Final 2D Art Drawing Coronavirus Project

Picture:

Artist Statement:

These are my drawings for my final 2D project. I chose to draw three drawings related to coronavirus.

The first drawing on the top left corner is a drawing of a boy wearing a mask. The mask relates to coronavirus, because wearing a mask is one way to prevent getting COVID-19. The second drawing in the bottom left corner shows a girl looking outside of a window at the world. This shows how me and many others feel during quarantine. I personally feel trapped in my home, and the only way I see the outside world is digitally, and I also think that many other people feel the same way. The last drawing is a drawing that appreciates and shows the work of doctors and nurses on the frontlines. They are doing everything to stop coronavirus and to support America, and other countries. I chose to draw this because I give all my appreciation to the brave doctors and nurses working 24/7 to keep COVID-19 at bay, and I want to also raise awareness about what they have been doing, and that we need to appreciate them. I used some sketch pencils, a sketchpad, and blending stumps. I was overall really happy about the result of these drawings. I discovered that using a blending stump is difficult, because smears get everywhere. I hope the viewer learns about how these drawings relate to coronavirus, the unlimited respect doctors and nurses need, and the challenges humanity went through during the COVID-19 Pandemic.
