

P-12 Utah State Standards for English Language Arts

Introduction

The P-12 Utah State Standards for English Language Arts (ELA) were revised by Utah educators in 2022 to identify the key literacy standards necessary for Utah students to master by the end of each grade level.

Organization

The Utah State Standards are organized into strands, which represent significant areas of learning within content areas. In ELA, these strands are speaking & listening, reading, and writing.

Within each strand are standards. All standards are considered essential to master. The skills in the standards require repeated exposure with increasingly complex texts and in increasingly sophisticated contexts. Mastery is only obtained by regular practice over time.

Shifts in the Standards

Changes in the standards were made to improve the consistency and practicality of the standards. These changes include:

- The standards were reduced, simplified, and clarified.
- Phonological Awareness was added in grades 2 and 3.
- The Reading Literature (RL) and Reading Informational (RI) standards were combined where it was most logical.
- The language strand of standards was woven throughout the reading, writing, and speaking & listening strands.
- Much like 9-10 and 11-12, 7th and 8th grade standards were banded.
- References to specific texts were removed from the standards in an effort to broaden representation and enhance local control over curricular choices.

Speaking and Listening Strand

The following standards for P-12 offer a focus for speaking and listening instruction each year to help ensure that students gain adequate mastery of a range of skills and applications. Students develop useful interpersonal skills for the classroom and workplace by having the opportunity to listen to each other, respond appropriately, and evaluate what they hear from a variety of sources. The standards stress preparing for and participating effectively in a range of conversations and collaborations. Students advancing through the grades are expected to meet each year's grade-specific standards and retain or further develop skills and understandings mastered in preceding grades, including but not limited to, communication and interpersonal skills.

Reading Strand

The following standards for P-12 offer a focus for reading instruction each year and help ensure that students gain adequate exposure to a range of texts and tasks. Students advancing through the grades are expected to meet each year's grade-specific standards and retain or further develop skills and understandings mastered in preceding grades by reading increasingly complex texts throughout the grades. Texts should reflect a variety of cultures, perspectives, and backgrounds. Some standards may include an (RI) for Reading Informational or (RL) for Reading Literature to indicate the type of text used to meet the standard.

The Reading Strand includes the foundational skills which are not an end in and of themselves; rather, they are necessary and important components of effective, evidence-based reading instruction to develop reading proficiency with the capacity to comprehend texts across a range of types and disciplines. Some readers will need much more or less practice with these concepts than other readers. The point is to teach students what they need to learn in order to be successful, proficient readers.

An important part of comprehensive reading instruction is that students acquire and then use accurate academic and domain-specific words and phrases, sufficient for reading, writing, speaking, and listening. The reading standards weave in language standards focused on vocabulary and language comprehension. These will help students develop independence as readers and writers when considering a word or phrase important to comprehension.

To have students excel in reading, they must be immersed in challenging texts. Students must be engaged in discussions of texts and write in response to texts. Then, reread the texts and talk about them again. Students can come back to them later to compare with other texts or synthesize the information from multiple texts for presentations or projects. Be sure to ask students questions that are relevant to the understanding of those texts. Focus on whether students are arriving at deep interpretations of the texts and can use the information. Reading comprehension is about making sense of texts.

Text Complexity Grade Bands and Associated Lexile Ranges

Writing Strand

The following standards for P-12 offer a focus for writing instruction each year to help ensure that students gain adequate mastery of a range of skills and applications they should address increasingly demanding content and sources. Students advancing through the grades are expected to meet each year's grade-specific standards and retain or further develop skills and understandings mastered in preceding grades. Students will learn to research, plan, revise, edit, and publish. These skills are applicable to many types of writing such as opinion, argumentative, informative/explanatory, and narrative. The standards stress the importance of the reading-writing connection by requiring students to draw upon and write evidence from literary and informational texts.
