Review of the Halong Bay Half-Day Cruise by Mr. DUBOIS

Nestled in northeastern Vietnam, Halong Bay is a natural gem listed as a UNESCO World Heritage Site, renowned for its emerald waters and majestic limestone formations. During my trip to Vietnam, I had the opportunity to explore this wonder through a Halong Bay half-day cruise — an unforgettable experience made even more enjoyable by the professional organization of AUTOUR ASIA, Travel agency in Hanoi Vietnam. Here is my review of this exceptional adventure.

I. General introduction to Halong Bay in Vietnam

Before planning my trip to Vietnam, Halong Bay was already one of my dream destinations. I had discovered this iconic place through documentaries, travel magazines, and stories from friends who had been lucky enough to explore it. Listed as a UNESCO World Heritage Site since 1994, this bay is famous for its unique landscapes: thousands of time-sculpted limestone islets majestically emerging from emerald waters, creating a breathtaking panorama.

Its legendary history, linked to tales of protective dragons, also piqued my curiosity. Halong Bay is much more than a natural site; it is a true masterpiece shaped by nature, rich in culture and mystery. I was determined to discover this world wonder and experience the magic of a cruise on its tranquil waters.

Given my limited schedule, I opted for the Halong Bay half-day cruise, an ideal solution to explore the bay's essential sites without compromising comfort or the quality of the visit. This half-day cruise promised a perfect balance of discovery, relaxation, and immersion in a timelessly beautiful landscape — the ideal choice to grasp the essence of Halong Bay while sticking to my travel itinerary.

II. Halong Bay half-day cruise itinerary

My Halong Bay half-day cruise will remain one of the most magical experiences of my trip to Vietnam. From the moment we departed from Tuan Chau Port, I was mesmerized by the grandiose landscape before my eyes: sparkling emerald waters dotted with thousands of mysterious limestone islets. The fresh sea-scented air and the bay's peaceful calm created an almost surreal atmosphere, perfect for relaxation and contemplation.

- Visit to Sung Sot Cave

The half-day cruise began with a visit to Sung Sot Cave (Surprise Cave), one of the most beautiful and impressive in the region. As soon as I set foot inside, I was fascinated by the vastness of the cave and its spectacular limestone formations. Every corner seemed to tell a story shaped by time. Subtle lighting enhanced the stalactites and stalagmites, creating an almost supernatural setting. I felt so small in front of this natural wonder.

- Exploring Luon Cave by Kayak

After this underground exploration, our Halong Bay half-day cruise continued toward Luon Cave. This was the moment I had been eagerly waiting for: kayaking in the heart of this paradisiacal setting. Paddling through rocky passages surrounded by towering cliffs was both exhilarating and soothing. I felt an intense sense of freedom gliding over the calm waters, surrounded by majestic and pristine nature.

- Visit to Titov Island

Our last stop on this Halong Bay half-day cruise was Titov Island, an enchanting place offering a choice between a refreshing swim in crystal-clear waters or a hike to the island's summit. Although the climb was a bit tiring, the panoramic view from the top was well worth the effort. Standing before the breathtaking scenery of limestone mountains against the endless horizon, I took a moment to savor this unique experience, filled with gratitude and awe.

Finally, to crown this memorable day, we enjoyed a delicious seafood lunch onboard the boat. Each dish, carefully prepared, added a gourmet touch to an already exceptional adventure.

Reflecting on this Halong Bay half-day cruise, I still feel the emotion of those magical moments. Despite a limited schedule, this excursion allowed me to discover the bay's most iconic treasures. I returned with precious memories, vivid mental images, and deep admiration for the timeless beauty of this legendary place.

III. Some regrets during my trip to Halong Bay

Although my Halong Bay half-day cruise was an unforgettable experience, I do have a few regrets regarding the briefness of the trip. The limited time allowed us to visit only a few iconic sites such as Sung Sot Cave, Luon Cave, and Titov Island. These places are beautiful, but I would have loved to explore more of the bay's more remote and less crowded corners, where nature feels even wilder and more preserved.

Additionally, the fast pace of the Halong Bay half-day cruise sometimes left us with little time to fully enjoy each stop. For instance, the visit to Titov Island was wonderful, but I would have liked to stay longer to relax on the beach after the climb to the summit. Lastly, the sunset on the edge of the Halong Bay cruise was a spectacle I would have loved to admire, but our return to port before nightfall didn't allow for it. Watching the sun slowly disappear behind the limestone islets would have undoubtedly added a magical touch to an already amazing adventure.

Despite these small regrets, this half-day cruise was a memorable experience, and I can only hope to return one day to explore this natural wonder, a UNESCO World Heritage Site, in more depth. A two-day cruise or even longer would certainly be ideal to fully experience the timeless magic of Halong Bay.

IV. Top 3 Recommended Cruises in Halong Bay

Although my time exploring Halong Bay was limited to a half-day cruise, the team at Autour Asia introduced me to several cruises in Halong Bay, each offering a unique experience. Among them, here are my top three favorite cruises that I highly recommend for a trip to Halong Bay:

1. Victory Star Cruise Boat
2. Athena Royal Cruise
3. Ambassador Signature Cruise

These three cruises are perfect options for those wishing to discover Halong Bay in an exceptional way. Even though I chose a half-day Halong Bay cruise, I hope to have the opportunity to experience longer cruises on my next trip to Vietnam. Moreover, I accidentally came across an article from a tourist who took a 2-day cruise in Halong Bay. You may want to read it to help you decide on your trip to Vietnam.

In short, my Halong Bay half-day cruise was a memorable experience that allowed me to discover the natural wonders of this iconic place in a limited amount of time. Although the half-day cruise was short, every moment spent on board was a true immersion in the unspoiled beauty of Halong Bay. The landscapes, the visits, and the moments of relaxation will stay in my memory for a long time.

I would like to warmly thank AUTOUR ASIA, local travel agency in Vietnam, for their flawless organization and professionalism. How to get from Hanoi to Halong? you can choose to travel by car, bus, or train. The car or bus journey typically takes between 3 and 4 hours, while a train might take a little longer depending on the route. However, if you are looking for a fast and scenic way to travel, the seaplane is an excellent option.

2. Can seaplanes fly in the rain?

The weather conditions can affect seaplane tours in Halong Bay. In case of unfavorable weather, such as storms, strong winds, or thick fog that reduces visibility, flights may be canceled for safety reasons. In such cases, we offer two options: a full refund or the possibility to reschedule your flight to a later date. We encourage you to check the weather forecast before booking, especially during the typhoon season (June to July).

3. Can I bring luggage on a seaplane?

Yes, you can. Passengers are asked to follow the weight restrictions for the seaplane in Halong Bay and only bring light and compact luggage. Each passenger is allowed to bring essential personal items, such as cameras, sunglasses, and a small backpack. Bulky luggage is not allowed on board, as space inside the seaplane is limited, and passenger safety is a priority. Therefore, we recommend bringing only the essentials and checking the guidelines before departure for a pleasant and safe flight.

II. Our 2 day itinerary in Cu Lao Cham

1. Day 1: Hoi An – Cu Lao Cham Island

The first day of our 2 day itinerary to Cu Lao Cham was simply magical. From the moment we were picked up at the Cua Dai tourist port, we felt the excitement of the adventure ahead. Onboard the speedboat, the fresh air and coastal scenery left us in awe.

Upon arriving on the island, the visit to the ancient Hai Tang Pagoda immediately brought a sense of serenity and spiritual connection. Learning about the fishermen's boat, used during storms, gave us deep respect for their courage and bond with the sea.

Next, we took a boat to explore the northern tourist area of the island, where crystal-clear waters and white sandy beaches offered a true haven of peace. What to do in Cham islands? One highlight was snorkeling at Cua Ong Beach, surrounded by colorful fish and vibrant coral. It was an unforgettable experience.

In the afternoon, participating in water activities and fishing guided by local fishermen was a real pleasure. The fishermen shared ancestral techniques, using nets and traditional methods passed down for generations. Casting our own net added an even more fascinating dimension to the experience.

2. Day 2: Cu Lao Cham Island – Hoi An

The next morning, during our 2 day trip in Cham islands, waking up to the sound of the waves was perfect. We started the day with a bit of exercise and a refreshing swim in the calm sea—a truly invigorating experience. Breakfast, enjoyed in a serene and natural setting, allowed us to fully embrace the island's soothing atmosphere. Afterward, we had some free time to relax or explore the lesser-known corners of the island, which gave us a deeper appreciation of the local charm.

The time to leave came quickly, but we weren't ready to part with this paradise. The speedboat ride back to Cua Dai was tinged with nostalgia, but the promise of returning one day to this wonderful place brought us comfort. Upon arriving at the port, a driver took us back to Hoi An, and though our 48 hours in Cham islands had come to an end, we know these memories will stay in our hearts forever.

III. Reviews from other tourists about Cu Lao Cham trip highlighted the islands' unspoiled beauty and the exceptional quality of services provided, including guided tours and water activities. Some even mentioned choosing Cu Lao Cham specifically for its peaceful atmosphere, far from the crowds of Hoi An. You can also refer to some reviews left by other travelers who share their experiences.

Irene J, one of our friends, also visited Cham islands and shared her experience with us:

"Beautiful island, we spent two nights at Monkey Homestay, and it was fantastic. They picked us up at the port. No one asked us for money when we got off the boat, as mentioned in another review. We rented a scooter to explore the sights—lots of hills, but the views were incredible. We found a beach about 5 minutes away by motorbike or 25 minutes on foot, absolutely stunning. In the evening, there wasn't much to do, so we joined the locals for karaoke, which was amazing. It was so much fun. It's an island, and AT NO POINT were we ever asked for money for anything during our two-night stay. Boat tickets, homestay accommodation, meals, drinks, scooter rental—all of it cost just £120. We're seasoned travelers, and it was so refreshing to meet people from Australia, France, the Netherlands, and Germany. We had a wonderful time—don't hesitate to come and stay!"

I also read a review from a client who chose Autour Asia for their recent trip to Cu Lao Cham:

"The start was a bit hectic, but it was absolutely worth it. The ocean was gorgeous, and we had plenty of time to enjoy snorkeling. There weren't many fish, but it was still an incredible experience. The food provided during the excursion was delicious! The island's beach was beautiful and peaceful."

Overall, the reviews from other tourists about their 2 days in Cu Lao Cham highlight the islands' preserved natural beauty and the authentic experiences it offers. Whether it's the tranquility of the beaches or the friendliness of the locals, everyone leaves with memorable experiences from this unique getaway.

Our 2 day trip in Cham islands was an unforgettable experience, combining relaxation, cultural discoveries, and water activities. What to do in Cu Lao Cham? The 2 day itinerary in Cham islands allowed us to explore the island's unspoiled natural beauty while enjoying a peaceful setting, far from the hustle and bustle. First, the time spent in Hoi An could have been a bit longer, as there is so much to discover in this charming town. Another regret is not having had more time to explore the beaches of Da Nang. Although we visited incredible tourist sites, such as the Ngu Hanh Son mountains and Ba Na Hills, it would have been nice to spend a little more time relaxing on the beach, especially with the pleasant warmth of the sea.

The 3 days in Hoi An Da Nang were well-packed, but the rush to see all the important sites sometimes meant we missed moments of calm to soak in the local atmosphere. A few more moments to enjoy a coffee by the water or to stroll without a purpose would have added a touch of serenity to our experience.

Poitiers couple's opinion on a 5-day itinerary in Siem Reap Cambodia

Hello, we are a couple from Poitiers, France, and we recently spent 5 days in Siem Reap, Cambodia. What to do in Siem Reap? Before leaving, we asked our friends, and they introduced us to 5 day Siem Reap trip organized by AUTOUR ASIA, Travel agency in Hanoi Vietnam. The trip was tailored to our expectations, making it a personalized experience. We decided to share our 5 day Siem Reap itinerary for couples who have similar travel interests.

I. Why did we choose a 5-day itinerary in Siem Reap?

As travel and history enthusiasts, we always look for destinations that combine cultural discoveries, nature, and relaxation. While planning our trip, we wondered what to do in Siem Reap to experience an immersive and balanced journey. After speaking with friends who had already visited this destination, they recommended a 5 day Siem Reap itinerary, ideal for exploring not only the temples of Angkor but also the hidden treasures of the region.

This 5 day Siem Reap trip allowed us to fully enjoy every moment, alternating between historical visits, immersion in Khmer culture, and moments of relaxation. We particularly appreciated the diversity of the program, which took us from majestic temples to the floating villages of Tonle Sap Lake, with culinary experiences and nature hikes in between. We are convinced that this itinerary is the best way to discover the richness of Siem Reap.

1. Day 1: Siem Reap - Angkor Wat - Angkor Thom - Bayon Temple - Ta Prohm

What to do in Siem Reap? We arrived in Siem Reap, Cambodia, the night before, which allowed us to rest after the flight and be ready to start the adventure at sunrise. On the first day of our 5 day Siem Reap itinerary, after an early wake-up, we took a tuk-tuk ride to the Angkor temple complex, a fascinating UNESCO World Heritage site.

What to do in Siem Reap in 5 days? Our first stop was Angkor Wat, Cambodia's iconic temple. Arriving before dawn allowed us to witness an unforgettable spectacle: the sunrise illuminating the temple's five majestic towers in golden and orange hues. After exploring the bas-reliefs and galleries of this architectural masterpiece, we continued our journey to Angkor Thom. At its heart stands the Bayon Temple, famous for its towers carved with enigmatic faces that seem to watch you from every angle. The atmosphere there is almost mystical!

Visiting Siem Reap in 5 days, in the late afternoon, we ended our exploration with Ta Prohm, a temple overrun by nature, where massive trees and their sprawling roots entwine the ancient stones. The atmosphere is like a scene from an adventure film. After this day filled with discoveries, we enjoyed dinner at a local restaurant, savoring Khmer specialties such as fish amok and beef lok lak.

2. Day 2: Artisans d'Angkor – Khmer Cooking Class – Apsara Dance

What to do in Siem Reap? After a first day dedicated to temples, we chose to immerse ourselves in Khmer culture. The morning of our second day in the 5 day Siem Reap itinerary started with a visit to Artisans d'Angkor, a social project that preserves traditional Cambodian craftsmanship. We discovered the meticulous work of artisans on silk, stone, and lacquer, and even brought back some handmade souvenirs.

To continue our 5 day Siem Reap trip, the afternoon was devoted to a Khmer cooking class. Upon arrival, we were immersed in the lively atmosphere of the local market, where the vibrant colors of spices and the intoxicating scents of herbs amazed us. Under the attentive supervision of a passionate chef, we discovered with fascination the secrets of traditional cooking, joyfully trying to replicate each technique. The pleasure of seeing our dishes take shape was immense, and the final tasting was an absolute delight! A memorable moment, rich in flavors and discoveries, that will remain engraved in our memories.

Traveling to Siem Reap for 5 days, to end the day beautifully, we attended an Apsara dance performance. What to see in Siem Reap? This traditional ballet tells mythological stories through graceful gestures and sumptuous costumes. The elegance of the dancers and the enchanting music transported us to another time.

3. Day 3: Phnom Kulen National Park – Beng Mealea Temple

What to do in Siem Reap? In our 5 day Siem Reap itinerary, we dedicated this day to exploring nature and lesser-known sites around Siem Reap. Early in the morning, we headed to Phnom Kulen National Park, a sacred place for the Khmer people. After a hike through the jungle, we reached the River of a Thousand Lingas, where ancient sculptures are carved into the riverbed. We then enjoyed a refreshing swim under the park's magnificent waterfall.

On a 5-day trip to Siem Reap, on the way back, we explored Beng Mealea, a temple lost in the jungle that resembles the ruins of Angkor before their restoration. Here, nature has reclaimed its rights, and we felt like explorers discovering a forgotten site. The wild and mysterious atmosphere of this place deeply moved us.

To continue our 5 day Siem Reap itinerary, in the evening, we chose to spend free time wandering through downtown Siem Reap. We explored the night market, a lively place filled with local crafts, silk clothing, and unique souvenirs. We also tried Siem Reap street food, tasting grilled skewers and coconut milk pancakes. The festive atmosphere and colorful market lights made the evening very enjoyable.

4. Day 4: Khmer Massage – Old Market – Angkor Night Market

On this fourth day of our 5 day Siem Reap trip, we decided to relax and explore the local atmosphere through its markets. Our morning began with a traditional Khmer massage experience. After several days of walking and sightseeing, nothing was better than enjoying the benefits of this ancient therapy. Unlike dynamic Thai massages, Khmer massage is gentler, combining light pressure and stretching to deeply relax the muscles. A well-deserved break in our 5 day Siem Reap itinerary!

In the afternoon, we plunged into the lively Old Market (Phsar Chas), an ideal place to experience local life and buy some Siem Reap souvenirs. The market is full of colorful stalls offering Khmer crafts, spices, silk fabrics, and wooden sculptures. We enjoyed chatting with vendors and tasting some local specialties, including exotic fruits and typical Cambodian snacks.

In the evening, to continue our Siem Reap trip for 5 days, we visited the famous Siem Reap night market, a vibrant explosion of colors and flavors, perfect for enjoying the city's nightlife.

5. Day 5: Siem Reap - Departure

What to do in Siem Reap? To end our 5 day Siem Reap itinerary, we chose to enjoy a peaceful morning, soaking in the city's unique atmosphere one last time. After breakfast at a local café, we took a final stroll along the river, watching locals start their day and admiring the colonial architecture. Before leaving, we revisited a few artisan shops to bring home souvenirs from our 5 day Siem Reap trip—silks, sculptures, and spices that would remind us of our adventure.

Then, it was time to head to the airport, feeling both satisfied and nostalgic. This 5 day Siem Reap itinerary was an unforgettable experience!

III. Some regrets after our 5 days in Siem Reap

After our 5-day trip to Siem Reap, we leave with incredible memories. However, as with any journey, there are always a few small regrets... things we wish we had done differently or experiences we had to leave out due to lack of time.

One of our first regrets is not being able to explore the Angkor Archaeological Park more thoroughly. Although we visited Angkor Wat, Bayon, and Ta Prohm, we would have loved to discover other more remote temples, such as Preah Khan or Banteay Srei, known for their delicate carvings. With an extra day, we would have surely taken the time to visit these lesser-known sites.

We also realized that 5 days in Siem Reap go by very quickly, especially when trying to combine historical heritage, nature, and cultural immersion. We would have liked to dedicate more time to discovering local life, perhaps by spending a night in a floating village on Tonlé Sap to better understand the daily life of its inhabitants.

Finally, during our 5 day Siem Reap itinerary, we were amazed by the lively atmosphere of Pub Street, but we may have underestimated the richness of Siem Reap's cultural scene beyond the typical tourist performances. After doing some research afterward, we discovered that there are art galleries and traditional dance centers that we would have liked to visit to better understand Cambodia's cultural revival after its difficult past.

That being said, these few regrets only strengthen our desire to return to Siem Reap one day. This first 5 day Siem Reap trip gave us a wonderful introduction to this city and its exceptional heritage, but we now know there is still so much left to explore.

IV. Practical tips for your trip to Siem Reap, Cambodia

After our 5-day Siem Reap trip, we have gathered some practical tips that might help you plan your own stay and make the most of this fascinating destination. Here are our recommendations to make your 5 day Siem Reap itinerary even more enjoyable.

1. Clothing & Weather: It is advisable to wear light clothing made of cotton or linen to cope with the heat. When visiting the Angkor temples, remember to cover your shoulders and knees with long pants, a long skirt, or a shawl. Don't forget to bring a hat, sunglasses, and sunscreen to avoid sunburn.
2. Transportation: To get around easily, we recommend taking a tuk-tuk, which is both convenient and affordable. Those who love adventure can opt for biking to explore the surrounding areas. For longer distances, it is better to book a private car with a driver.
3. Language: It is useful to learn a few words of Khmer, even though English is widely understood in tourist areas. Knowing some basic phrases can enhance your 5 days in Siem Reap and allow for more authentic interactions.
4. Currency: It is advisable to carry small US dollar bills, as they are accepted everywhere. However, keep in mind that change is often given in Cambodian riels.
5. Health & Safety: During your 5 day Siem Reap itinerary, to avoid any inconvenience, it is best to drink only bottled water and apply mosquito repellent. Siem Reap is a safe city, but it is recommended to keep an eye on your belongings in crowded areas.

These are all the key takeaways from our trip, combined with advice from our friends. We hope these tips will be useful for your own 5 day trip to Siem Reap.

Mr. Dupuped's recommendation for a 2-day Da Nang travel itinerary

Hello everyone, I am Thierry Dupuped, a nature lover, food enthusiast, and cultural explorer. During my recent trip to Vietnam, I had the opportunity to spend 2 days in Da Nang, a dynamic coastal city full of charm. If you're wondering what to do in Da Nang, let me introduce you to my 2-day Da Nang trip, carefully organized by AUTOUR ASIA, local travel agency in Vietnam. Here's my recommendation for a 2 day Da Nang itinerary, for a short but unforgettable stay.

I. Overview of my 2-day trip to Da Nang

Located between Hue and Hoi An, Da Nang charmed me with its mix of modernity and nature. What to do in Da Nang? In just 2 days in Da Nang, I was able to explore impressive natural sites, taste delicious local cuisine, and enjoy the laid-back atmosphere of a seaside city. This 2 day Da Nang trip was short, but full of emotions and discoveries.

My 2-day Da Nang itinerary at a glance:

- Day 1: Arrival in Da Nang – Marble Mountains – Non Nuoc Village – Linh Ung Pagoda – My Khe Beach – Dragon Bridge
- Day 2: Ba Na Hills – Han Market.

II. Detailed itinerary of my 2-day Da Nang trip

1. Day 1: Arrival in Da Nang – Marble Mountains – Non Nuoc Village – Linh Ung Pagoda – My Khe Beach – Dragon Bridge

Early in the morning, I left Ho Chi Minh City for a domestic flight to Da Nang. The flight lasted about 1 hour and 20 minutes, offering stunning aerial views of Vietnam's central coastline. Upon arrival at Da Nang airport, a driver from AUTOUR ASIA was waiting for me with a smile to start the adventure.

During my 2 days in Da Nang, our first stop was the marble mountains (Ngu Hanh Son), a group of five marble and limestone hills. This complex of five limestone hills represents the five elements: metal, wood, water, fire, and earth. In my 2-day Da Nang itinerary, I chose to climb the water mountain, the largest and most visited. The climb, though a bit steep at times, was well worth the effort. I then continued to a huge cave called Huyen Khong, bathed in a supernatural light filtered through openings in the rock. A highlight, full of energy and emotion.

Right next door, we explored Non Nuoc Village, one of Vietnam's craft villages, renowned for its stone carving craft. The artisans, with precise and passionate gestures, sculpted marble to create religious and decorative works. A fascinating immersion into a traditional craft passed down through generations.

What to do in Da Nang? Around noon, I stopped for lunch at a small local restaurant recommended by the hotel. The menu featured Mi Quang, a regional noodle specialty, fragrant and colorful. A real treat. For my 2-day Da Nang trip, in the late morning, we headed to the Linh Ung Pagoda, perched on the Son Tra Peninsula. This Buddhist sanctuary is famous for its gigantic statue of the Goddess of Mercy, standing 67 meters tall, with her protective gaze turned towards the sea. The peaceful atmosphere and panoramic view of Da Nang and the ocean were breathtaking.

Continuing my 2-day Da Nang itinerary, in the afternoon, we then headed to My Khe Beach, one of the best beaches in Da Nang, often ranked among the most beautiful beaches in Asia. Its fine white sand, turquoise water, and gentle sea breeze offered me a well-deserved moment of relaxation. I settled under the shade of an umbrella, coconut juice in hand, to enjoy the sea and the tranquility.

What to do in Da Nang in 2 days? As night fell, I headed to the Dragon Bridge, the symbol of Da Nang. Every weekend, this bridge comes alive: at 9 p.m, the giant dragon spits fire and water in a festive atmosphere. It was both spectacular and fun, with families, couples, and tourists, all eyes on this unique performance.

This first day of the 2-day Da Nang itinerary ended with a peaceful walk along the Han River, where the city's lights gently reflect on the water. A perfect start to the stay, blending nature, culture, and modernity.

2. Day 2: Discovering Ba Na Hills – Han Market. END OF TRIP

For my second day in Da Nang, the journey was even richer in discoveries. After a good breakfast at the hotel, I headed to one of the region's most famous attractions: Ba Na Hills.

The drive to the cable car station for the 2-day Da Nang trip was pleasant, winding through lush nature. Once there, I boarded the longest cable car in the world, according to the Guinness World Records! The journey to the top offered an incredible view of the tropical forest, misty hills, and valleys below – truly a magical moment.

What to do in Ba Na Hills? Upon arrival, I was greeted by a nearly fairy-tale atmosphere. Between the cool mountain air, the famous Golden Bridge supported by two giant hands, and the perfectly maintained flower gardens, I felt like I was in another world. I also visited the French village with its small alleys, church, and European-style restaurants – a charming contrast to the Vietnamese atmosphere from the previous day.

For my 2-day Da Nang trip, in the afternoon, I explored Han Market, a very lively place where locals shop. I tasted some of Da Nang specialties, like spring rolls and crispy rice cakes. I also bought a few Da Nang souvenirs: handicrafts, Vietnamese coffee, and spices.

To wrap up this second day of the 2-day Da Nang itinerary, I embarked on a sunset cruise on the Han River. The city gradually lit up, and you could admire the illuminated bridges, modern buildings, and mountains in the distance. A peaceful, romantic moment, and a perfect farewell to this charming city.

III. Practical tips for a 2-day trip to Da Nang

Before you pack your bags for the 2-day Da Nang itinerary, let me share a few tips from my own experience – small details that can make all the difference.

1. Climate and weather

Da Nang has a tropical climate, with two main seasons:

>>> You can read: When to go to Vietnam?

- From March to August: it's the dry season – blue skies, generous sun, and pleasant heat. Perfect for enjoying the beaches and outdoor walks.
- From September to January: a more humid period, with occasional sudden rain and gray days, especially in October and November.

I went in April: radiant sun, 30°C on average. Don't forget sunscreen!

2. What to wear for your 2-day Da Nang trip? Comfort first!

For your 2-day Da Nang trip, how to dress in Vietnam? Don't worry, here are my recommendations:

- Light clothing, in cotton or linen, to withstand the heat and humidity.
- A cap or hat for daytime visits.
- A light jacket for the evening or air-conditioned places.
- Comfortable shoes for walking (the stairs at the Marble Mountains can be slippery).
- If you plan to visit temples or pagodas: long pants or a covering skirt, and covered shoulders – it's a sign of respect.

3. Cultural notes

The Vietnamese are welcoming, smiling, and very respectful – and they appreciate the same in return.

- Take off your shoes when entering a house or temple.
- Avoid affectionate gestures in public (holding hands is fine, but kissing is not).
- A smile is often enough to create a good rapport.
- At markets, it's common to negotiate gently – always with a smile!
- Learning a few words in Vietnamese like xin chào (hello) or cảm ơn (thank you) is always appreciated.

Caodaism in Vietnam is one of the country's major religions. Founded in the early 20th century, it embodies a unique religious syncretism by bringing together elements of Buddhism, Christianity, Taoism, and Confucianism. Visiting cao dai temples in Vietnam offers not only a deep insight into Vietnamese culture but also an immersion into colorful and symbolic architecture. If you wish to visit Caodaism temples in Vietnam, follow the guide from AUTOUR ASIA, local travel agency in Vietnam, to better understand this original faith and its emblematic sacred sites.

I. What is Caodaism?

Cao Dai in Vietnam, or Caodaism, was founded in 1926 in Tay Ninh province, southern Vietnam. According to belief, the founder received a spiritual message during a spiritism session, inviting him to establish a new religion intended to unite the world's beliefs.

Caodaism in Vietnam seeks to merge the moral teachings of Buddhism, Christianity, Taoism, and Confucianism, thus promoting universal love, tolerance, peace, and spiritual progress. The doctrine venerates a unique supreme God, called Cao Dai, while honoring great spiritual figures such as Jesus Christ, Buddha, Confucius, Lao Tzu, and even Victor Hugo.

Cao Dai in Vietnam has a hierarchical structure similar to that of the Catholic church, with a pope, cardinals, archbishops, and priests. The ceremonies of the Cao Dai religion in Vietnam are highly codified, with specific prayers and chants performed several times a day in Cao Dai temples.

II. Significance of Caodaism in Vietnam

Caodaism in Vietnam was born in a troubled historical context, marked by French colonization and social upheavals in Vietnam. For many Vietnamese, it represents a hope for harmony between Eastern and Western spiritual traditions. By merging the teachings of Buddhism, Taoism, Confucianism, and Christianity, Caodaism has created a new religious path, both universal and deeply rooted in Vietnamese identity. This ability to unify diverse beliefs under the same spiritual banner offered followers a response to the political and cultural uncertainties of the time. Today, many foreign visitors come to visit Cao Dai temples in Vietnam to discover this unique spiritual richness.

Beyond its religious dimension, Caodaism in Vietnam also symbolizes a strong affirmation of national identity. It embodies the Vietnamese people's desire to preserve their traditional moral values while adapting to external influences. The Cao Dai temples in Vietnam, with their colorful architecture and particular rituals, bear witness to this living heritage. By visiting these sacred places, those who wish to explore religious temples in Vietnam can feel the deep aspiration for unity, tolerance, and peace that this singular faith advocates.

III. Caodaism vs. Buddhism: What Are the Differences?

Among the religions in Vietnam, although Caodaism in Vietnam borrows many elements from Buddhism—notably the belief in reincarnation, karma, and the liberation of the soul—it clearly distinguishes itself by its syncretic character. Where Vietnamese Buddhism favors an individual path of enlightenment through meditation, compassion, and wisdom, Vietnamese Caodaism aims to unite in a single faith the fundamental teachings of several great spiritual traditions such as Christianity, Taoism, and Confucianism.

Furthermore, the organization of worship within Caodaism in Vietnam differs significantly from that of Buddhism. Caodaism has a structured clerical hierarchy, with dignitaries and codified ceremonies, which more closely resembles the model of Christian churches than that of traditional Buddhist pagodas. This uniqueness is notably reflected in the architecture of Caodaism vietnam temples, which travelers can discover by choosing to visit religious temples in Vietnam across the country.

2 Days in Ho Tram Vung Tau Vietnam - Travel Experience of Claire

My name is Claire, a solo traveler from Lyon. I took a solo trip to Vietnam in March, during the spring holidays. I spent most of my stay in the southern cities of Vietnam, in search of sunshine, nature, and authenticity. It was during this journey that I fell under the spell of Ho Tram, a peaceful little spot near Vung Tau, perfect for recharging by the sea and escaping the daily routine. What to do in Vung Tau? I think this place is still unfamiliar to foreign tourists, so I really want to share my Vung Tau 2-day trip with everyone.

I. Overview of the 2-day trip to Ho Tram Vung Tau

What to do in Vung Tau? I didn't know much about Ho Tram Vung Tau before setting foot there. With the help of AUTOUR ASIA, Travel agency in Hanoi Vietnam, I had simply read that it was a quiet beach, not too far from Saigon, perfect for a break away from the urban hustle and bustle. And frankly, I wasn't disappointed.

In just 2 days in Ho Tram Vung Tau, I felt like I had completely escaped. Along the way, the mood was cheerful: games on the bus, music, and above all, that silent excitement shared between travelers heading to the sea. Upon arrival, the schedule was full but stress-free: discovering a little gem of Gothic architecture (yes, in Vietnam!), cuddling with super cute sheep on a surprising farm, tasting fresh oysters, and of course, well-deserved rest with my feet in the water. This 2-day Ho Tram Vung Tau trip felt like a gentle and refreshing break.

If you're wondering what to do in Vung Tau for a weekend, let me tell you: between nature, culture, and relaxation, you'll get everything. This destination won me over with its simplicity and sincerity.

Here is my 2-day itinerary in Vung Tau, just as I experienced it:

- Day 1: Ho Chi Minh City – Song Vinh Church – Sheep Farm – Ho Tram Vung Tau
- END OF TRIP

II. My Detailed 2-Day Itinerary in Vung Tau

1. Day 1: Ho Chi Minh City – Song Vinh Church – Sheep Farm – Ho Tram Vung Tau

Traveling in southern Vietnam, for this 2-day Ho Tram Vung Tau trip, I was up at dawn, full of excitement. At 5 a.m, I boarded a minibus departing from Ho Chi Minh City, heading for the southern beaches. Iced coffee in hand, I watched the lush landscapes of the delta pass by through the window. A real break from the city.

During 48 hours in Vung Tau, after a local breakfast at a restaurant (special mention for the crispy bánh mì!), our first stop was Song Vinh Church. It's undoubtedly one of the most surprising places on my itinerary: a European Gothic-style church in the middle of Vietnam! I loved the peaceful atmosphere and the architecture that reminded me of small French chapels.

Continuing my Vung Tau 2-day itinerary, we headed to a unique place: Suoi Nghe's sheep farm. It's a perfect spot for animal lovers or to take original photos. I never thought I'd pet such clean and cute sheep in Vietnam! 2 days in Vung Tau, I even fed one by hand. A simple experience that kept me smiling all morning.

After a full morning, we enjoyed a seafood lunch in Long Son. The grilled oysters were simply delicious. In the afternoon of this Vung Tau 2-day trip, I checked into my beachfront resort in Ho Tram. The sound of the waves, the soft sand under my feet, and that feeling of having nothing to do... True luxury. I spent hours on the beach reading, swimming, and watching the sunset.

On the first evening of this 2-day Ho Tram Vung Tau tour, we shared a friendly dinner of grilled fish and shrimp, followed by a beach campfire party. Relaxed atmosphere, songs around the fire, roasted marshmallows... A perfect ending for the first day of my Vung Tau 2-day trip.

END OF TRIP

The second day of my 2-day itinerary in Ho Tram Vung Tau started gently with a wake-up facing the sea. I enjoyed an early swim almost alone, then had breakfast with a view of the palm trees. This is exactly what I was looking for during 48 hours in Vung Tau: calm, fresh air, and the endless sea.

What to do in Vung Tau in 2 days? Before leaving, I visited a place I had been eagerly waiting for: Hamptons Pier, a 270-meter-long pier that stretches into the sea. It's the longest in Southeast Asia! Walking along it, feeling the salty wind on my face, and admiring the horizon gave me a total sense of freedom. I took my best photos there. Nearby, Hamptons Plaza, with its little shops and cafes, allowed me to do my final shopping: a straw hat, handmade souvenirs, and of course... a fresh coconut.

Visiting Southern Vietnam, after a final friendly lunch, I headed back to Ho Chi Minh City. On the bus, I looked at my photos with nostalgia: in just 2 days in Ho Tram Vung Tau, I had managed to completely disconnect, breathe, and rediscover the joy of solo travel.

III. Practical tips for your 2-day trip in Vung Tau

After this 2-day Ho Tram Vung Tau trip, here are some tips I wish I had known before leaving:

- Avoid weekends: Vung Tau in southern Vietnam is a very popular destination for locals from Ho Chi Minh City. On weekdays, the beaches are almost empty – pure bliss!
- Stay overnight in Ho Tram: If you love peace and quiet, with 48 hours in Vung Tau, I recommend spending the night near Ho Tram beach rather than in the city. Waking up to the sound of the waves was one of my most beautiful memories.
- Don't forget sunscreen and a hat: The sun is strong, even early in the morning. I got sunburned right after visiting the sheep farm!
- Try the local oysters: I'm usually not a fan of oysters, but the ones in Long Son were fresh and delicious. A lovely surprise!
- Take your time: Even though 48 hours in Vung Tau goes by quickly, don't rush from place to place. I preferred enjoying each moment rather than checking everything off a list.

In conclusion, my 2-day trip to Vung Tau was a perfect little escape from daily chaos. I loved the tranquility of Ho Tram, the wild beaches, and the relaxed atmosphere there. It's the kind of destination that's perfect for recharging, even in just 48 hours in Vung Tau.

If you're wondering what to do in Vung Tau for a short getaway, I highly recommend this 2-day itinerary in Ho Tram Vung Tau. In just 48 hours in Vung Tau, you'll leave with beautiful memories... and the desire to come back.

But once you arrive on the island, a natural question arises: how to get around Con Dao? What are the transportation options in Con Dao? The guide of AUTOUR ASIA provides all the answers to help you move efficiently and fully enjoy your stay.

I. General information about Con Dao Island

Located in the southeast of Vietnam, approximately 230 km from the mainland, the Con Dao archipelago comprises 16 islands, with Con Son being the main and only truly inhabited one. Still relatively unknown to the general public, Con Dao Vietnam captivates with its preserved nature, deserted beaches, crystal-clear waters, and lush forests. It's an ideal destination for those seeking tranquility, authenticity, and immersion in an untouched natural environment.

However, Con Dao Island is not just about its paradisiacal landscapes. The island is also steeped in history. During the French colonization and the Vietnam War, it served as a detention site. Today, former prisons like Phu Hai attract visitors curious to learn more about this significant past.

Thanks to its relatively modest size, transportation in Con Dao remains simple to organize. However, due to the mountainous terrain and certain distances between beaches, historical sites, and natural areas, it's essential to anticipate how to get around Con Dao to make the most of your stay. The island offers several mobility options, from scooters to taxis, and walking for short distances. Thus, knowing the transportation options in Con Dao will allow you to efficiently visit all the must-see spots on the island while respecting its fragile environment.

Before even thinking about seaside strolls or excursions into the national park, it is essential to ask yourself how to get to Con Dao and how to get around Con Dao once you're there. The rest of this article will guide you through these practical aspects in detail.

II. How to get around con dao? Transportation options on the Island

Even though Con Son Island, the main island of the Con Dao archipelago, is not very large, it's important to choose your mode of transportation wisely to fully enjoy the landscapes and historical sites. Here's an overview of the most commonly used transportation options in Con Dao by travelers.

1. Scooter – The number one choice for independent travelers

Among all transportation options in Con Dao, the scooter is undoubtedly the most appreciated for getting around Con Dao. It offers great freedom of movement and total flexibility to explore the island's most secluded corners, such as Dam Trau Beach or the So Ray viewpoint. Rental is easy upon arrival, either at the airport or through your accommodation. The rate varies between 5 and 7 euros per day, with the possibility of negotiating for multiple days.

The island's roads are in good condition, lightly trafficked, and lined with magnificent coastal landscapes. However, caution is advised, especially during the rainy season, as some sections can become slippery. Wearing a helmet is mandatory, and it's recommended to have an international driving permit.

2. Bicycle – Ecological, economical but demanding

The bicycle is another appreciated mode of transportation in Con Dao, especially by environmentally conscious travelers or those who enjoy gentle exercise. It's possible to rent classic or electric bikes in some hotels and homestays. The price is very affordable, around 1 to 2 euros per day.

However, it's important to note that the island's terrain is hilly, with several steep climbs. In hot and humid weather, cycling can quickly become tiring. Therefore, the bicycle is better suited for short trips, in town or along the flat coastal areas.

3. Taxi – Comfortable but not always available

If you prefer comfort, taxis are a reliable transportation option in Con Dao, although limited in number. Most taxis are stationed around the airport and in the center of Con Son. They can be booked by phone, through your hotel, or a local app if available.

This is an ideal solution for the elderly, families with children, or for nighttime travel. However, given the limited availability, it's better to book in advance, especially during peak tourist periods.

4. Private car with driver – For a tailored service

For those who wish to travel without constraints, renting a car with a driver is an excellent alternative. This service is generally offered by upscale hotels or local travel agencies. It allows you to visit several remote sites in a single day without worrying about navigation or driving.

This option is ideal if you're traveling in a group or with children, or simply if you prioritize comfort and tranquility. Although more expensive than a scooter or taxi, this transportation option in Con Dao offers a high level of safety and convenience.

You can access local restaurants, the market, the museum, and even some beaches on foot. It's also an excellent way to soak up the local atmosphere, meet residents, and take your time. However, to access more remote areas like coves or historical sites outside the center, a vehicle is still necessary.

Even though transportation in Con Dao seems simple at first glance, good preparation can save you time and avoid many inconveniences. Here are some practical tips to organize your movements on the island and fully enjoy your stay.

- Check road conditions according to the season: During the rainy season, some roads can become slippery. Opt for a car with a driver for added safety.
- Bring an offline map or use Google Maps: The connection can be unstable. Download a map or plan your routes in advance to avoid getting lost.

When to visit Con Dao island? Best Time to Visit Con Dao Vietnam

Tired of crowds of tourists and endless concrete? Dreaming of a little corner of paradise, with deserted beaches, emerald sea, and sunrises that make you want to write poetry? Then it's time to pack your bags for Con Dao, one of Vietnam's best-kept secrets.

When to go to Con Dao? Be aware: like any self-respecting tropical island, Con Dao has its mood swings when it comes to weather. And to fully enjoy its wild beauty, it's better to carefully choose the right time for your trip. So, when should you go to Con Dao? What is the best time to visit Con Dao? We'll tell you everything.

I. Why you should visit Con Dao island

Con Dao is not just an island with beaches and turquoise water. It's a true natural and spiritual sanctuary, a place that touches your soul as much as it calms your mind. From the moment you get off the plane or the boat, a deep sense of peace wraps around you. Here, you're far from the chaos of the modern world. A trip to Con Dao, Vietnam means no overcrowded beaches, no blaring music, and no oversized construction. The island still feels protected, almost untouched, with its deserted coves, winding roads lined with coconut palms, and hills blanketed in vibrant, dense tropical forest.

Underwater, a parallel world opens up: multicolored coral reefs, tropical fish, rays, and sometimes even sea turtles swimming slowly by your side. It's a dream destination for snorkeling lovers, divers, or simply those who love raw nature. If you're wondering when to visit Con Dao to fully enjoy its natural treasures, know that the best time to visit Con Dao is between March and September, when the sea is calm and the underwater visibility is optimal.

But Con Dao is also an island deeply marked by history. For more than a century, it was the site of unspeakable suffering: political prisoners, Vietnamese detainees, anti-colonial opponents... The island still hosts former prisons and cemeteries that bear witness to this painful memory. The atmosphere is striking, filled with respect, emotion, and silence. This duality between wild beauty and tragic past makes the travel experience unique, almost initiatory. So when to go to Con Dao? If you want to enjoy ideal weather and also take part in remembrance ceremonies that gather Vietnamese people, spring and summer are especially meaningful times.

By joining a night tour with biologists from the national park, you might witness turtle nesting or even baby turtles hatching. It's one of the most magical experiences in Con Dao, and a compelling reason if you're still wondering when to go to Con Dao.

Even though this is the high tourist season, Con Dao remains far from the crowds. Unlike other popular destinations in Vietnam, the archipelago retains its peace, authenticity, and slow rhythm. It's a great balance between favorable weather and tranquility.

2. October to February: A quieter... but wetter period

When to go to Con Dao? That said, it would be unfair to overlook the period from October to February, especially if you enjoy calm and contemplative atmospheres. While this is the monsoon season, it doesn't mean constant rain. Showers are usually short, often late in the day, and give way to warm, golden light that enhances the scenery. The air becomes cooler (relatively speaking), vegetation thrives in a burst of tropical greens, and tourists are fewer. This is the best time to visit Con Dao for travelers seeking solitude, lovers of slow travel, or anyone wanting to escape noise and stress. You can sit in a seaside café, read to the sound of the rain, or take forest walks between two clearings.

What to do in Con Dao? However, if you absolutely want to go kayaking, boating, or snorkeling, be aware that some activities may be canceled or restricted depending on weather. Also, the sea can be rougher, making swimming less ideal. But if you're not the type to let a few drops ruin your vacation, this season offers a different Con Dao experience—more introspective and poetic.

So, when should you go to Con Dao? If you want sunshine, calm seas, and outdoor activities, March to September remains the best time to visit Con Dao. But if you're seeking a gentler, more intimate mood and aren't afraid of a few weather surprises, October to February can also be full of charm and surprises.

IV. Travel tips for Con Dao

When to go to Con Dao? Before packing your bags for this little slice of paradise, here are some practical tips to make the most of your stay on the island—whether you already know when to go or are still planning.

- Book early during the high season (March to September): Con Dao is attracting more and more travelers seeking calm and nature. If you're going during the best time to visit Con Dao, book your flights and accommodations early, especially beachfront homestays or hotels.
- Bring cash: While some places accept cards, the island remains fairly isolated. ATMs are scarce, and some businesses accept only cash.
- Rent a scooter to explore: It's the best way to discover Con Dao's secret beaches, coastal roads, and small villages freely.
- Check the weather before excursions: If you're traveling off-season, rain may change your plans. Some boat tours or diving trips can be canceled depending on sea conditions.
- Respect wildlife and nature: Con Dao is a protected natural reserve. If you're lucky enough to see turtles, make sure to do so as part of a supervised program, without disturbing their habitat.
- Be ready to disconnect: Internet coverage can be limited in some areas. It might be the perfect time to put your phone down and enjoy the scenery.
- Protect yourself from the tropical sun: Sunscreen, a hat, and a water bottle are your best friends—even on cloudy days.

Con Dao is much more than just a beach destination: it's an experience. A pause. A return to nature, to simplicity, to essentials. Choosing the best time to visit Con Dao is simply ensuring that your journey will be as gentle as the island itself. And now that you know when to go to Con Dao, all that's left is to book your flight, pack your sunscreen... and let yourself be enchanted.

Don't hesitate to contact AUTOUR ASIA, a local French-speaking agency in Vietnam, to organize your Southern Vietnam tour and discover more deeply the island of Con Dao.

Mr. Albert's recommendation for 4 day-trip in Da Lat Nha Trang

Traveling in Vietnam is always an unforgettable adventure from north to south, and my 4-day Da Lat Nha Trang trip was particularly memorable, of course. Between misty mountains and sunny beaches, I share with you here my 4-day Da Lat Nha Trang itinerary, filled with discoveries, local flavors, and breathtaking landscapes. Discover what to do and see in this 4 day Da Lat Nha Trang itinerary based on my personal experience.

I. Overview of the 4-day trip to Da Lat – Nha Trang

Traveling in Southern Vietnam, this 4-day Da Lat Nha Trang trip gave me much more than a simple vacation: it was a true enchanted escape between romantic highlands and tropical shores. In just four days, I felt like I had traveled through two completely different yet complementary worlds.

During these 4 days exploring the Da Lat Nha Trang circuit, I discovered Da Lat, a city perched at 1,500 meters above sea level, wrapped in mist each morning and bathed in sunlight in the afternoon. It's rightly called the "City of Eternal Spring." Its rolling hills, pine forests, endless flower gardens, and old colonial villas give it a romantic, almost European atmosphere. What to do in Da Lat? Admire spectacular waterfalls, get lost in flower greenhouses, explore local markets, or simply breathe the fresh air of the highlands.

In contrast, Nha Trang welcomed me with its infinite beaches of soft sand, sun-drenched islands, and vibrant seaside atmosphere. Here, the sea is king. What to do in Nha Trang? During these 4 days in Da Lat Nha Trang, I dove into turquoise waters to admire coral reefs, relaxed in mineral mud spas, explored Cham temples, and savored fresh seafood right by the water. The contrast with Da Lat was striking—but that's precisely what made the experience so rich.

To make sure I didn't miss anything, I chose a tour organized by AUTOUR ASIA – a Vietnam local travel agency. It included private vehicle transfers, comfortable accommodations, personalized guided visits, and a selection of typical meals. This allowed me to focus entirely on the essentials: to live, feel, and marvel. If you're wondering what to do in Da Lat Nha Trang with limited time, this 4-day itinerary is ideal. It maximizes every moment and frees you from all logistical worries.

Day 2: Da Lat to Nha Trang – Scenic Transfer

Day 3: Nha Trang – Beach escape in Southern Vietnam

Day 4: Departure from Nha Trang – End of the trip

II. My detailed 4-day Da Lat Nha Trang Itinerary

1. Day 1: Arrival in Da Lat – City Tour

On my 4-day Da Lat Nha Trang trip, I was welcomed at Lien Khuong Airport in Da Lat by our guide and driver. I was immediately enveloped in a fresh and poetic atmosphere. The morning mist, pine-lined winding roads, colorful flowers everywhere... This city offered me an unforgettable, gentle welcome. If you're wondering what to do in Da Lat on the first day, I recommend starting with Bao Dai's Summer Palace. This historical site took me back in time into the private life of Vietnam's last emperor.

Continuing my Da Lat Nha Trang 4-day itinerary, I visited Truc Lam Monastery, peacefully located on a hill overlooking Tuyen Lam Lake. A spiritual and calm place, perfect for meditation. I stayed there a while, just sitting in silence, breathing in the fresh air.

In the afternoon, I opted for something more dynamic: Datanla Waterfall and its high-speed alpine coaster! A thrilling experience, contrasting beautifully with the morning's serenity. I ended the day with an unforgettable photo at the Bali Heaven Gate, offering views of the surrounding mountains. This first day gave me an exceptional taste of what a 4-day Da Lat Nha Trang trip can be: a balance of nature, history, excitement, and beauty.

2. Day 2: Da Lat to Nha Trang – Scenic Transfer

The second day of my 4-day Da Lat Nha Trang itinerary was all about the transition between these two worlds: from Da Lat's cool heights to Nha Trang's warm seaside. The journey, though long, was an experience in itself—spectacular landscapes, lush hills, picturesque villages... I couldn't take my eyes off the window.

Upon arriving in Nha Trang, I immediately took the cable car across the sea to VinWonders on Hon Tre Island. This amusement park awakened my inner child: water shows, rides, lush gardens... But what moved me the most was the TATA Show in the evening—a real outdoor fairy tale, blending light, music, and emotion.

This second day proved that a 4-day Da Lat Nha Trang trip can be both heart-stirring and imaginative. If you're looking for what to do in Nha Trang with family or friends, VinWonders is a must.

3. Day 3: Nha Trang – Beach Escape in Southern Vietnam

If I had to choose my favorite day of the entire Da Lat Nha Trang 4-day itinerary, it would undoubtedly be the third day, devoted to exploring Nha Trang's marine universe. The sun had barely risen when I boarded a speedboat, as excited as a child. First stop: Bai Tranh Beach, a paradise tucked between two green hills. Walking on its fine white sand, I felt deeply at peace. I lay down, eyes half-closed, soothed by the sound of the waves, the salty ocean breeze, and the light wind on my skin. At that moment, I understood why so many travelers come to Nha Trang to rest and reconnect.

But the most intense moment of the day—and perhaps of my whole 4-day Da Lat Nha Trang trip—was my first scuba dive. After a safety briefing, I plunged into the turquoise waters... and time stood still. Around me: corals in shades of pink, orange, and violet; schools of colorful fish moving like silk ribbons; and a sacred silence. I had tears in my eyes upon resurfacing. I had just encountered a world of unimaginable beauty.

In the afternoon, we stopped at a fishing village, a warm and authentic experience. I enjoyed a simple yet unforgettable meal: grilled shrimp, crispy squid, and steamed fish, all freshly caught and prepared before my eyes. The smiling, generous fishermen shared stories—some humorous, some wise. Again, I felt deeply connected to Vietnamese culture.

That day, I realized Nha Trang isn't just about scenery. It's a feeling, a rhythm, a way of life. This wasn't just another stop in my 4-day Da Lat Nha Trang itinerary—it was a chapter of life etched in memory.

4. Day 4: Departure from Nha Trang. End of the trip

For the final day of my 4-day Da Lat Nha Trang trip, I slowed down, savoring each moment with a mix of relaxation and cultural discovery. After three full days of exploration, I wanted to reconnect with myself, the history of the region, and nature.

My morning started with a unique visit: a swallow nest farm. Tucked away in a peaceful area of Nha Trang, this facility gave me insight into a traditional Vietnamese craft. I learned how these nests, prized for their nutritional value, are carefully harvested with full respect for the birds' life cycles. For those looking for non-touristy things to do in Nha Trang, this experience stood out for its ecological and human dimension.

Continuing my 4-day Da Lat Nha Trang itinerary, I headed to one of the spiritual gems of Central Vietnam: the Cham Towers of Thap Ba Ponagar. These red-brick structures have watched over the city from a green hill for centuries. I sat in the shade, watching worshippers burn incense, and felt a deep inner peace I hadn't felt in a long time.

The afternoon was dedicated to pure relaxation. And what better way than soaking in a hot mud bath at Thap Ba Spa, known for its mineral-rich waters? The contrast between the warm mud and cool air brought a true feeling of renewal. I followed up with a mineral shower and a dip in a natural pool surrounded by palm trees. It was the perfect ending to my 4-day Da Lat Nha Trang journey, a warm and soothing farewell to this generous region.

Leaving the spa, I thought: if someone asked me what to do in Nha Trang for an unforgettable last day, I would recommend this blend of tradition, spirituality, and wellness without hesitation.
