Problem statement

Alcohol use disorder is a public health problem. In the Indian population. Nearly 15% of the population aged between 10 and 75 years consume alcohol. Converting these to absolute numbers, about 16 crore persons consume alcohol in India. Among the 16 crore alcohol users, about 5.7 crore individuals were found to be problem users (i.e., experiencing some problems with the use of substances), and about 2.9 crore individuals were identified as dependent users.¹ In spite of huge problems, only one in thirty-eight individuals with alcohol dependence ever receives treatment.

The National Mental Health Survey of India found the treatment gap to be 86.3% for alcohol use disorders. This emphasises the fact that there are a much larger number of individuals with substance use disorders than those who seek treatment.

Alcohol Use Disorder in Odisha – A Brief Note

Alcohol use poses a significant public health challenge in Odisha. According to the NFHS-5 (2019–21), around 30% of adult men and 4.3% of women in the state consume alcohol, with higher rates observed in rural and tribal populations. Among Particularly Vulnerable Tribal Groups (PVTGs) like the Bonda and Juang, alcohol use prevalence exceeds 60%, often beginning in adolescence.

A national survey by the Ministry of Social Justice & Empowerment (2019) estimated that over 2.1 million people in Odisha require medical or psychiatric intervention for alcohol use disorders, placing the state among the top 10 in the country in terms of treatment need.

Suggested options

The growing problem of addictions on the one hand and lack of trained service providers on the other has led to a huge “treatment gap” up to 75%. There is an urgent need to bridge this treatment gap in this specialized area of public health importance by exponentially increasing the skilled human resources. The total number of trained counsellors is very less, which is significantly inadequate to handle the problem of alcohol use disorder.

A brief about NIMHANS ECHO: Democratizing Knowledge

NIMHANS ECHO is an innovative capacity-building program that uses a HUB and SPOKE knowledge-sharing network, led by expert teams from the National Institute of Mental Health and Neurosciences (NIMHANS) in Bangalore, to provide training and tele-mentoring to healthcare professionals working in remote and rural areas of India. The “Hub” and “Spoke” model links an interprofessional specialist team at NIMHANS academic centre of expertise (the Hub) with health care providers (spokes). Each NIMHANS tele-ECHO session consists of spoke-led presentations of anonymized patient cases and discussion of the cases whereby the peers as well as hub experts provide advice on the diagnosis and management. This is followed by a brief didactic on a mental health-related topic. Using a smartphone app and multipoint videoconferencing, healthcare professionals are able to access live virtual sessions on a weekly basis, where they learn through case-based learning, best practices, and web-based monitoring for outcomes. Through routine engagement that involves coaching and mentoring in teleECHO sessions, healthcare providers become experts and, over time, acquire the knowledge and skills to treat patients with addiction and mental health within their communities.
