

Dimitri "Pathan" Molchalin and his brother Adrik Molchalin grew up in a small village called Maykol right outside of a town named Kustanay. The two brothers always have visions of being rich and assisting their friends in the community to thrive. In 1985 their village had a rebellion group named the "Kazakhs people's liberal army" fighting the USSR and communism. They had a large food farm there for their men. When the USSR invaded the town of Kustanay they took out the farming village as well. Their father was killed by the invading military. Upon his passing the two brothers along with their sister and mother fled to the city of Volgograd, where the brothers worked 14-hour workdays to provide for the family. 3 months later their mom fell ill and Passed away. The brothers as well as their sister took all the money and went to America. Once they hit New York City they reunited with their cousin Marc Molchalin. Marc had his own group of criminals that were selling Drugs and Guns out of the south side area. Marc gave control to Dimitri as Dimitri had a bigger vision on how to turn the unorganized group of criminals into a mass criminal organization, making life better for everyone.

First Dimitri hired all the criminals Marc had working for him and added two other people. Once their numbers grew, he made the syndicate ranking structure. Pathan - Derzhatel Of business affairs - Derzhatel Of internal affairs - Kapitan - Right hand man - Senior Soldier - Soldier - Veteran Associate - Associate - Hang around. After the reorganization, Dimitri finally made enough capital to get out of a cheap motel and established a restaurant named "luchshe vseh Pelmeni" and "The Krasny-Club Red". This was the beginning of their group's continued success.
