On the first day of school students will walk fairly quickly into the beautiful classroom and bow before my shoes, screaming "Great Balls of Fire!" They will cry from fear and awe of the beauty of our amazing classroom decorating skills and the shine of my shoes. TLC will create a show based on our awesome decorating skills. It will be hosted by Honey Boo Boo.

We are excited to eat lunch and improve our the English skills too!! We won't be drinking coffee, because it's a caffeinated drug..aka elixir of the gods. We will most likely complain that our teachers get to drink it and we don't. We will look longingly at the Red Bull Fountain set up in the teachers lounge, and there will be much weeping and gnashing of teeth as we go through withdrawal. We are also excited about field trips that we will be going on this year.

We are not ready to eat vegan sloppy joes, corn on the cob, and all the fruits and veggies that my mom can't get me to eat at home. Why does the State Fair sell corn on the cob to be exact? I don't know why they sell it, it's way overpriced.

The first impression I want students to have is that school can be a fun place to be bored and that a lot of learning will be happening.
