F-Zero GX - Quarter 2 2025 Player Activity, Videos and Updates

Compiled and written by AKC12 - July 14, 2025

GX and F-Zero series news and content

- The Switch 2 has been released and F-Zero GX is playable on it via Switch Online!
 - Switch 2 runs can be submitted to F-Zero Central now that the website now requires a system to be selected when submitting new runs for all games.
 - Unsurprisingly there is significant additional input delay even when playing by yourself. I don't expect any WRs to be set on the Switch 2 unless this is somehow addressed.
 - There is currently no known method to unlock the Gold Parts that requires use of a cheat or other methods.
- The GX Unleashed tournament has concluded. Click on the link to see who won and the full bracket!
- Elite Spud ran a Story Mode Very Hard speedrun at a Sega themed GDQ Hotfix event with the Story Mode speedrun WR holder Artful Hobbes on comms! Check it out here, especially if you're interested in running the category!
-  — FZC Community Update March/April 2025 —
-  — FZC Community Update May/June 2025 —
- I've made several new additions to the GX Combined Time Attack Leaderboard spreadsheet
 - There are three sheets that let you easily compare times. (Video demo of the first two)
 - The first compares one player's times versus another player.
 - The second compares a player's times versus Rank X times, where X can be any rank.
 - The third compares two sets of records of your choosing. You can filter them by machine, category, side attack use, date and more.
 - I've added two new categories. No Side Attacks Max Speed with D and E Custom Body parts banned, and the Expanded Max Speed version of it. This is the ruleset that muumu decided to play by which was then adopted by a number of other notable players over the years.
 - I added a feature that provides a full list of runs that match the criteria you provide. It provides a data summary of the runs, represented by tables and pie charts, which can be filtered by Player, Machine, Category, Custom Parts and date range. Gain insights on specific players, data on the most used machines on a particular course or category and more by utilizing this powerful tool!
 - To adjust the filters and the players you want to display times for, you'll need to create a copy of the spreadsheet, which can be done through the File menu.

Aeri has now cemented themselves in the top 60 in course total time by breaking the 48 minute barrier! Notable improvements are a 2 minute flat run in Aero Dive with Gallant Star-G4 and a 1'04 in Serial Gaps with Fat Shark. They also set PBs in Half Pipe and Undulation.

I'm slowly getting back into GX Time Attacking, which was especially helped by the game being playable for the new system and a particular FZD challenge that caught my interest, which was setting a no side attack Multiplex time with a custom machine with restrictions. I decided to trial Valiant Wizard-FX, which is comprised of the Valiant Jaguar body (B Grade), the Maximum Star cockpit and Hornet-FX, an A grade booster that is very similar to Triple -Z, except it trades away a bit of acceleration for more weight and a higher Boost Strength.

I ended up with a 1'44"552, which wasn't too far behind the overall custom machine WR that heavily used side attacks with Gallant Star-G4. That made me want to go for the custom machine WR by using Dread Wizard-FX. And it didn't take me too long to do it, and I was able to sub 1'40 as well!

I have since improved it further but only after the cut off I set for this article.

I focused primarily on Hyper Speeder runs for GX Unleashed. Hyper Speeder is among my favorite machines in base GX and was the first non-meta machine I specialized well over a decade ago. I also wanted to know how it performed in a variety of tracks. It performed especially well in Multiplex and Thunder Road.

I also did a few no side attack runs on Aero Dive with machines with long boost durations. The King Meteor and Golden Fox runs utilized a skip that Skivekt has first utilized in his base GX runs, so I implemented it on lap 1 in those runs which saves between 1 to 2 seconds.

Baphy makes a strong return to the time attacking, constantly setting new PBs across 18 different courses! By July 1st he very nearly has broken the 43 minute barrier and has entered the top 20 in AF score and course total! He has a number of PBs in this period that are ranked in the top 20 - Loop Cross, Drift Highway, Aero Dive, Mobius Ring, Serial Gaps, Dragon Slope, Slim-Line Slits. He is showing great proficiency with all machines, but particularly custom machines.

Elite Spud continues to climb the Story Mode ranks by gaining 3 positions into 17th place! Key to this leap are new PBs in Chapter 2, but they have also improved their PBs in 6 of the chapters in Very Hard difficulty in preparation for the GDQ Hot Fix run that happened back in early June. Perhaps most notably Elite Spud has learned and implemented the jump skip in Chapter 3!

Emarcee, the creator of the F-Zero GX: Climax Edition rebalance mods, has begun submitting their PBs into F-Zero Central during this quarter. Not every course has a time yet, but a good number of them are top 100, with Surface Slide and Loop Cross being his highest ranked times at 75th and 80th respectively.

Fifa sets a new WR in Surface Slide, but not with Black Bull?! Quick Star-G4 for the first time in a very long time reclaims a WR it once held long ago. Inspired by Gray Fox's no Side Attack WR run with the same machine, Fifa utilizes MTSISBs on the first turn and on the long winding left turn. The shift boosts on the long turn can be gotten on lap 1 which helps it immensely. Fifa had intended to finish the run with a super explosive finish, but it was very inconsistent. Nevertheless he managed to beat his own Black Bull WR by 1.001 second without it all thanks to Quick's ability to get more shift boosts much more easily than Black Bull can.

Gray Fox beats the No Side Attack WR on Ordeal! That is no small feat given Brave's incredibly strong run. Gray Fox's run takes great advantage of the few shift boosts you can get on this course. Gray Fox does a better job of it on boost laps, and caps it off with an incredibly fast explosive finish.

Mengsk’s multiple runs in Cylinder Knot and Trident runs were done to fill out the Max Speed No Side Attack Machine vs Staff ghost spreadsheets. There are only a handful of machine and course combinations that are remaining before the spreadsheet is finally completed.

Mengsk also contributed with setting new machine records on Aero Dive that utilize the glide skip that Skivekt first started implementing.

His most impressive run is likely his 1’39 Undulation run with Black Bull, which requires several shift boosts and being able to keep your speed up at all times.

Mifuyu was very active in this quarter. Most notably she set WRs in two different courses - Serial Gaps and Dragon Slope!

For Serial Gaps she uses a machine that last held WRs back in 2003, Dread Wizard-FX. It uses the same body and cockpit parts as Gallant Star-G4, however the booster part is replaced with Hornet-FX. It is heavier than Gallant by 140 KG, and has considerably less acceleration than Gallant Star-G4, but it is still considerably better than Omega Gantlet-V2. But this also means its speed retention when MTing is better compared to Gallant. Its top speed is only slightly less than G4 while being able to reach higher speeds while boosting. Think of it as a middle ground between Gallant, which prioritizes acceleration and ease of use, and Omega Gantlet-V2, which is the heaviest of the three, but has the lowest acceleration.

With Dread Wizard-FX she was able to beat her prior WR (which was with Omega Gantlet-V2) by 0.637 of a second! It doesn't seem like there are any major mistakes with the run, but her best lap 1 time in the high 15 second range. In her most recent WR run, she had a 16.8 lap 1. She wants to get a 36 second time one day. She has written a detailed blog post about Serial Gaps and the various machines here if you want further details. Its in Japanese, so you can use Chrome to translate it into your desired language.

Her Dragon Slope WR bests Fifa's by about 0.200 of a second. The strategy is pretty much the same as before. The run gets a surprising double SB at the start of the run. However she missed the first dash plate after the large dive which does cost you a lot of time. And the final lap was a bit shaky towards the end. There is room for improvement, but getting a clean run at these high speeds is a huge challenge.

She has set times on the rest of the courses she has yet submitted a time for in FZC and set new PBs in several other tracks, many of which are top 10. She set top 5 times in Drift Highway, Screw Drive and Sonic Oval! Her FZC rankings has leaped massively as a result, overtaking me for 7th overall and is eying a sub 40 minute course total to pass the prior number 1 player Iowa.

Mifuyu also spent some time with the GX Unleashed mod. King Meteor is very strong in Long Pipe if you can control it well enough to hit the dash plates at high speeds. And she does Serial Gaps with yet another machine.

At long last, NikoSoviet88 has beaten Fifa’s Trident WR of 1’29”470 with a 1’28”907 with Heavy Star-G4! He is able to set incredibly fast lap 1 times with Heavy Star-G4 that Omega Gantlet-V2 cannot match. And by performing enough shift boosts, it is able to stave off Fifa’s faster boost laps. It really does seem like the machine choice for Trident comes down to preference. While Gantlet-V2 and other heavier custom machines might have more potential due to the better speed retention and more weight, it is uncertain if anyone can control such machines well during boost laps to extract that potential. Plus at the highest of speeds, the seemingly innocent right turn before the dive could end up being a bottleneck of sorts of Gantlet-V2, or at the very least it becomes very difficult to go through it cleanly without losing too much speed.

Additionally he has set sub 2 Trident times with Red Gazelle, Big Fang and Little Wyvern, all very impressive feats given their much lower weights compared to the custom machines used.

He has also started playing F-Zero GX on a Wii, and has submitted a few times for it. It seems he plans on re-beating the Trident WR time.

SkiVeKt has uploaded 42 runs in this quarter, mostly for Max Speed but he also did some Flying and Snaking runs.

The majority of his runs are done in Aero Dive and Loop Cross. SkiVeKt has started to implement a glide skip that cuts the sharp right turn after the dive. He has managed to get it in lap 1 with several machines by going from a glide into a dive, and then back into a glide to gain more speed and distance. This skip saves a good 2-3 seconds each time, giving machines able to execute it a big advantage over those that can't.

In Loop Cross he has found a semi-consistent method to perform a fast explosive finish by performing a railslide on the right side at a certain area. When done correctly the curvature of the track will make the machine get a big burst of speed, hop over the right wall and hopefully avoid the instant death zones and cross the finish line. This finish saves approximately two seconds or so.

SkiVeKt has also defeated the Sonic Oval staff ghost with Red Gazelle, which is the first time anyone has accomplished such a feat! It required an incredibly fast explosive finish where you MTS into a railslide on the left wall during the final turn and break down about half way through the turn. The machine bounced off the right wall in such a way that it gave Red Gazelle a huge burst of speed. This is now the 1030th Staff Ghost+Machine combination conquered for the 100% Only Max Speed category! And Red Gazelle becomes the 15th machine to defeat every staff ghost!

SkiVeKt also spent some time with GX Unleashed. He defeats the No Side Attack GM Staff Ghosts in all of these runs. Perhaps most impressive of these is defeating the Intersection ghost which gets good speed from shift boosts with Space Angler, who doesn't get that much speed from shift boosts.
