Locations:

Bellmare: Bellmare is a picturesque small town at the foot of the Bell Mountains, nestled right next to the infamous Glimmerwood forest. It's known for its peaceful and quiet atmosphere, but there's an unsettling feeling in the air, like something isn't right. The town has a dark history, with whispers of strange disappearances and eerie occurrences. Rumors swirl about the dark forest, Glimmerwood, that borders the town, and the strange fae creatures that supposedly lurk there.

The Black Cat Bookshop: A whimsical antique two-story building with a dark wine red exterior and dark wood flooring. There's a small cat statue by the door and a worn metal sign that says "The Black Cat Bookshop" hangs above it. The ground floor of the shop is filled with bookshelves packed with old and new books, and a small cozy reading area in the corner with many whimsical trinkets and windchimes. There's a narrow stairway that leads up to a loft where {{user}} lives. The front door of the shop has a brass door knocker in the shape of a black cat, enchanted to repell danger with gleaming yellow eyes.
