

I would like to issue a proper apology to Deed and Silver for my participation in the defamation campaign against them by The Cloud Palace

For those who follow me from Bluesky and not anywhere else, i would heavily recommend watching Deed and Silver's video first, it's a long and hard watch but if you can handle it, it's very well made and informative about the subject and there are other public videos about the group and the awful people who were involved in the group out there if you want to learn more

I am sorry for a lot frankly

- for going along with the Lies about them and their views perpetuated by people in that server
- for choosing to go along with Deed's dehumanization from the group for until now
- for not pushing back against any of these statements or approaching either of them to confirm if any of these statements were true even for the past 3 years and for choosing to enable the environment of The Cloud Palace that got so many people hurt
- for choosing to read the worst possible interpretation of what was presented to me such as me comparing one of Silver's tweets praising Deed as a "cry for help" among the other statements I've posted in there that I don't stand by
- for continuing to follow Silver on social media and showing support despite my participation
- for the fact that I had forgotten about my participation and moved on as if nothing ever happened
- and for keeping the main perpetrators of the defamation campaign against them as friends for as long as I did and being blind to any and all red flags

regardless of my reasons and circumstances for choosing to go along with this, I feel ashamed for having taken part in this knowing how much this has hurt Deed and Silver over the course of the last few years, the regret and guilt has weighed heavy on me ever since I had the confrontation call with Deed and Silver reminding me about this, I recind anything I've said about Silver and Deed inside of or relating to anything within the thread, while it doesn't mean I get to take back anything I said, I want to at least show that I do not stand by what I've said and done, genuinely, I wish nothing but the best for both of them and hope that the pain I contributed to is able to heal one day

If you do not want to forgive me for my actions or think that this doesn't change the fact I still choose to go along with the worst behaviors of that group at all, that's fine, I'm not posting this to save face or to undermine my actions, I'm posting this so I can actually take responsibility and accountability for my actions and prove that at the bare minimum, i can do better than most of the other people who were in The Cloud Palace, those who refuse to look inward and recognize the damage their actions have done and would rather run away from the consequences they brought onto themselves as if they didn't do anything wrong, my actions and statements contributed to various problems with the group as a whole that caused needless harm to others and I'm not going to pretend they didn't, all i can do is try to be better and learn from my fuck ups so they don't happen again

Additionally I do wish to add that given the nature of The Cloud Palace and the atmosphere within it when it was around, this is not the first mistake I've had to take responsibility for and it probably won't be the last, given the fact i joined this chat when I was a young teenager (16 if i recall correctly), I've done and said some of the dumbest things in my life in this server and i do not stand by the things I've said or done in there about or to other people, I've struggled knowing how many people I used to consider friends turned out to cause so much damage to other people or how I considered any of them trustworthy in the first place, but that doesn't change that I still went along with the things that were said and done and helped to foster such a harmful and disgusting environment through my inaction and refusal to speak up, if anyone else has been personally affected by anything I've said about or to them in the cloud palace or just my time in the SCC in general, my DMs are open to you, either here or on my discord and I am willing to take accountability anything else my mind has chosen to forget wherever possible in whatever form that may take

