Be sure to review all Week 4 content before your mini-group discussion.

Each week, I will provide discussion prompts. During your discussion, select 1 group member to take notes and compose a discussion reflection/summary according to the prompt. These reflections will be submitted as a "reply" to my weekly post in our "mini-group reflections" forum.
Please include your group name/meeting time in the top line of your reply (example: Wed 4-5 group reflection).

Group Discussion Prompt (60 min)

Open Pedagogy (30 min)

What did you think about the argument that part of our social justice work in the classroom could be to include our students in the creation of knowledge and resources for the commons? How about the conversations about "disposable assignments" and their impact on student engagement? How can you see using open pedagogies/practices in our context?

Cohort reflection (30 min)

During part 1 of this cohort, we dug into OER and copyright basics, culturally responsive teaching, universal design and open pedagogy.

- What is sticking with you?
- What do you want to do next? How will you continue to explore?
- What are you going to apply? How?

Group Reflection

A brief (paragraph or so) post-discussion reflection should be submitted by 1 member from each group. This can be written, or, consider experimenting by submitting a short voice recording or video instead.

- What are your mini-group takeaways from the content and discussion this week?
- Were there sticking points or difficulties that you navigated during this discussion?

Final Part 1 Reflection

Required
In addition to your group post this week, I would like every cohort member to individually post their Final Part 1 Reflection in our "Final Part 1 Reflection" thread.
