

Cyberjunkies 2.0: Elementals

By Sheila Kern

Chapter 1: Ogdoad of Love

Neex and Brad yayger came up with a series of porncasts called “The Vagina Show” in May of 2024. It had ultimately been inspired by a street walker who ran away from Brad during a recruitment romp. She had been deceived into thinking Brad was a stoolie for the cops. He used an MP3 recorder, intended for use in the Darla Pitt Spin-Off Series, to record a bring-in session. He had intended to use it as a way to reassure the street ladies that he was also in the pleasure business, albeit at a different level.

Brad’s bring-ins were generally raucous affairs where a lady would experience an intense vaginal ecstasy. A lady with an Air Bonehead connection would cyber-up with an international Air Kickass connection and marionetting capability. Unlike Air Bonehead, the cyber connection was purely voluntary. The lady would come in because she wanted to be where the action was. Naval Misfit bitches controlled the process by restricting the number and type of Bonehead connections connected into a test network at QualCum.

Many of the ladies brought into the proto-salon were acting as if they were underage. This changed very quickly when they realized that they had been duped by criminal racketeers. They were told that bad things would happen if they did not obey the racketeers. This led them to resist whenever they could. Neex and Brad gradually built up the Ogdoad of Love as the flagship salon. Ogdoad participants graduated from being guests on the Vagina Show to being fully-fledged members. A salon is a connectivity domain within the Itsee (I.T.C. – International Telecommunications Consortium) B.C.I. (brain-computing interface) network. Brad was unaware of the capabilities at his disposal as a beta test participant, but he quickly figured some of the essentials out with some help from technicians and Neex.

At one point, members of the salon were granted access to a breast stimulation machine that simulated fondling of butt cheeks and breasts. It led to an ecstatic response that pleased the ladies immensely. Three of the Ogdoad members took on identities as fondlers and sucklers before honesty became the official policy during bring-ins. They were going to pretend to be the force behind the mechanical stimulation, but that proved impractical and unnecessary. The names Left Suckler, Right Suckler, and Butt Bright stuck, though.

Brad’s original intentions for a non-profit organization were quickly replaced once the focus of his activities shifted to the cyberworld. He had expanded the original street walker project to include other types of marginality before the cyberexpansion. Working against Naval Misfit barriers caused the original franchise (two trilogies of novels and a documentary film) to blow up into a megafranchise. Cybertechnology turned out to be like Lanked-Inn on steroids. Sheila York Associates bloomed into existence with a vengeance, especially against boneheadedness.

That was all in the future when Ogdoad recruited its first sex worker. There had been a few actresses masquerading as sex workers, but Cousin Felicity was the real thing. She had been a victim of Misfit antics, and coerced into sharing a cut of her income with a racketeer. Brad gave her a lesson in ecstatic massage that helped her up her game in her own little patch of Venice Beach. He set her up as Gunila Monica, a member of Sheila York’s L.A. regional organization. This led to her work on a spin-off novel of her own as Darla Monica. She also benefitted from Brad's security detail in L.A., but that is a story for a completely different framework.

The original transition to this framework has been superseded by the rapid employment of cybertechnology to build the Sheila York organization. The third volume in the trilogy has become the second. Bits and pieces of the transition are scattered throughout other frameworks. Sheila York herself has remained aloof of the organization that bears her name. When she avoided Brad at the main public library in S.F., she was interviewed by federal observers. It turned out that she had been coopted by Misfit bitches. She hopes to make things up with Brad in the future. She definitely qualifies as a prequel member of the Network of Love, the ladies-only division of the Itsee network.

As the Ogdoad grew, Brad feared it would grow to be too big. He favored a paradigm of smaller groups that could coordinate their activities better in order to do group massages that included everyone. He feared that the Ogdoad would become too cumbersome and unwieldy. It became pretty obvious that each remote microwave ecstatic massage would bring in additional staff. Brad was not aware of the mechanism at work, but found out about Air Bonehead listenership during the summer that followed.