Renee Liming

What is Your Legacy?

How do you want to be remembered? What are your core values and are you living those values daily? Do you know yourself well enough to identify those values?

Renee will help you answer these questions and more as she encourages you to write your own life story, your legacy, for future generations to enjoy.

By identifying your core values and what is important, you will determine how you will be remembered. If you feel your life is not currently aligned with your core values, it's not too late to change course and lead a purposeful life in order to leave the legacy that you want.
