

Aksan Mykhailo Valeriiovych

General information

PhD, assistant professor at the Department of Surgery №1 of the Bogomolets National Medical University. In 2017, he graduated from the Bogomolets National Medical University. From 2017 to 2020, he completed his internship in the specialty of “Surgery” at the Department of Surgery №1, where he also worked as a senior laboratory assistant. From 2020 to 2024, he studied in graduate school at the same department. In 2024, he defended his dissertation titled “Methods of Surgical Correction of Postoperative Scar Deformity of the Perianal Area” and received his PhD degree.

Medical and Professional Activity:

He performs medical and consulting work at the Proctology Department of the Municipal Enterprise “Kyiv City Clinical Hospital #18.” Specializes in performing flap plastics for complex perineal pathologies.

Scientific Activity:

He is engaged in research in the field of surgery, specifically coloproctology. He has authored 6 scientific publications, including 4 articles (3 as the sole author) and 2 abstracts presented at scientific and practical conferences. He actively participates in scientific conferences and congresses in Ukraine and abroad, including UEG Week (Vienna, 2022), the 5th Congress of Coloproctologists of Ukraine (Kyiv, 2022), ESCP (Vilnius, 2023), ESMO (Barcelona, 2024), and UEG Week (Berlin, 2024).

Memberships and Positions Held in Scientific, Professional, and Public Organizations:

He is a full member of:

- European Society of Coloproctology (ESCP)
- European Society for Medical Oncology (ESMO)
- European Association of Surgical Oncology (ESSO)

Awards and Honors:

None

Public Activity:

He is actively involved in public projects aimed at raising awareness about health issues. His participation in various educational programs and events allows him to engage young people in medical initiatives. He organizes training sessions and seminars for medical practitioners and shares his experience and knowledge with colleagues, which contributes to the enhancement of professional skills within the medical community.