

Introduction to e-community service site

THE NEED

Most high school students and many college students are required—by their school or by student organizations—to participate in community service programs and earn a specified number of hours. Further, many high school and transfer students are eager to earn community service hours to enhance their college applications.

CURRENT BARRIERS

Many students report difficulty in finding community service opportunities.

Number of Opportunities

There are far more students than there are nonprofits (and most nonprofits do not have community service programs)

Scheduling

By the time you finish your after-school activities, most nonprofits may be closed for the day, and they are not open on the weekend.

Transportation

Even if you find an opening and a convenient time, transportation is often inconvenient, difficult, time-consuming, and often expensive.

Rewarding—Or Not

Too many community service opportunities are not very rewarding; countless students report doing things like running the copy machine or even filing papers for their teacher.

ABOUT CHANGING THE PRESENT

Changing The Present is a prestigious 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization, which The New York Times described as, “an Amazon.com of the nonprofit world.”

OUR NEW ONLINE/VIRTUAL COMMUNITY SERVICE PROGRAM

Due to COVID and improved technology, more and more people are enjoying the many advantages of working remotely. Now, you can enjoy the same benefits when you do your community service.

1. Flexible Schedule:

Our online e-community service program lets you work at your convenience. Whether you have a busy class schedule or extracurricular commitments, you can participate in community service without worrying about conflicting time constraints. No need to sacrifice your other obligations; you have the freedom to choose when to contribute.

2. Remote Work:

Say goodbye to commuting and hello to working from the comfort of your own home. With our online platform, you can complete your community service hours entirely online. Want to play music, eat snacks, work on a comfy couch with the dog in your lap, and wear something comfortable? No problem! Enjoy all the conveniences of working in your own space. All you need is a computer, tablet, or phone, and an internet connection.

3. Diverse Projects:

We offer a wide range of community service projects to suit various interests and passions. Whether you're passionate about education, environmental sustainability, social justice, cancer, mental health, animal welfare, or any other cause, we have opportunities that align with your values. You can also focus on K-12 education to help students like yourself. Choose a project that resonates with you and channel your enthusiasm into creating a positive impact.

4. Skill Development:

Engaging in our online e-community service opportunity allows you to develop valuable research skills that will benefit you in your academic and professional pursuits.

5. Networking and Connections:

Joining our e-community service program connects you with like-minded individuals who share your passion for creating positive change. Build a national network of friends, and future collaborators who can inspire and support you on your journey. Forge meaningful connections that extend beyond your community service commitment.

6. Automated Reporting and Recognition:

We provide you a web page, which automatically shows the time you worked and the tasks you did. That lets guidance counselor, club presidents, parents, college admissions offices, and others see what you have done.

It has never been so easy and convenient to make a positive impact on the world, satisfy your community service requirements, and enhance your resume.

7. Types of Projects:

Students will choose from among countless short tasks, each of which typically require five to ten minutes, so it is easy to sneak this into your busy schedule. Some tasks are research (such as finding the contact information for potential stakeholders, including nonprofits, college student organizations, K-12 school leaders, professional associations, or journalists). Others involve spreading the word of Changing The Present and its many opportunities for students, nonprofits, and schools. Students will not do fundraising.

Reporting

Our reporting tools make it clear and easy for everyone.

- We provide each participating student with a web page, which shows the time they spent on service, week-by-week. They can share it with guidance counselors, teachers, advisors, parents, colleges to which they apply, scholarship providers, or anyone else they want.
- We will also provide a page for each school and for the student organizations at each school so they can see the service hours from all of the students in their group.

Confirm Acceptability

Most schools we surveyed have said that online community service for a nonprofit is perfectly acceptable. Still, student should check with the appropriate people to ensure that this online community service is acceptable to their school or organization.

How to Get Involved

Participating in our online e-community service opportunity is easy. Simply visit our website and fill out the registration form. Once you're registered, you can explore our available projects, select the one that interests you, and start making a difference right away. Our user-friendly platform provides all the resources and guidance you need to ensure a fulfilling and successful experience.

Conclusion

Don't miss out on this fantastic opportunity to meet your community service requirements while enjoying the convenience of working online. Join our e-community service program today and make the world a better place, one project at a time. Together, we can create lasting change from anywhere, at any time. Visit our website to get started and embark on your journey of impact and personal growth.

Questions

Please address any questions to service@ChangingThePresent.org

Notice of Launch

To receive notice when we launch our new platform, please register here.