

This is a very experimental short form, i wanted to see how i can work when i have been put on a spot. I came up with a random niche that i had to write a copy for Avatar: James, 19 years old.

Spent most of his days at home, so he finds himself difficult to socialize and has trouble doing really basic stuff in the real world because he fears being judged.

Whether It's wanting to come up to a girl or start a conversation with people he hasn't seen in a while, or even meeting new people. He doesn't feel comfortable doing any of that.

He wants to start making change but doesnt know where to start.

This product will help him overcome his social awkwardness and start living his life without fear of being judged.

SL: Want to stop feeling like you are always in the spotlight?\

Does it sometimes feel like the whole world is staring right at you?

Like you are in the spotlight of this show?

I seriously doubt you like that feeling, right?

Well imagine what would it feel like, if you walked, talked and acted like you own the stage.

The feeling of power and control that would drive you through life,

Without those looks from strangers that feel like knives are being thrown at you

You would be able to approach any girl that strikes an eye,

And you can spark an interaction 🌟 just like that

It's really simple, once you get a handle of the method that has helped

Most of the millionairesbegin the pursuit of their dreams, you too can apply it in your every day life

And gain that self-confidence that you are starving for.

Click here to become master of the stage.