

Leeor's Birthday Quarantine Bash

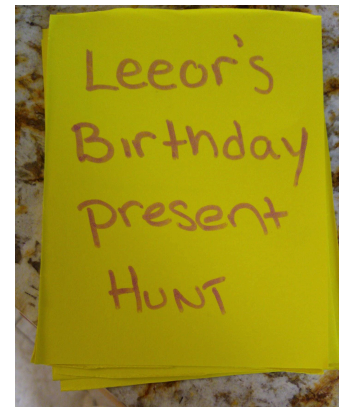

The night before Leeor decided on our schedule. Of course some of this varied but we did most of this.

She started by asking to play a game with Tom while Leila and I made the cake.

Most of you saw the pictures. Yum Yum!

We did play outside after and we read.

At 11:30 we did the infamous Present Hunt. But we did it with the family on zoom call. Most of the presents but one were from them anyway.

Tom and I organized this the day before and it was some nice quality time. I wrapped, he thought of where to hide the presents, and we both thought of the clues.

Then we had the lunch she asked for. Yum Yum again!

Zoom Dance Party

It was a blast!

After which we played Zombie Apocalypse as per request. Kids versus grownups. They got the base and the nerf guns and we weren't allowed to run (after all we are zombies) or climb up on their base. If we got shot 10 times we were dead. These nerf guns seriously hurt. They even had a base on the ground that they were safe. Imagine who thought of the rules for this game. After one game both my partner and I decided it wasn't too much fun. The kids were getting annoyed because their guns kept on jamming and it was dinner time anyway!

Anyway, we ended the night like this, dead zombies!:
