(Abstract) Prepare an abstract that presents the importance of the study, objective, method, results and conclusions. Avoid citing references. Observe the general rules of presentation according to the ABNT NBR 6028 standard. The abstract must be composed of a sequence of concise, affirmative sentences and not a list of topics. It is recommended to use a single paragraph. The first sentence should be meaningful, explaining the main theme of the document. Next, information about the treatment category (memoir, case study, situation analysis, etc.) should be indicated. The verb must be used in the active voice and in the third person singular. The following should be avoided: a) symbols and contractions that are not commonly used; b) formulas, equations, diagrams, etc., which are not absolutely necessary; when your job is essential, define them the first time they appear. Arial font, size 9, justified. In terms of length, abstracts should be between 100 and 250 words.

Keywords: Indicate from three to five words for the retrieval of the text content. Separate them with a dot (.) Example: Vaccines. Measles. Temporary table. Arial font, size 9, justified.

(Resumo)Translate the abstract into Portuguese language.

Palavras-chave: Translate the keywords into the Portuguese language.

INTRODUCTION

The introduction is the presentation of the work, that is, the initial text that clearly and succinctly describes the subject addressed. In this part, the delimitation of the subject of the research object must be addressed, the justification, which will describe the contribution and relevance of the research, emphasizing the importance of the theme both in the academic and professional scope and the objectives of the work (BICANCOLINO; MACCARI; RABECHINI, 2012). Arial font, size 12. Spacing: single with 6-point spacing afterwards, with the text arranged in a column. Alignment: justified. The citations must be according to the ABNT NBR 10520 standard

Subtitle

METHOD

This section should explain in detail the steps that were used for the development of the research. The type of research must be presented and the universe and sample of the research must be detailed, the techniques, materials and instruments used, the mechanisms for obtaining and processing data and approval by the Ethics Committee, if necessary.

RESULTS AND DISCUSSION

This section should contain the description of the results obtained, the analysis of the results and the confrontation with the literature and/or the use of the literature to explain the results.

FINAL CONSIDERATIONS

The final considerations should present the conclusion of the work, showing the reader convincing arguments that it was possible to achieve the objectives initially proposed, through the results obtained. They can present the aspects that limited the work and, finally, the themes for further studies.
