

The Rabbit and the Lion King

One day, Rabbit was walking back to her home. Suddenly, Rabbit found a watermelon on the ground. Rabbit said, "Yay! I found a watermelon!" She got the watermelon and took it with him.

After a while, Rabbit found a toy rabbit and said, "Bye-bye, watermelon." She threw away the watermelon and picked up the toy. When Rabbit was almost at home, she saw a carrot on the mountain. So, she went up the mountain to get the carrot. But when Rabbit was about to pick up the carrot, Wolf jumped down from the tree and ate Rabbit alive. After eating, Wolf said, "This strategy is nice."

After that, Mommy Rabbit came looking for Rabbit, "Where is my daughter?" Mommy Rabbit went out to find her daughter. When Mommy Rabbit saw the carrot on the mountain, Mommy Rabbit knew that her daughter might be there because Rabbit loved carrots. When Mommy Rabbit went up and saw the blood, she knew that her daughter had been eaten. So, Mommy Rabbit ran away and asked for help from Lion King.

Mommy Rabbit said, "Lion King, please help me?" Lion King said, "Sure, but help you with what?" Mommy Rabbit said, "My daughter got eaten by Wolf." Lion King said, "Okay."

And they went up to the mountain. When they were up there, Wolf jumped and tried eating Mommy Rabbit. But Lion King jumped on Wolf and bit him. Afterward, Lion King gave Wolf to Mommy Rabbit for lunch.

Moral: Greed can lead to danger.
