BACKGROUND

History

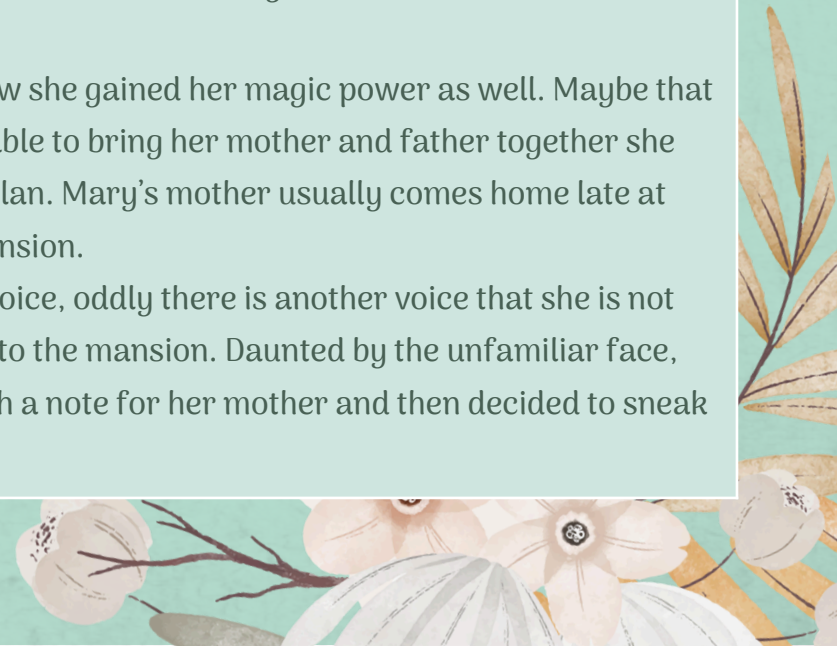

Mary Gray was born and raised in a wealthy family. She was taught high-class etiquette and homeschooled. Rarely having interaction with normal kids, she might seem to have quite an odd attitude compared to someone her age. She too ended up having a very commanding tone as she was always being served by maids and butlers at her mansion who never complained about her orders. She is blessed with a lot of things in her life, except for her detached parents.

Her parent's relationships are not the most perfect thing. They got together from an arranged marriage, a wealthy family with another wealthy family. At an early age, Mary and her little sister rarely spent any time with their parents, mostly accompanied by maids instead. Her father is mostly locked up in the study room or the greenhouse, meanwhile, her mother is always out having afternoon teas, banquets, or parties with her own circle.

Though when her magic power awakened at the age of 7, Her father reached out to her for the first time. She finally got his attention thanks to the magic she just gained. They spent a lot of time together in the greenhouse, her father teaching her how to use magic. She and her father bonded over time. Mary is very delighted, she began to gain interest in flowers and her magic skill too because of her father.

Mary decided to show her mother the flower she cultivates and wanted to tell her how she gained her magic power as well. Maybe that way her mother would look at her just like how her father did, or even better she might be able to bring her mother and father together she thinks, she told her plan to her Father and he does not seem to mind Mary's matchmaking plan. Mary's mother usually comes home late at night, so she is determined to stay awake and wait for her in the dark living room of the mansion.

Long after, Mary fell asleep on the sofa, suddenly she is awakened by her mother's voice, oddly there is another voice that she is not familiar with. When she peeked, she saw her mother had brought back an unknown man into the mansion. Daunted by the unfamiliar face, she hesitated to come out to approach her mother. She left the flower in the living room with a note for her mother and then decided to sneak away to go back into her room quietly.

In the morning, she doesn't like to visit her mother's room, because her mother is always in the worst mood at that time. So she spends her morning with her father, in the study room reading about magic and plants. Meanwhile chatting with her father, she also told him what she saw last night to her father. Hearing that, her father grew silent and had a serious look on his face. Mary had thought that she said something wrong. Her father had told her to not tell this to anyone else, Mary nodded and then it became silent. After some time, she tried to distract the father by asking about the book. Her father responds to her and they continue to spend time together. Although father seems quite out of it after that. Mary remained clueless.

Things remained normal and peaceful for them until one day her father and mother argued with each other. They are rarely seen together, so this situation is quite a scene. Mary eardrops them outside, she could not understand what they are talking about, but she heard her mother saying unsavory things which are quite unladylike, and she gasped. The maid takes her away from in front of the door to avoid her listening further to her parent's debates.

After that happened, the mansion had a more unpleasant atmosphere to it. Mary's father is away more often, he seems to be busy with something. When she is outside for a walk with her maid, she often hears people whispering and seems to take a glance at her. Mary thought maybe they were admiring her beauty but then she heard a word she did not understand "The poor child's mother is in an affair". She is not poor, she thinks and what is even an affair? She does not understand it at that moment, but she does not like the vibe.

A month after, her father told Mary and her little sister that they will not live together with their mother anymore. They had separated. Mary had asked why, but her father did not explain it quite clearly. Confused and sad they followed their father quietly and lived peacefully together.

As she grew up, she came to understand what had happened and what it all meant after her father explained them. The more she remembers and understands it, the more she grew disdain towards her mother. Mary determined after realizing her past, that she would not want to be like her mother at all and work hard to be a great and respected lady.

TLDR: Mary grew up in a wealthy family, while she has everything, she didn't have her parent's attention. Although after she gained her magic, her father grew close to her. But her mother remained distant. In the end, the mother gets caught in an affair and they end up separating ways from her. Mary with her father and sister lived peacefully after.

Reasons for joining Azarashi

Mary's family moved to Mombetsu due to her father's business. Instead of homeschooling again, a relative who lived in Mombetsu recommended she enroll at the prestigious Azarashi High School. As it is a good chance for her to experience normal school life and be independent, she follows her relative's recommendation.

TRIVIA

- > When she laughs she uses her fan to cover her lower face. Because she tend to laugh out loud quite easily and can't hold it in. Which is not quite ladylike.
- > Often in denial of her own incapability. She's great at magic but mediocre at most subjects.
- > Cannot stand when others are unkempt. She will tidy them up.
- > Due to the move to Mombetsu, Japan. They could not bring their servants from overseas to the country. So now they are in search of butler and maids to hire once the mansion is fully built.
- > She can eat anything and not really picky with food.
