

Friday Breakfast:

Karin: Good morning welcome to the Garden of Eatin' in beautiful downtown Midland. But umm we are a small café did someone make reservations? I am not sure if we can accomodate a party this large... Sandy can you check and see if there is room?

Sandy: Umm sure. [sneak in the dining room and make sure everything is set to go] when they are singing come back out]

Karin: so while we are waiting to see if we can accommodate you. Do you have any special talents? I see you have some women here with guitars... are you a traveling singing group or something? ... maybe your guitar gals can play a tune or something to pass the time... just please no elevator music. Something that has more color in it would be perfect!

All in color.....

Sandy comes back during song. Sandy whispers to Karin status of breakfast set to go or need a couple more minutes...

Karin: So you are in luck this morning. Apparently, Janelle, one of your guitar players, called ahead and made reservations. You guys should sing for a living or something!

Sandy: Come on in and enjoy your breakfast!! ☺

Friday Lunch:

Ignore team and candidates...

Karin: Man those women who were singing to us this morning were great! I can't believe they just learned that song. I am a little suspicious.

Sandy: They just learned that song?! WOW! I need to see if they are a popular choir or something! That is true talent. Those guitarists were so entertaining too! The way they strum those strings and can sing at the same time!

Karin: I know. I can't do two things at once like that. I would look like this if I was playing a guitar while singing [air strum guitar, pause, "and the baby chickens say pee oh pee oh pee oh I have to pee", pause and air strim again]

Sandy: [interrupts and pokes Karin]: How much experience do you have at this job?

Karin: I have a lot of experience... like 4 hours or something. Why?

Sandy: Because you are talking about them and they are standing right here. Good afternoon ladies. You are back!!! We are so glad to have you. I hope that someone made reservations so you don't have to wait again. Maybe you can sing that song again while I go check.

Sandy leaves and checks on status.....

Singing song once.... Sandy comes back

Karin: Wow that was awesome. I love that song. Maybe the next time you guys come back to Midland I can tape you. You can be a YouTube sensation or something! I can make it go viral by sending it to Ellen Degeneres or something!

Sandy: Ladies we are ready for you. Gosh I am so glad you like it here. Maybe you can spread the word about our service to others! Enjoy your lunch!

Friday Dinner:

Karin: [look at Sandy]: Wow today shure has been a busy day! I hear those singing gals are coming back for dinner! Maybe they cansingthat colors song about the rooster and his family!

Sandy: Do you think we can learn that song and sing it with them? I heard their bus as some engine problems and they will be staying the night at local motels.

Karin: I wonder what motels. I know Motel 6 down the road always leaves the light on... that would be good for the choir director because I heard someone chatting earlier that she is scared of the dark.

Sandy: [look at the candidates/team] Oh you gals did come back!! How was your lunch? Glad to hear you enjoyed it so much you came back!!

Karin: Can you sing that rooster color song for us again? Your voices are amazing and your guitarists [pause].. wow. They know how to strum their gutars! Sandy can strum a guitar better than me?

Sandy: Why yes I can!!! WATCH THIS!!! [pull out Jackson's guitar]

Karin: Well let's hear them do it and maybe you can accompany them.. it might be better.

Sandy: Let's sing it girls!!!

All in color....

Karin and Sandy: You all earned a free dinner with that beautiful singing! C'mon on in. dinner is on the house!!