[city, state – date] – This year, thousands of volleyball athletes from around the country participated in the Side-Out Foundation's Dig Pink® program. Middle school, high school, college, club, and adult teams did a tremendous job advocating for the metastatic breast cancer community while fundraising for metastatic breast cancer research.

[insert number of supporters] spectators showed up to cheer on the [team 1 name] and the [team 2 name] as they battled on the court. The stands were loaded with people wearing pink, from bows to t-shirts. Our campaign raised over [insert fundraising amount] for the cause.

The proceeds from all donations benefited The Side-Out Foundation, a national 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization based in Fairfax, VA. Side-Out dedicates the majority of donations to their own metastatic breast cancer research. In addition to research, Side-Out allocates a portion of their funds to high-quality support services for cancer patients and their families, as well as college scholarships for students who participate in the Ambassador Program.

The Side-Out Foundation

The Side-Out Foundation is a 501(c)(3) non-profit organization that was established in 2004 to make a significant and identifiable impact on the lives of metastatic breast cancer patients and their families. The organization takes an innovative approach to provide solutions for those specifically with metastatic breast cancer with the goal of becoming a source of hope for all those living with breast cancer in search of answers and treatment options. Side-Out's precision medicine research matches patients with treatments and uses the outcome data produced from this to draw conclusions, challenge the standard level of care, and change the trajectory of the disease. To fund this research, the organization builds educational and community-driven programs such as Dig Pink® and the Side-Out Ambassador Program to create advocacy for the metastatic breast cancer community. As both a nonprofit and research organization, The Side-Out Foundation and its supporters work for a future where breast cancer isn't a terminal diagnosis and anyone receiving a breast cancer diagnosis has hope for more tomorrows.
