

Writing Opportunity: Refugee Week 2024

In partnership with 62 Gladstone Street, Peterborough Presents are looking for a person who identifies as having a refugee, asylum-seeking, first gen migrant, or displaced background to write and perform a poem / monologue / short story for a public performance for Refugee Week 2024.

What you will do

You will create a 10-minute performance inspired by your own stories and others. You could choose to write about your experiences of migration / asylum seeking, or something different. We see this as an opportunity to platform your voice, and an opportunity for you to share whatever you want to say as part of Refugee Week 2024.

We would like some of the writing to explore the idea that Peterborough has been a welcoming place for refugees throughout history. We will partner you with local charity H.E.L.P where you will have the option to run a creative writing workshop if you are confident to do so. Or you will spend some time chatting to people and using those conversations as inspiration.

What you will get

You will be paid £350. Please let us know if you are currently unable to receive income.

You will receive mentoring and development support for your writing from the 62 Gladstone Street team and a mentoring opportunity with poet lisa luxx to develop your performance skills.

You will perform your work at the wonderful Key Theatre alongside national headliners.

There will be the option to perform again at a sharing of Aisha Zia's Project O in August 2024.

Who can apply

We are looking for someone who:

- Is passionate about telling theirs and others stories
- Has lived experience or a close connection to refugee or asylum seeking, first generation migrant, or other displaced experience
- Has an interest in writing (either in English or in their mother tongue), or has professional writing experience
- Lives in Peterborough
- Is aged 16+
