~~Don't you hate~~ Don't the annoying, subdued sounds you hear in cars bother you?

Wishing you had a quieter and more peaceful ride across the interstate.

Surely there is no car that could block out these sounds, right?

WRONG.

In this car, the single loudest noise at 60 MPH is the electric clock.

This begs the question,

What makes the Rolls Royce so peaceful and quiet?

Subject Line: How I 10X'd my driving experience

I used to drive an old, beat up BMW with incredibly loud, irritating noises.

The engine, brakes, suspension, you name it.

I HATED it.

Every week, I felt I would have to drag the piece of junk to a repair shop.

I would waste so much money on silly repairs for it to break down again the next day

My repairs were getting through the roof.

I wish I had stopped sooner.

However, I had cracked on the secret.

Soon enough, I found the single car I would ever need in my life.

Better than any other junk I had driven before.

Soundless.

So, are you actually serious about 10Xing your driving experience?
