PHP Exercise

Develop a webpage in PHP that serves as a calculator for three different unit conversions (Both directions counts as 1… so, C to F and F to C count as one convertor). When the user clicks the "convert" button, the page should load another page that actually performs the conversion and displays the result.