, Delthea, but perhaps you might tell me about YOUR brother. I find Luthier to be a singularly unique individual!" - Clair

"What? I think the phrase you're looking for is 'totally weird.' Clive and Lu are like day and night. Er, knight and day? Whatever." - Delthea

"Huh? HEY, WAIT! Did you just trick me into saying nice stuff about my brother?!" - Delthea

"I merely wanted to know how you truly feel. ...And I must say that I'm relieved. Because now I know you love your brother every bit as much as I do mine." - Clair

Clair & Gray

"Still, a shame you are not Alm. A visit from him would have lifted my spirits." - Clair

"Ouch. Tell me how you really feel. But then again, roses with thorns are the ones I enjoy tending best." - Gray

"And does the budding gardener think cajolery makes the flowers grow?"

"Look, about the whole cajoking thing..." - Gray

"Ca-JOLING. And was there some part of what I said that you failed to grasp?" - Clair

"Yeah, just...all of it? What's the deal? What did I do wrong?"

"Oh, my dear Gray. Let me attempt to lay it out for you."

"But I DO love you!" - Gray

"No. ... You WANT me. You intend to HAVE me. But not at the expense of your pride. You toss out kind words and I-love-yous without putting any weight behind them. That way, if I refuse you, you can tell yourself it was all a jape in good fun." - Clair

"But that's...not how I feel at all." - Gray

"Yes, poor you. And what of my feelings? Do I not deserve better than these trite gambits of yours? My heart belongs to the man who takes time to know me BEFORE he loves me. Now never speak to me again." - Clair

"Clair..."

"I may have been...out of line. I had only just found out how close Alm and Celica are, and I... I was sorting through my emotions." - Clair

"sigh So I'm next down the list?" - Gray

"No. I merely wanted to apologize for taking out my frustrations on you."

"I don't even care if you rebuke me. Hell, that almost makes it WORSE! You're the lady I've fallen for." - Gray

"...Good heavens. You really HAVEN'T learned anything. But I think you deserve a proper answer this time, and so I shall consider it." - Clair

Clair & Mathilda

"You have a good heart. It means everything to me to know you cared so deeply. But I was never afraid. I knew in my heart that Clive would come for me." - Mathilda

"You truly are strong, Mathilda. I hope that I might learn from your courage." - Clair

"And I from your kindness."

"Recently, I've taken note of how you look out for everyone around you. You're there for them before they even think to ask for help. You've grown into a fine woman." - Mathilda

"Really? I hadn't noticed. Also I think you may be imagining it." - Clair

"It's not so much that I grew up as that I had to leave part of myself behind. ... I grew up thinking that the world revolved around me. But I now I feel it's just spinning madly about for absolutely no reason at all." - Clair

"Clair..." Mathilda

"I have to be stronger. Clive needs me to keep my chin up, after all." - Clair

"You will be happy again one day, Clair. I promise you this. And Clive and intend to be part of that happiness." - Mathilda

"I hope so."

"I KNOW so."

Clive & Forsyth

"You know, you have tremendous talent, Forsyth. but you are far too tense. Perhaps you should attempt...to loosen up." - Clive

"L-loosen up, sir? A-all right, sir! I'll work on that right away!! Just watch how loose I can be!" - Forsyth

"With Python, you open up and speak your mind. You're friendly. Relaxed. That's what I meant when I said you can loosen up. Just treat me the same as you would Python." - Clive

"EXACTLY the same, sir?" - Forsyth

"Uhhh... Right. Never mind then."

"Ah, Forsyth. You're in fine form today." - Clive

"Sir Clive! Never fear—I intend to slay as many foes as possible in your good name! Long live the Deliverance, and three huzzahs for sir Clive!" - Forsyth

"Uh, yes. Very good."

"You're the reason we all still have hope! ... Because it's my faith in you that gives me the courage to fight without fear. I know Alm may be our leader now...but you're still the banner we look to. You should remember that, sir." - Forsyth

"I shall. Thank you, Forsyth." - Clive

Clive & Lukas

"Forsyth is all drive and emotion, while Python... Well, Python hardly seems to care about much of anything. Both are fine soldiers in their own ways, but neither is a great advisor." - Clive

"Well, don't tell Forsyth. He'd crawl into his bed and never come out again." - Lukas

"I wonder if it is normal to feel so... detached." - Lukas

"Of course it is. And I believe such perfect composure to be a virtue beyond compare." - Clive

"Well, I am who I am. I imagine I should stop hoping for more."

"The war is drawing to a close. I just wanted to offer thanks for your many services to the Deliverance. Without your fiery presence, we never would have made it this far." - Clive

"My...fiery presence? Are you certain you aren't confusing me with someone?" - Lukas

Clive & Mathilda

"Clive!" - Mathilda

"Mathilda! Every night, I dreamt of being able to fight at your side again like this." - Clive

"As did I, my love. I fear I'm so excited, I can barely keep hold of my weapon. ...You do have that effect on me."

"There's no need for you to be nervous. I'll be right here. Now go forth and tear the enemy apart like the beautiful war maiden you are." - Clive

"I thought you would never ask. Watch over me, my love!" - Mathilda

"My sweet, how could I do otherwise?"

"Clive!" - Mathilda

"Mathilda! The artistry of your lance swings has been making my heart soar." - Mathilda

"I have a long way to go before I can wield a lance like you, my love."

Clive & Python

"You won't get discipline if you don't create a welcoming atmosphere." - Python

"And you don't think we have that now?" - Clive

"Well, I didn't say THAT. ...Er, sir. But truth is, it's not always easy for everyone to find his or her place here."

"Have I not endeavored to treat those of low birth fairly? ... And yet you believe some still struggle to fit in." - Clive

"Well, you won't win any points by using terms like 'low birth.' ...Sir. You make it sound like it's our privilege to be elevated to your level." - Python

"You can't understand us. Not really. Your life is just very...different." - Python

"You're right. ... I have never had to face the same indignities or despair as you. Yet in trying to champion those causes, perhaps I have become a hypocrite." - Clive

"Lots of commoners want a champion like you. Hell, Forsyth practically walks behind you tossin' out rose petals. But some of us commonfolk just aren't ever going to relate to you, so... You know what? What do I know. Forget I said anything, sir." - Python

"Python, wait..." - Clive

"After our last heart-to-heart, everyone blamed me for putting you out of sorts. Clair practically had me at lancepoint. ...Wait, not practically. Literally." - Python

"I apologize for what you went through. ...Especially that lance business." - Clive

"I believe in structure. There should be a king and a nobility, and beneath them, common people. That is the structure I was born into. ... I still believe it is the structure a kingdom needs to survive. So I apologize if that does not sit well with you." - Clive

"....." - Python

"...I really got your silk stockings in a bunch, didn't I? Well, so long as we're leveling with each other, I think you're dead wrong. Nobles living fancy while the people starve ain't structure—it's privilege. And I hate any man who looks down on me because of it." - Python

Delthea & Luthier

"I'm not criticizing you—but showing a bit of dignity would be nice. For you see, the thing about you is—" - Luthier

"Woould yooouuu pleeeeee SHUUUUUUUT UUUUUUP?! Nothing I do is EVER good enough for you! Just leave me alone, you big LOSER!" - Delthea

"Delthea?" - Luthier

"Hum de dum de do..." - Delthea

"Young lady, it is rude to ignore people."

"No, it's rude to ignore NICE people. So you don't count."

"Delthea, guess what!" - Luthier

"Uh, what?" - Delthea

"I've finally made a friend! ...And it's ALM! I asked him if we were friends, and he definitely nodded."

"I don't know many people who would answer that with a 'no,' but, uh... Good for you, I guess?"

"Look, am I your adorable and magically omnipotent little sister or not?" - Delthea

"Well...yes?" - Luthier

"Oh, Lu, THANK YOU! ...See, that's called a 'compliment.' Now do more of that. Lay it on thick! Tell me I'm FREAKIN' AMAZING!"

Faye & Silque

"I was hoping we could get to know each other better. There are so few of us women fighting alongside Sir Alm. And there are many things I wish to talk about that aren't for the ears of men." - Silque

"Well, um... I don't think that kind of friendship is for me. Sorry." - Faye

"I would like to make a proposal. If you don't like gossip, why don't we talk about Sir Alm? He's something we can bond over, don't you think?" - Silque

"Talking about Alm isn't fun unless Alm himself is there. Look, it's okay. Not everyone has to be friends, right?" - Faye

"Weeeell... After you stopped approaching me, I realized I kinda...miss your company. I guess I needed a friend after all. Sorry I was so rude." - Faye

"Oh, it's all right. It's just nice to feel missed. And now we can finally talk!" - Silque

"Hee hee. You're a good person, Silque, even if your tongue does like to wag. I'm still not one for gossip, but I would like to know more about you. Maybe we can talk again soon?" - Faye

"That would be lovely!" - Silque

Forsyth & Lukas

"My father is a scholar, so I spent my childhood surrounded by books." - Forsyth

"Really? I didn't know. That must have been wonderful. I do enjoy a good page-turner." - Lukas

"Yes, I've noticed you're something of an avid reader."

"Guilty as charged."

"My father insisted I wield a pen, and barred me from the sword or lance." - Forsyth

"Ah, so we were quite different." - Lukas

"I would have given anything for the opportunities your father gave you. So it hurt when you said you'd rather read. Books are easy to find, after all."

"Heh heh. Well, I still would have gladly traded places with you. Whoever dealt life's cards was clearly in his cups." - Lukas

"Ha ha. Indeed." - Forsyth

"sigh Really, Forsyth? Reading in the heat of battle again? One day this will get you killed." - Lukas

"Wagh! Lukas! What a surprise! ... You look well." - Forsyth

"Mm-hmm."

Forsyth & Python

"Python! Ho, Python!" - Forsyth

"Crivens, here he comes again..." - Python

"Do you think I'm not watching you? Sir Alm and the others are fighting five times as hard as you are! You're barely even pretending to try! Have you no honor or shame?" - Forsyth

"Shame? ...Nope, sorry. Not feeling it. But good on that lot for keeping at it!" - Python

"Python." - Forsyth

"Oy, gods! It's after me again! Won't someone save poor Python?" - Python

"I am not an 'it,' you daft fool!"

"I'm well aware of how you function in this world. No goals. No passion. Just flitting about while doing the bare minimum. Your life must be so horribly empty." -Forsyth

"It's pretty grand, actually. So maybe you should stop painting me as the picture of misery and woe."

-Python

"Well, I HAVE thought I might benefit from being a bit more...capricious." - Forsyth

"Heh! What, you? Oh, gods no. You'd be terrible at it." - Python

"YOU JUST SAID I SHOULD DO IT!"

"Ha ha!"

"I don't like chasing wildly after some dream. Dreams don't fill the belly, and they sure don't pay for life's other comforts. ... I'm happier without 'em." - Python

"Truly? sigh Well, that sounds utterly depressing, but if you're happy, I'll let it be." - Forsyth

"Aye aye, cap'n! I'll give you my all!" - Python

"Oh, somehow I doubt that..." - Forsyth

Gray & Tobin

"Hey, Tobe. How goes?" - Gray

"sigh It goes, I guess." - Tobin

"Uh, do you think you could sound a little less cheerful?"

"Oh, you're looking for a fight? Let's take it outside, clown!" - Tobin

"We're already outside. And I'm kind of busy fighting these other guys..." - Gray

"Hey, the writing is on the wall. She's out of my league. But I don't have to throw away the good things I DO have over her. You know, like my best friend?" - Tobin

"I wouldn't want to lose my best pal either." - Gray

"What do you say we make it through today and figure things out from there?" - Tobin

"It's a date! Er, or a plan. Whatever. ...Let's do what you just said." - Gray

Kliff & Tobin

"Hey, look who's here!" - Tobin

"What do you want, Tobin? Don't talk to me unless you need something." - Kliff

"Wow! What crawled up your armor? You know, you've been testier than usual lately. Did I do something wrong?"

"Are you kidding? I thought I told you—" - Kliff

"Yeah, yeah. No small talk. Guess I forgot." - Tobin

"Or else you're doing it on purpose to get under my skin."

"Heh heh."

"I really can't stand when you do that." - Kliff

"Yeesh. Do you want to talk about it? Maybe need a hug?" - Tobin

"How can you be so NICE? I try to be nice, but other people just make me crazy. And when you let me take it out on you, I feel even worse." - Kliff

"So what? That's normal. You're my friend—I don't care if you give me guff once in a while." - Tobin

"Tobin." - Kliff

"By the Mother! Did you actually just start a conversation?" - Tobin

"Plus I'm not so nice— there are lots of things that tick me off. I just choose to let 'em slide. ...Except maybe when Alm or Gray show me up. I can't stand that." - Tobin

"Well, they ARE much better at fighting than you." - Kliff

"Hey!"

"Heh. Sorry. Couldn't resist."

Lukas & Python

"So you're saying that if I dig deep enough, I might find dirt on Clive?!" - Python

"I... wouldn't go that far. But I have heard tale that all the ladies of court would giggle as he passed by."
- Lukas

"Pfft. BOOO-RING. I mean, at least tell me they were SALACIOUS giggles."

"Come on, Lukas. Fill old Python in here. Is our Clive a dirty boy? Eh? Eeeeee? I promise I'll only tell my closest friends." - Python

"sigh Your decorum continues to amaze." - Lukas

"Hmm. I'll admit the mention of her doesn't quite seem to fire your loins. So what's the story? Don't you love her?" - Python

"Fire my...? Honestly, Python?" - Lukas

"Since being parted from her, I feel no particular longing to see her again. I sometimes wonder if a vital part of me is broken. I look at Clive and Mathilda and see... Well, you used the word 'fire.' But whatever it is that they have, I seem to lack it." - Lukas

"The 'one true love' thing isn't for everyone. Certainly not for me. And I dare anyone to tell ME that I'M broken." - Python

"So you think such lack of feelings are normal?" - Lukas

"Perfectly! If you ask me, Clive and Mathilda are the weird ones."

Tatiana & Zeke

"How cruel for the gods to unite us in such grim times. It grieves me to see you take up arms and put yourself in danger." - Zeke

"Don't say that. This way, we can be together. I'd rather stand with you than cower at home wondering if you'll even return." - Tatiana

"Promise me, Zeke—promise that we'll always be together." - Tatiana

"I swear it. On this and every battlefield, I will be at your side, keeping you from harm." - Zeke

"Hee hee. Good."

"The ringing of swords in battle calls up strange images in my mind. I see wars I can't possibly have waged... A past I cannot remember living..." - Zeke

"....." - Tatiana

"...We should not dwell on such thoughts. Please forget I spoke of it."

"Oh no! Are you hurt? Because I can heal you if—" - Tatiana

"Tatiana. You need not pretend this doesn't affect you." - Zeke

"I'm not pretending."

"I know you too well to be fooled. If your heart aches, you can speak of it."

"Hear me, my sweet. No matter how often the past invades my mind... none but you will ever enter my heart. I promise to be here for you always." - Zeke

"Oh, my love..." - Tatiana

"Now, shall we end this fight? Tomorrow awaits if we survive today."

Celica & Atlas

"Heh heh! Aw, a little scrap like this ain't nothing to worry about. Heck, I do this kinda thing to unwind!" - Atlas

"You talk like it's a tavern brawl! Though I wager the general idea's the same." - Celica

"More or less, yeah. So you can keep the orders coming!"

"Sorry, Lady Celica. I was just thinking of my little brothers and got a mite distracted. I hope they're doing all right." - Atlas

"I hope so, too. You must miss them most terribly." - Celica

"Yeah, but some things just have to wait."

"Well, I know you miss your younger brothers a great deal... So I thought, maybe it would help to think of me as your younger sister." - Celica

"Um...sorry?" - Atlas

"I know brothers and sisters aren't quite the same ... but, well, I thought it might help regardless."

"I knew you were kind, but you're also pretty dang interesting to boot! Makes me that much happier I signed on with you." - Atlas

"I-is that so? Well, I'm glad to hear it. At least...I think I'm glad?" - Celica

Celica & Conrad

"What's so funny?" -Conrad

"S-sorry, it's just...I know in my head it's you, but you just look so INTENSE with that mask on! It's like I have two different brothers." -Celica

"Aw, whaaat? C'mon! I'm the only brother you need!"

"Hee hee. Yes, you're right. One is MORE than enough."

"What happened to your mask?" -Celica

"I decided to stop wearing it when you're around. I mean, how could I keep it on after what you said last time?" -Conrad

"I was only teasing, Conrad. Please don't take it to heart."

"Even if you didn't mean it seriously, it's serious to me."

"Why can't you be as sharp and dashing as when you were the masked knight?" - Celica

"Wait, dashing? Daaaashing? Er, one second! [he puts his mask on] Any who dare lay a hand on my sister shall feel the sting of my blade!" - Conrad

"Hee hee! Yes! THAT'S the spirit!"

Celica & Mae

"Hee hee. You're always so full of energy, Mae." - Celica

"Yup! That's pretty much my one selling point. ...Well, that and zappin' fools. Now get ready, because I'm gonna help the heck outta you today!" - Mae

"It's just... well, I was wondering— Do you think girls should be all delicate and proper and junk?" - Mae

"Er, well, I suppose I think there's room for every girl to be herself." - Celica

"Wait, you mean it?! Aw, but you're super nice, so of course you'd say that."

"You're kind and cheerful, and you always encourage your friends to keep going. You're an absolute catch just the way you are. Have confidence in yourself!" - Celica

"Aw, geez... I'm blushing! ...I mean, hypothetically! We're still just talking hypothetically, right?" - Mae

"I'm proud to call you my friend, Mae, and I hope to do so for a long time." - Celica

"Of course, silly! We'll be besties forever!" - Mae

Celica & Nomah

"But please promise me that you won't overexert yourself." - Celica

"Bah! Stop treating me like a frail old man with one foot in the grave! ...Though I admit all this fighting DOES take a toll on my poor back." - Nomah

"I'm very sorry to hear it. Let me rub it for you."

"How's your back today, Nomah?" - Celica

"Lithe as a willow branch, thanks to you. But now my shoulder is giving me trouble. Old jousting injury, you see..." - Nomah

"Oh, you poor thing. Here, let me give you another massage."

"In truth, I don't think you've been in pain this whole time." - Celica

"Heh heh. Caught on to me, have you?" - Nomah

"You've always enjoyed your little jokes and japes. ...Uh oh. Here comes the enemy now. Let's go!"

"Ah! Yes. More...fighting. All right, Nomah, time to suck it up!"

Boey & Mae

"I mean, we studied magic and all, but... I guess I never really expected to be zappin' folks for real, is all."
- Mae

"Sure, but we always knew it was a possibility. The whole reason we trained was in case anyone learned the truth about Celica." - Boey

"Yeah, I know, but still."

"Do you...not want to fight? If this is too painful for you, you can just say so. It's all right. Really." - Boey

"Nah, this is great! Fighting lets me practice everything I've learned—plus it's fun to help Celica!" - Mae

"I...see. ... Well, now I feel like an idiot for worrying."

"...Er, you're headed back to the island, right?" - Boey

"...Yeah." - Mae

"Then that's where I'm going as well."

"Huh? Wait, what's that mean?"

"Are you really such a dope that you can't figure it out?"

"WAAAAAAT?!"

Catria & Palla

"How are you holding up, Catria?" - Palla

"All's well here, Palla." - Catria

"Oh good! That means I don't have to worry about you. Now Est, on the other hand..."

"Indeed. Though I imagine we should be used to worrying about her by now."

"And perhaps you're right. I have been rather dour lately, after all. I suppose it IS important to find joy wherever life happens to take you." - Palla

"I couldn't agree more. And I find the most joy in the smiles of my sisters." - Catria

"Well, that's very sweet."

"I, too, worry about our home. I hope Minerva is all right. And..." - Palla

"And what?" - Catria

"Well, I'm curious who it is that YOU were thinking of."

"What? Th-there's no 'who!' I was just... You can be so cruel sometimes."

Deen & Jesse

"Oh, hey! It's Deen, right?" - Jesse

"What do you want?" - Deen

"Nothin' much. Just thought I'd say hey, see what your deal is... Say, doesn't your face get tired from scowling all the time?"

"Did you have a point? Because if not, we're finished here."

"Look, you could at least pretend like you enjoy our little chats. C'mon! Tell me something about yourself! It won't kill you." - Jesse

"I don't talk about myself in front of annoying strangers. ...It's a policy." - Deen

"Look, at the very least, no one's died on me. And I haven't murdered anyone." - Jesse

"....." - Deen

"Did I hit a sore spot there? That's rough, man. Another person's life is a heavy weight to bear. To be honest, the reason it's not a deal for me is because I ran away from it."

"A man can't run forever. You seem like the sort who'll eventually have to deal with his own burdens." - Deen

"Woof, bite your tongue! That's a scary thought." - Jesse

"Heh..."

Est & Catria

"Yup! Made from a stone that a dragon held while it slept for three millennia. It'll make any wish come true! ...Er, supposedly." - Est

"Three thousand years? ... And even if that claim were true, it would still just be a stone, no?" - Catria

"Oh, yeah, I guess so. But...DRAGONS!"

"Anyway, it's tea made from an herb that only grows on a fire dragon's grave." - Est

"Gods, it smells like the bad end of an angry wyvern... But all right. I'll bite. What's it supposed to do?" - Catria

"It's chock-full of miraculous properties! ...That I forgot."

"Oh, you silly girl. Est, you don't need to worry yourself about that. Just having you around guarantees things will never be boring here. Please don't ever change, all right?" - Catria

"Aw, Catria... Hmm? Wait... Hmmmmmm... That was a compliment, right?" - Est

Est & Palla

"How are you feeling, Est?" - Palla

"Never better, Sis!" - Est

"Glad to hear it. Just don't do anything too risky, all right? Unlike Catria and myself, it's been a while since you were in a fight."

"Oh, posh! I'm fine. You always were a mother hen."

"What did I tell you? You need to stop being so eager to show off what you can do." - Palla

"Hey! That's not how I am at all! ...Okay, maybe it's a LITTLE how I am." - Est

"You see?"

"Ugh... It's embarrassing when you know me better than I do. But hey, that's my sister for you."

"...Is there a boy you like?" - Est

"Ngk..." - Palla

"Y-you know, here in this army?"

"What?"

"I mean, it's such a wonderful group, and full of really nice men! So if any of them caught your eye, I thought maybe I could...set you up?"

"Wow. I don't even know where to begin."

Genny & Sonya

"Hey now, there's no reason to shy away. Unless I did something...?" - Sonya

"N-no! You didn't! It's just... I don't really handle people like you very well." - Genny

"Well, that's certainly ominous."

"You don't have to apologize. It didn't bother me." - Sonya

"Maybe not, but it bothered me. I said what I did because... you remind me of my mother." - Genny

"Okay, NOW I'm bothered. I'm nowhere near old enough to have a kid your age!"

"But I wanted to share something with you. I also grew up in a priory, although it was my father who abandoned me." - Sonya

"Is that true?" - Genny

"Yes. And if I met a man who reminded me of him, I'd likely kick his face in."

"No! A-actually, I, um... I feel a little more comfortable after hearing what you said." - Genny

"Oh? That was quick. Well in that case, I suppose we can be bitter together." - Sonya

"Hee hee..."

"Ha ha ha."

Jesse & Saber

"Heh. I bet those tales ain't very flattering." - Saber

"Oh yeah. ... They DO say you're a shady character... but also damned good in a fight. ...And a few of 'em are about all the women you've left in your wake." - Jesse

"Oof. That's a scary thought..."

"Mmm, seems like kind of a waste if you ask me. Celica's the type who'd find you a good post once she's in charge, you know?" - Jesse

"Do I seem like some kinda royal-court kiss-up to you?! I just hope she don't make the world TOO peaceful and put me outta work." - Saber

"So, I've been thinking, Saber." - Jesse

"That's dangerous." - Saber

Leon & Kamui

"So...what then? Are you trying to get me to hit on you or something?" - Leon

"What? No! That's not what I'm—" - Kamui

"Because you're really not my type. And you're only a percent of a percent of the man Valbar is."

"Tell me something, Leon." - Kamui

"Something." - Leon

"Oh, you're a laugh riot."

"Oh, come on. No one's that perfect." - Kamui
"Someone is. And his name is Valbar." - Leon
"You are definitely kidding yourself..."

"I think that's the first time you and I have agreed on anything." - Kamui
"Listen, Kamui, I'm sorry. Really I am. This is all very flattering, but I just don't see you like that." - Leon
"I told you before, that's not what I'm— Oh, never mind!"

Leon & Valbar

"You're a rather handsome devil, and more than good in a fight. If you could just keep your mouth shut, I bet the ladies would flock to you!" - Valbar
"What are you going on about? And what in Mila's name do I want with a whole flock of women?" - Leon

"You and me are past tiptoeing around this kind of thing, so... You lost your whole family, right?" - Leon
"Yeah, I guess I did." - Valbar
"And yet you still fight for this world. That's quite impressive."

"I'll admit, there are times when the pain's so bad it leaves me numb. But that's because I was so damn happy when I was with 'em. It's all an even balance, you know? I got good enough for all the bad. Anyway, I avenged them, so there's no point in hanging on to hate." - Valbar

"I've my share of concern, the same as anyone else. Such as a not-insignificant case of unrequited love." - Leon
"...Oh. That." - Valbar
"Heh heh. But it's fine. ... I'm still glad I have these feelings, and nothing will change that."

[Memory Prism Quotes]

Amid the Flames

"You were very brave to hang on all by yourself, Your Highness." - Mycen
"It was terrible... I woke up and smoke was everywhere... It was hot, and it hurt, and... And no one came to help even when I yelled as loud as I could!" - Young Celica
"Well, I am here now."

"Your Highness, I... I checked every room on my way to you. There are none left alive. It pains me to say this, but I fear Conrad is no longer with us." - Mycen
"No... NO! Conrad!" - Young Celica

An Oath at Dawn

"Unfortunately, she's never been one for climbing trees or playing at the river. She's nothing like your Clair." - Forsyth

"If Clair hears you've joined the knights, she's liable to try and follow. She does abhor being left behind..." - Clive

"Ha ha ha! I've no doubt Clair will come to her senses. She's at the age where girls learn to embroider and be demure. She'll soon realize it best to leave the kingdom to us men." - Forsyth

"Embroidery needles are just weapons to her." - Clive

"No wonder—your father is a good and kind man. ... But he would be wise not to incur Desaix's displeasure. Not these days. I hope he knows how to play his cards." - Clive

"As do I. We all know what happened to Sir Mycen, after all." - Forsyth

May I Have This Dance?

"There is a little grove behind my manor. Inside is a flower garden where small birds gather ... On days of fine weather, I go there alone and dance until my feet... Ah! Forgive me. You must find this all so terrifically dull." - Rinea

"On the contrary." - Berkut

"Tell me your name." - Berkut

"It's...Rinea, my lord." - Rinea

"Rinea. A lovely name. Rinea, may I have the next dance?"

"Oh, I couldn't possibly! I mean, what would people think?" - Rinea

"Then we can dance here, away from prying eyes and wagging tongues. That is, if you do not mind the absence of your garden and birds?" - Berkut

"giggle Lord Berkut... You are too sweet."

The Lasting Promise

"Mycen, in all my years, I have never known a truer friend than you. You are the only man I can trust with this. Here." - Rudolf

"...An infant? Rudolf, is this your—" - Mycen

"My son, yes. ... His name is Alm. I want you to take him to Zofia and raise him as your own."

"I must awaken the people to their potential—their own strength—and stop them from leaning so hard on the blessings and precepts of gods. I know the people will rise up against me for what I do. But as a father... nothing would make me prouder than for Alm to lead them." - Rudolf

"Very well, my friend. I promise to take care of him. I'll do what it takes to make him the finest champion Valentia could ask for." -Mycen

"Thank you, Mycen. Good-bye, Alm. May you never forget how to be kind. When next we meet, my son...it will be on the fields of war." -Rudolf

Memories of the Villa

"Um...good morning?" - Young Conrad

"Morning? It's past noon! What were you doing under the bed?" - Young Celica

"I was hiding so the ghost wouldn't take me away."

"No, why would I be? I haven't done anything bad." - Young Celica

"Urk..." - Young Conrad

"Have YOU done something bad?"

"Urkkk... Um, well, I kinda accidentally... broke the vase in the great hall. Then I cleaned up all the pieces and buried them in the garden."

"That was you?!"

"Ah, wait! ...I'm kinda scared. Can I hold your hand?" - Young Conrad

"Conrad, you... Oh, all right." - Young Celica

The Flirt and the Faithful

"Hooo-ee! That was a close one. You good there, beautiful?" - Jesse

"Ee..." - Silque

"...Ee?"

"EeeeeeeaaAAAAAGH!"

"I'm headed for Ram Village. I have something I must deliver there." - Silque

"You mean that village way down south? Yeah, I think you took a wrong turn." - Jesse

"Oh? I didn't realize. I'm ashamed to admit I got a bit turned around as I was fleeing those bandits."

"May Mila's blessing shine extra bright upon Jesse's path. He sorely needs it..." - Silque

"Hmm? What'd you say?" - Jesse

"Oh, nothing. Nothing at all."

Drifter from a Distant Land

"Eek! Who's there?! Hmm... He appears badly wounded. Is he dead?" - Tatiana

"Rngh..." - Zeke

"gasp He's alive! Are you all right? Stay with me!"

"Nyna..."

"Huh? Is that someone's name? Agh, what am I doing? I need to go get help before he keels over!"

"My name is Tatiana. I work here at the church. What's your name?" - Tatiana

"I... My name is..." - Zeke

"Yeeees?"

"I cannot remember. Who am I? From whence did I come? These things are a mystery to me."

"Oh. ...Goodness."

"Why are you being so kind to me? What am I to you but a stranger?" - Zeke

"I wasn't aware kindness needed an explanation beyond itself. When someone is in trouble, you help them. That's common decency. And from the moment I saw you... I knew I couldn't leave you." - Tatiana

Leaving the Past Behind

"Do you think you might be able to pick up the pace, Python?" - Forsyth

"I could consider it—if we hadn't been marching nonstop since yesterday." - Python

"I'm sorry, are you whining? Was that a whine?"

"But joining the Deliverance ain't exactly a whopper of an idea. I hear they're a buncha mamby-pamby knights and stuck-up young nobles. Which means you'n me are walking halfway across Zofia just to be snubbed." - Python

"They would never do that! ...Er, probably." - Forsyth

"You? Scared? Well, slap my butt and call me a rented mule." - Python

"I try to keep it to a minimum. Now walk, mule! [he mimics a whip sound] Walk!" - Forsyth

Eventide Intrigue

"M'lord, that's... You want me to assassinate the king's own children?" - Slayde

"Do it, and when this sorry business is over, you shall be my right-hand man. Lands... Titles... The world has great things in store for you, Slayde." - Desaix

"Do not speak to me of mothers! ... Why should I fear a goddess too busy sleeping to leave her temple? The age of worrying about what the gods think of us has come to a end. The kingdom of Zofia needs a strong will to set it back on course—MY will." - Desaix

A Land of Gods and Men

"Why can you not understand? All living things are deserving of happiness. We can build that paradise for them here in Valentia—a world free of misery!" - Mila

"Nonsense. A world without misery is not the same as a happy one. Misery shapes men throughout their lives." - Duma

"Hardship makes them strong. Smother them with blessings, and they will never learn what happiness is."
- Duma

"So you would temper them with misfortune instead? Mankind faces trials enough without us burdening them yet more." - Mila

"I wish to be their salvation—the hands that dispel their grief and pain. It is our duty as gods to save them." - Mila

"Your love would only make them soft and lead them to depravity and ruin. Men are weak. Our duty as gods is to make them strong. Our hands must be firm." - Duma

"We must part ways. ... Let us vow to each seek our own ideals, and never trample upon the other's. ... Do we have an accord?" - Duma

"I tire of our fighting, my brother. An accord it shall be. Farewell, Duma. May your people find as much happiness as mine." - Mila
