

Can you choose to be smart?

How could these habits help make me more successful?

How do we know when we need to change and how do we change?

Why should people fail before they succeed?

Why get something wrong intentionally when/if you can get it right the first time?