

Open Pedagogy - Examples

The purpose of this document is to generate 15-20 examples of Open Pedagogy (quadrant 1) by March 13, 2015. And, please add/edit/comment on the matrix too. Triggered by <http://opencontent.org/blog/archives/3761>

	Open (Resources & Approaches) practices that are possible when adopting OER but are impossible when you adopt traditionally copyrighted materials”. Use of OER, requirement for students to work out in the open: create and share their work	Not Open (Resources & Approaches) what we might think of as “traditional” - costly “closed” textbooks, learning community activity limited to the f2f classroom or behind an LMS firewall
Learning Centered authentic, flexible, learning-centred (vs. content or instructor-centred), creative assignments that invite	-----> We want 15 - 20 examples in this quadrant - either ones you know about or new ones you design <----- 1 innovative learning-centered design supported by vast affordances of	3 great learning design, using “closed” resources, and conducted in “closed” spaces...examples:

The purpose of this document is to generate 15-20 examples of Open Pedagogy (quadrant 1) by March 13, 2015. And, please add/edit/comment on the matrix too. Triggered by <http://opencontent.org/blog/archives/3761>

	Open (Resources & Approaches) practices that are possible when adopting OER but are impossible when you adopt traditionally copyrighted materials". Use of OER, requirement for students to work out in the open: create and share their work	Not Open (Resources & Approaches) what we might think of as "traditional" - costly "closed" textbooks, learning community activity limited to the f2f classroom or behind an LMS firewall
Learning Centered authentic, flexible, learning-centred (vs. content or instructor-centred), creative assignments that invite	-----> We want 15 - 20 examples in this quadrant - either ones you know about or new ones you design <----- 1 innovative learning-centered design supported by vast affordances of	3 great learning design, using "closed" resources, and conducted in "closed" spaces...examples:

Tab 2

