Cvičení 3 – Take a minute now to recall how we use words like that in English and the corresponding words ten, ta, to in Czech. The forms ten, ta, to are used when we are talking about someone or something specific. This is much like how the words that or the are sometimes used in English.

Example – Remember that guy we saw at the film last night? – We both saw him together, so I'm trying to get you to remember that specific guy we both saw.

Keep this in mind as you come up with sentences for the hypothetical situations below:

1. You saw a bunch of books on the kitchen table when you came home, but when you come back after a while they're no longer there. What might you ask your roommate? kde - 'where'

_____

2. You see some guys across the room at a club meeting that have never been before. You think your friend might know them. What do you ask them?

_____

Cvičení 4 - Create a powerpoint/google slides presentation with 4 sentences using images that introduce a character and their possessions. You may use images from your own life or images from the internet. Try to use vocabulary from Unit 1, but you may also use a dictionary to look up new words (simple common items and people will be best for now). Each sentence should contain either one or two images.

To je můj kamarád Tomáš a to jsou jeho psi .
