Mothers of Murdered Columbus Children Gathers Community Leaders to Launch Operation Under Triple Digits.

Crime Prevention Strategic Planning Meeting Scheduled for January, 13th, 2024, 1:00-4:00pm

Columbus, OH—Mothers of Murdered Columbus Children in partnership with Columbus Division of Police, community and government partners is launching Operation Under Triple Digits in response to citywide violence. In 2023, the City of Columbus had 148 homicides. Operation Under Triple Digits seeks to bring homicides in Columbus under a 100.

"In the midst of the violence, I see a glimmer of hope in which we are going to collectively come together and unify our efforts in an intentional way," said Malissa Malissa Thomas St. Clair, Founder of Mothers of Murdered Columbus Children.

Operation Under Triple Digits is a citywide collaborative initiative that will use crime data to drive intentional decision making of community organizations, residents, local media, Faith based networks, businesses, elected officials, corporations, law enforcement and all stakeholders that desire to reduce crime and rebuild a safer Columbus.

"We're all on the same page," said Chief Bryant. "We all have that same mission. We want to see this violence in our city reduced or stopped completely."

Mothers of Murdered Columbus Children is committed to proactive, positive action to promote peace and support mothers who have lost children to violence in Columbus, Ohio. They support the whole family, their loved ones, and all who care for those gone too soon by murder.
