THE GAME BEGINS HERE

In a certain fantasy world far far away…

There exists a currently defunct ten-story dungeon designed to trap heroes and all who dares to traverse it.

At the bottom-most of the ten levels was the Demon King's room, which is now basically a dungeon control room.

Every day, the maids go about the humdrum, bureaucratic jobs of persuading event monsters to sit in place, maintaining the traps, fine-tuning the numbers of wandering monsters, and so forth. Since hardly anyone manages to penetrate into the depths of this dungeon, things have been very, very boring.

The two, no, THREE maids, Miyu, Morgan, and Kaede have been maintaining this adventurer death-trap ever since its owner, the Demon Lord Bob passed away in an unfortunate accident.

Morgan, in charge of commanding the monsters of the dungeon, could easily be mistaken for a corpse were it not for the whole moving around thing. Donning a black uniform with red hair and blue eyes, her more down-to-earth duties involve precisely what one would expect of a maid; keeping the place clean. Disposal of dead adventurers is a task she looks all too forward to.

Miyu, the young acting Demon Lord, may seem like just a sexy, wild looking tomboy, though will occasionally show herself closer to her true form, revealing a fox tail or her ears. Wearing a beige uniform, along with her vermillion hair and beige eyes, Miyu goes about her usually duties cleaning. When upset she will binge on any food she can find, but despite her binge eating she remains in peak athletic condition.

Kaede, the bespectacled beauty that acts as the trap master of the dungeon, is as snakey as a maid can get, both on the outside and in the inside. Wearing green attire that matches with her eyes and compliments her brown hair, a smug smile can always be seen in her face. Some would say that she uses her cunning to avoid doing the hardest parts of maid work, but she'll always deny it.

With these three hardworking maids(?), the dungeon has been well-maintained but uneventful. Up until now...

Bored with the repetitive everyday duties, Kaede came up with a proposal to her fellow maids.

“How about finding a new master?”

“A new master?”

“Yeah, wouldn’t that be great? Aren’t you girls bored with how things are now? Just think of the possibilities!”

“Well, with a new master, things could be more interesting.”

The girls continued discussing for a while. They eventually came to the consensus that it would certainly be convenient if someone appeared one day. Someone worthy to be their master…

1D6 => 6
Master Role = Princess of a Fallen Nation

The very next day, a lone girl appeared and collapsed at the dungeon entrance. She was a short, dark-skinned, albino-haired lolita girl with bright vermillion eyes. She looked harmless enough, so the three maids healed her.

She woke up soon enough, and recounted her tale to the three.

She was Princess Yasu, of the recently fallen Jack Country. Due to political unrest, the royal family was executed and the country reformed into the Republic of James. Unlike the rest of her family, she managed to escape alone.

But the imperial army is on her trail!

More fatigued than ever, Yasu has nowhere else to go, and asks the three maids to shelter her. Even if only for a small while.

One of the maids, remembering the consensus from yesterday, approached Yasu with an offer...

“Become our master.”

“Huh?!” The offer came out of nowhere for Yasu. What was going on? “What are you talking about?”

“It was her idea,” Morgan explained, pointing at Kaede. “We don’t have a master right now and she said we should find a new one.”

“Totally! There’s no reason for not accepting. We would get a cute new master, and you wou would get 3 excellent maids at your entire disposition. Sounds like a win-win situation, right?”

After more explaining, Yasu scratched her head. “So you want me to become a Demon Lord…?”

She was visibly hesitant, and perhaps understandably so.

“...Well, how about we go inside first? Then we can talk about this more.” She weakly suggested.

“How about you let us take you around the dungeon floors before you decide, let you see what being Demon Lord has to offer?”

Miyu said, while looking at the other two maids. They all understood. This princess could(hopefully would) be their new master. If there was a time to curry favor from her, it’s now. WIth that said, Miyu had taken the initiative in asking the Princess.

“Ah...erm, alright. Let’s go then.” And so the four began the tour.

The dungeon was a death lair for heroes, but luckily the maids have deactivated everything beforehand to go down and meet Yasu. Hopefully, they didn’t forget anything…

Random event roll. 1D6 => 1. A rampaging monster attacks!

Suddenly, a loud noise could be heard from inside. A wild dog, covered with scars and blood, appears and attacks the party!

“We gotta protect the master!” Kaede shouted

She suddenly took out a large piece of beef from god knows where and threw it at the animal.

Stat requested: Cunning. Kaede's Cunning = 4.
Wild monster attribute = 2.
Roll requested.
Kaede roll. 1D6 => 2. 4x2 = 8
Wild monster roll. 1D6 => 2. 2x2 = 4

The meat lands in front of the dog and made a juicy sound. The dog stopped for a moment before jumping on the meat instead.

Kaede used the meat to lure attention from the Princess! How cunning!

However, the beast is still in the dungeon.

Kaede receives 3 points of favor for being cunning.
