To the Rockville Town Council,

Enough is enough! As a property owner in Rockville, I am fed up with the dictatorial practices that plague this town. It seems only a select few wield all the power, staunchly blocking any development on our rightfully owned land.

For years, my attempts to build have been thwarted by one baseless obstruction after another. Initially, my lots were deemed illegal. Next, the town cried scarcity of water, a claim invalidated when Andersen proved his well and water rights. The latest excuse? Fears over a septic system located miles from any town well. Yet, even after your attorney and mayor acknowledged the legality of these lots, and a permit was submitted, you swapped the attorney for a so-called non-legal expert who, under pressure, conceded the lots are indeed legal.

During Andersen's planning and zoning meeting, Commissioner Jane Brennan outrageously accused an audience member of profanity he never uttered, losing her temper and attempting to expel him. Despite the planning and zoning's 3-2 approval of the permit, the town council shamefully overturned it, continuing to seek dissenters to support their baseless position.

I am disgusted by Pam Leech's inclination to prioritize venture capitalists for the largest resort in the Zion corridor over the town's property owners. Jane Brennan's habitual threats towards public members, applicants, and commissioners are unacceptable. The arbitrary creation of ordinances by Jane and Pam, like the nonsensical 800 sq/ft footprint rule, serves only to hinder us further.

I am also outraged by the clandestine real estate transactions that Vicki and Pam orchestrate for their gain, excluding the wider community.

The level of corruption is staggering, and it must end now. We demand fair treatment and accountability. Consider this a call to action, as the eyes of the entire community are upon you.

Sincerely,
John Holm
