

How to Get Maximum Return on Your Solar Panel Investment.

Sydney homeowners are losing thousands each year from dirty solar panels alone. When you first got your solar panels installed, like us I'm sure you were amazed at the savings. However, as time went on the bill started gradually increasing because of a couple of key factors. Birds can cause damage to your property and their droppings can reduce the lifespan of your solar panels. Over time, they can also bring unwanted debris, mites, and diseases. Clogged or overflowing gutters are an accelerated result from the presence of birds. They drop seeds which grow into plants which clogs the draining system. Clogged gutters can be a fire hazard for Sydney home owners in the summer. So what are possible solutions?

Yes you could clean them on your own, but it's not recommended unless you have the credentials. Hiring a solar installer is an option, but expensive, and it leaves you unsatisfied because you are not their priority. Lastly, just like your car, after the rainwater dries up, it can leave a thin layer of pollutant which causes damage. As you can see, a lot more goes into the protection of your home just from the solar panel side of things. After a quick investigation I found that these factors were common for Sydney homeowners, so I wanted to help.
