

This doc is something I've been thinking about for over a year now. Around April of last year @TheNewRhyme (or Reem) voiced their attraction for a character of Middle School age around me. Only me and a small circle of people have known about this until now. It's hard to explain this before you've seen the evidence, but this has only stayed private for so long because this situation is very complex. But with new information I have learned about since. These actions are definitely things that need to be shared. Before I was worried that this evidence just wouldn't be enough on its own to not just be dismissed. Or that because it wasn't strong enough on its own I felt it wasn't worth the possible ramifications on Reem herself. But anyone I've shown this to before has agreed that Reem's actions here are very concerning. So I've finally decided, Reem was the one who did these things. Not me. I have harbored a constant feeling of guilt this past year. Worried that she may be a groomer like I think. That I could be helping to prevent her from preying on anyone else by releasing this. Yet she's also in such a horrible living situation that releasing this could inadvertently also destroy her life entirely. And then I'd think again if I'm wrong... She's been depending on the support of her followers with her living situation. If she lost her followerbase, I felt that I could be indirectly sentencing her to death in her home country of Morocco for her being trans. But again, I've decided these are her actions, I think protecting her victims should be placed in higher importance than her. She's not the victim here. Why am I sheltering her? It may seem a bit weird how much I'm explaining my thought process here in releasing this to people unfamiliar with Reem. But I'm familiar with her followers and accusations of this kind against her won't just be taken lightly. I just want it to be known that my decision to release this was not made lightly. Please try and hear out what I'm saying and don't jump to conclusions. I'd also like to mention that I'm also going to be connecting my experiences here with a previous callout doc Reem made on herself recently. Where she outlines a relationship she had with a 14 year old when she was 17. Some reading this may have already seen that doc and feel that Reem has grown, or that there's more nuance to it than I am letting on to right now. Please just hear me out, I think what I have to share here provides enough concern to bring that past situation into this. The replies to that post were mostly people forgiving Reem and I feel what I have to say here will make you reevaluate thoughts you may have had there.

My Experience With Reem:

For initial context, I began my friendship with Reem (who I should specify used to go primarily by the name Rhyme) in late 2023 I think? And this happened April 12th 2025. So I had known Reem for a decent amount of time at this point. Basically I'm trying to get across that we were very close friends. This all happened a little bit after my birthday and as some form of a gift for that she decided to get around to watching the final 10 episodes of my favorite show "Moon Girl And Devil Dinosaur". She was live tweeting some things about the show at the time which is where the tweets in question in this doc started. She tweeted "NEW CARTOON CRUSH UNLOCKRF" and "I CANTTTT I WANT HIM SO BADDDD IM IN LOVE WITH HIM" about the character "Eduardo" from the show. This is very concerning because Eduardo, while not having a canonical age, is in Middle School with the protagonist Lunella. Lunella herself is 13 years old so Eduardo is either 12 or 13 to my best guess. So I immediately replied to the tweet she made on her private account to inform her that he was 13 years old. These next images are of the tweets she made about Eduardo and our exchanges in the replies to said tweets. (Tavriumly Depressed is my private account)

I don't have an image of my second reply here where I say "(cont.)" here but you can infer that I'm explaining why the 3 year age gap is wrong. Also I should add that Rhyme's birthday is June 7th. I bring this up later in our dms about this but this age gap was less than 2 months off from being a 4 year age gap or even larger considering Eduardo does not have a canonical age. But I'll continue to be favorable and say he's 13.

Evidence of a tweet of Reem talking about her birthday showing it is June 7th.

I was very shocked with the way this conversation went. I thought Reem just didn't know Eduardo's age. But she was very weirdly defensive of her actions here as you can see. She claims that there was "nothing sexual about it". When the tweet in question that this was a direct reply to was her saying in all caps "I WANT HIM SO BADDDD". She then kept saying contradicting things about just his voice or that she wasn't planning on dating him? The part about her not dating him just sounded like the argument lolicons make. That because they aren't "real children" there was no harm. She can't date him because he's not real so it's "ok". But the character is designed to look like a middle schooler. If you are attracted to a fictional middle schooler you are still a danger to real middle schoolers. And also lastly, with what she said about her being "a teenager" too. She was almost 4 years older than the character. I know I'm rounding up, but this is less than 2 months I'm talking about here. There is a sizable gap in maturity difference here at this developmental stage. Being with a 13 year old. A Middle Schooler in the United States. When you are about to be the age of a Senior in Highschool. It is a very sizable gap. There's a big power imbalance there. Eduardo is more of a preteen than a teenager. So I'd say this is definitely wrong....

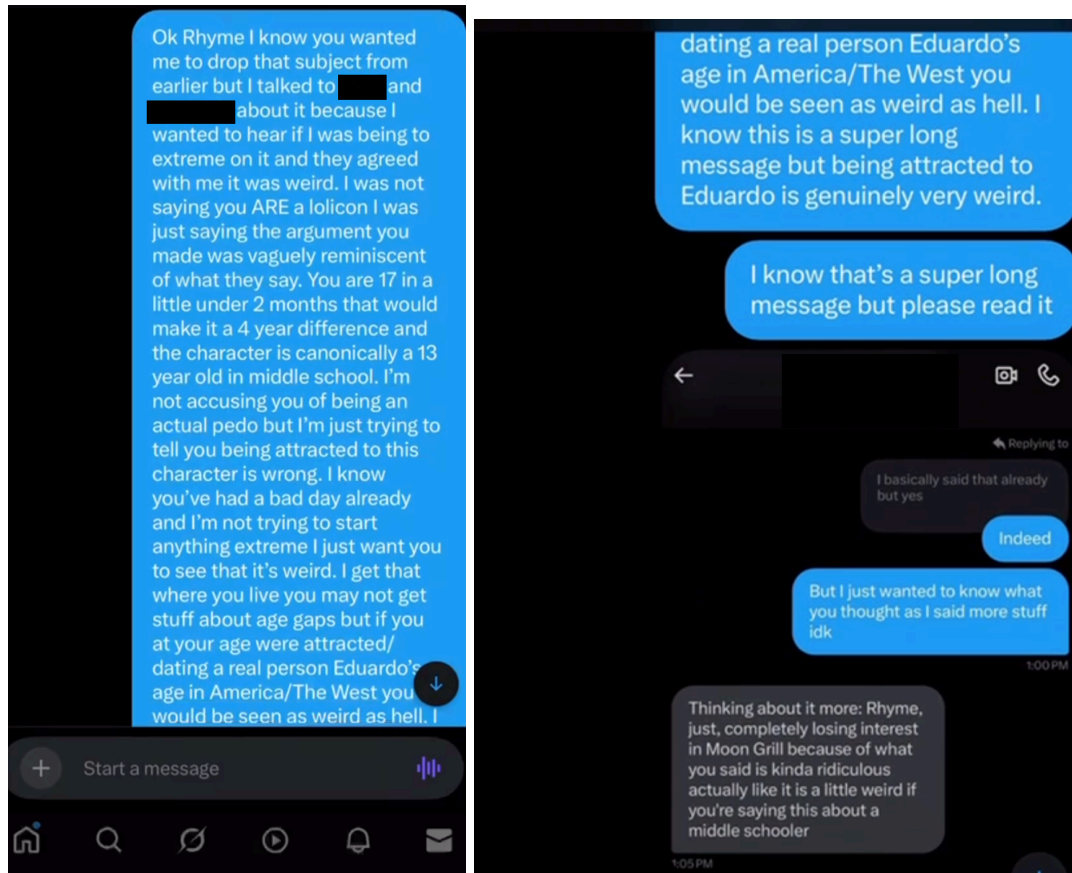

Newer screenshot of this reply showing that this all happened on April 12th 2025 definitively. Less than 2 months before her 17th birthday.

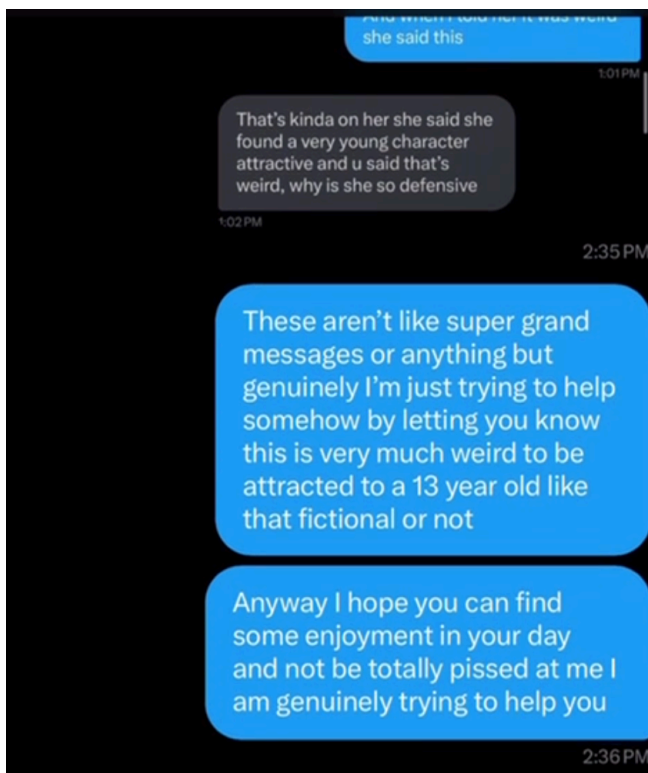

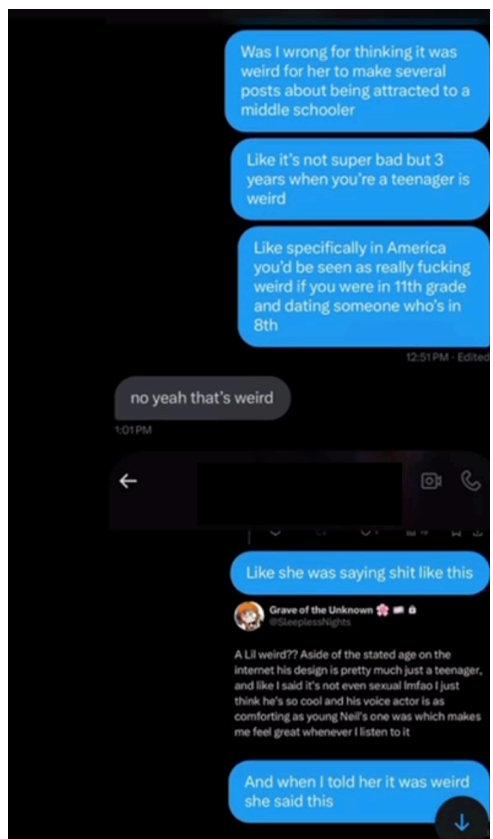

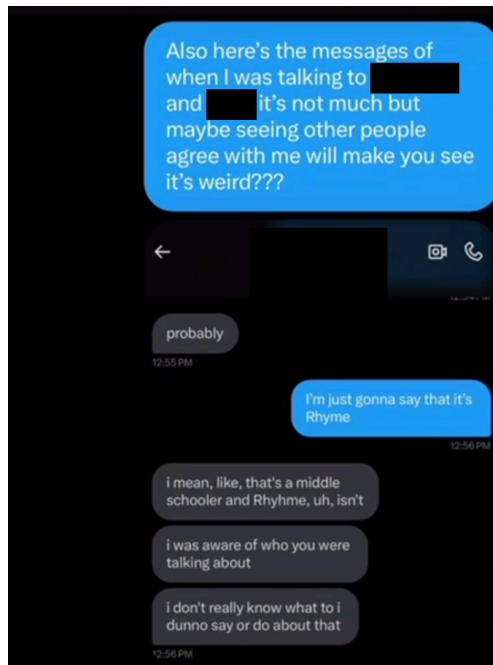

After these replies were exchanged I felt like I was going insane. Was Reem right and I was making a big deal out of nothing? I turned to mutual friends who were already on her private account and sent them the tweets she made and asked if they agreed with me that they were weird. I thought that if I could get other people that she trusted as friends to say they agree with me. She would consider what I was saying more and see that it was wrong. I figured she may not be as educated on the morality of this, living in Morocco. And that this would help get through to her.

This will be an extremely long string of images of our Twitter dms the same day 4/12/25 of me trying to convince her that these tweets about Eduardo were wrong. (Names of the mutual friends involved here will be censored)

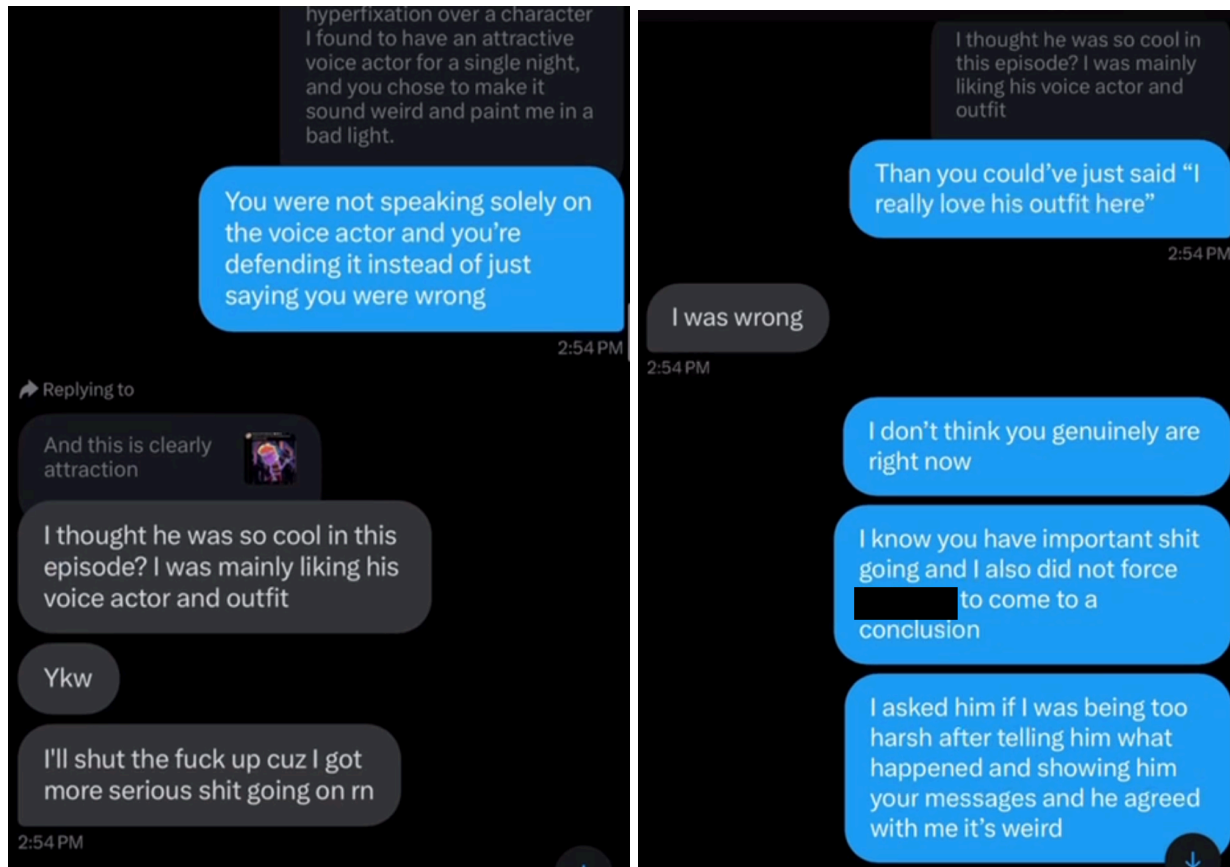

It might be hard to tell at first from the censor but the 2nd image has a screenshot of me talking to a mutual friend of ours.

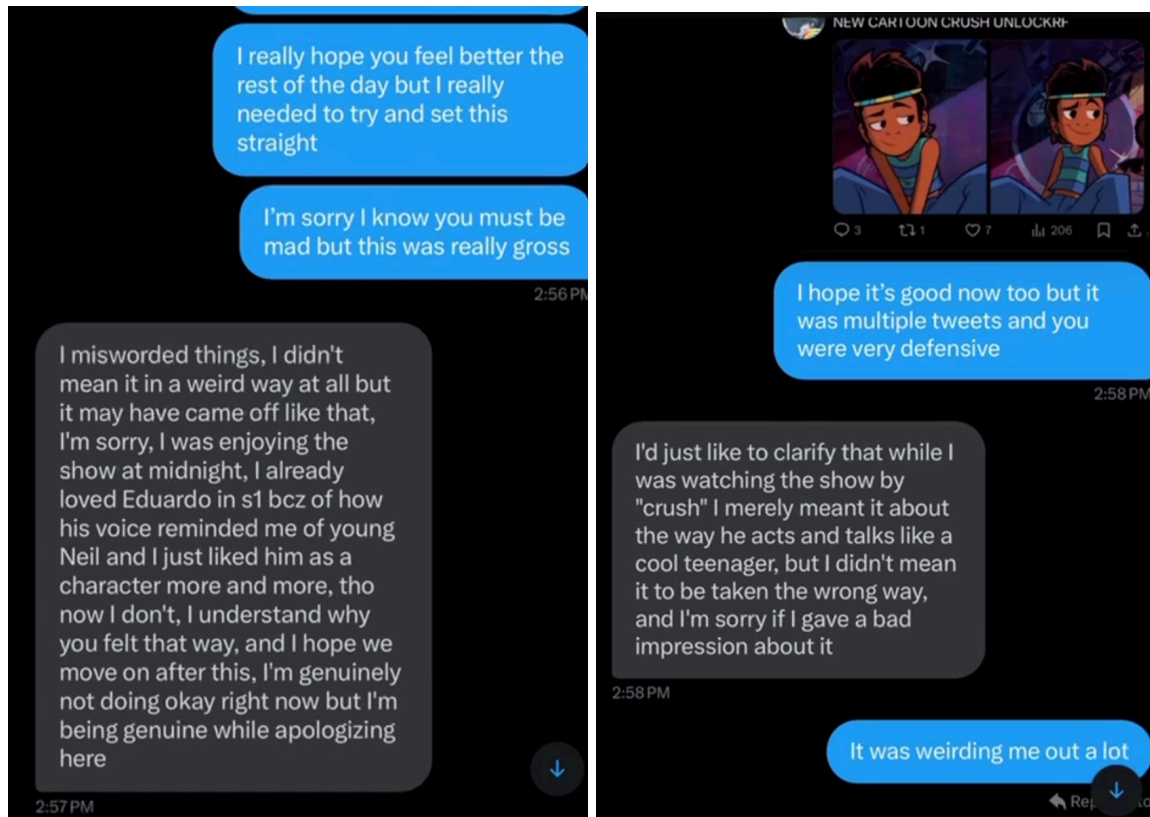

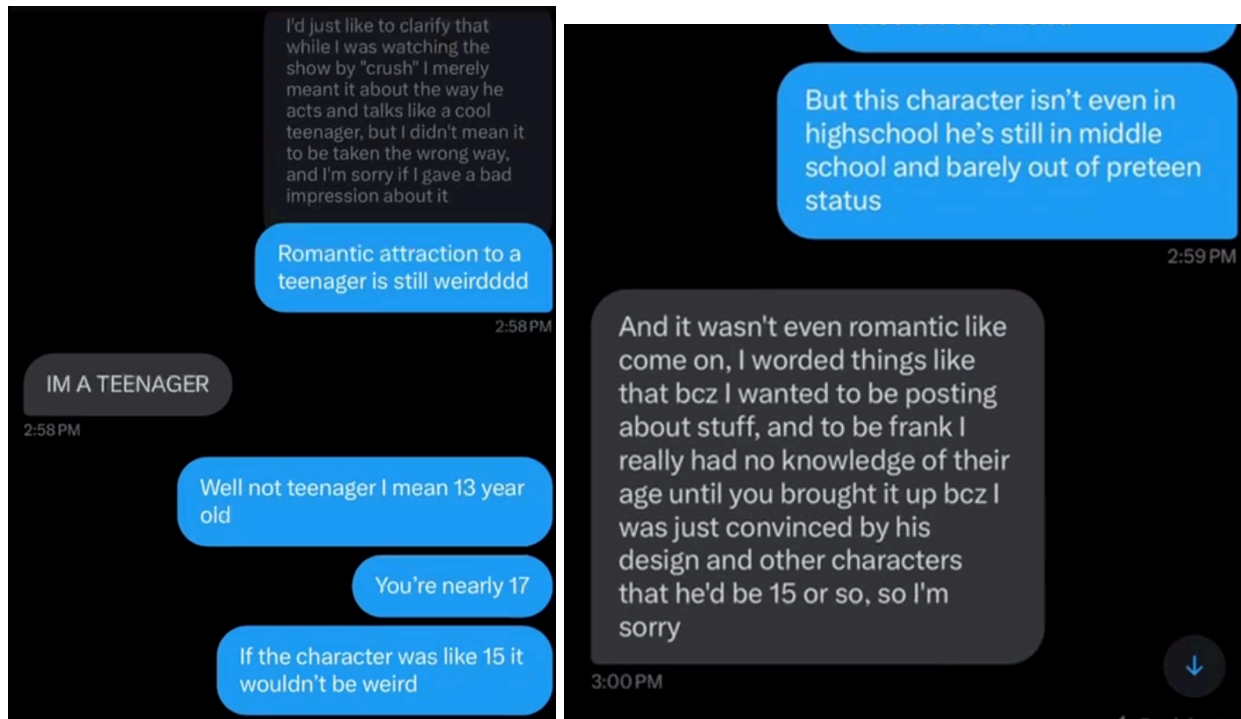

I am going to give a more thorough analysis of what I think of this conversation at the end of the messages here. But you can already see Reem is guilt tripping me and possibly just straight up lying. Saying she never said she wanted to date him. While technically she didn't say EXACTLY that she wants to date him. As I say there was a very obvious implication from the tweet.

She is just lying in this first image. That she had no feelings for the character. And when I obviously disprove this by showing the “new cartoon crush unlocked” tweet. She just has to come up with a new lie. I do not believe she is really so stupid she somehow doesn’t know what having a cartoon crush means or implies. The line originates from a Saberspark clip that is obviously romantic/sexual in nature.

The very first thing I said to Reem was "Reem he's like 13". This whole situation could've been avoided if she went "oh shit I didn't know". But she keeps trying to justify this.

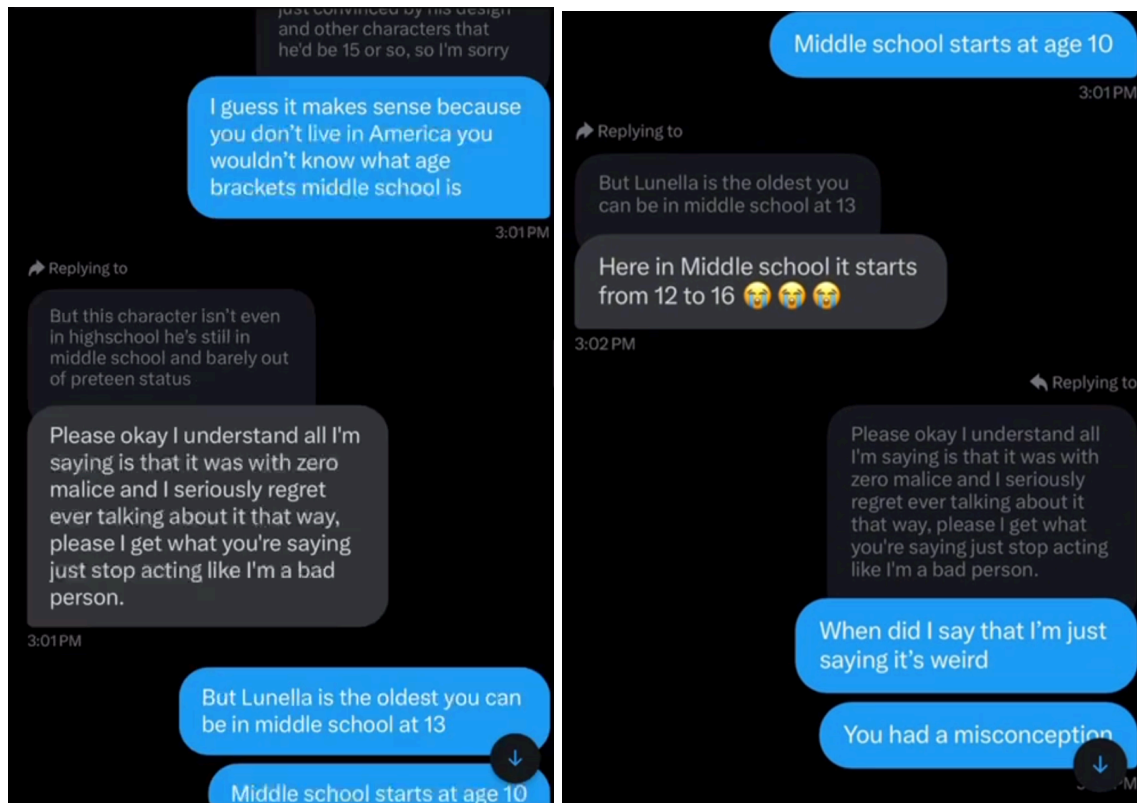

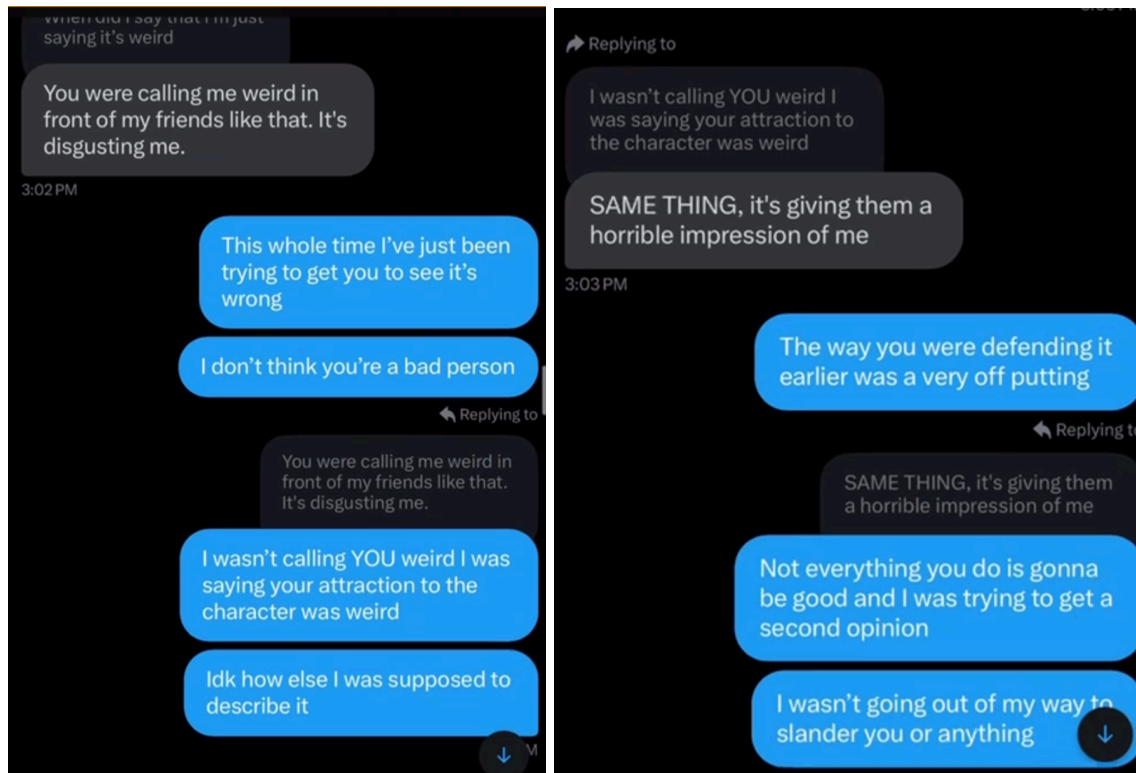

If you look at her initial response here. She disregards that I said he is 13 and says there's nothing sexual about this tweet.

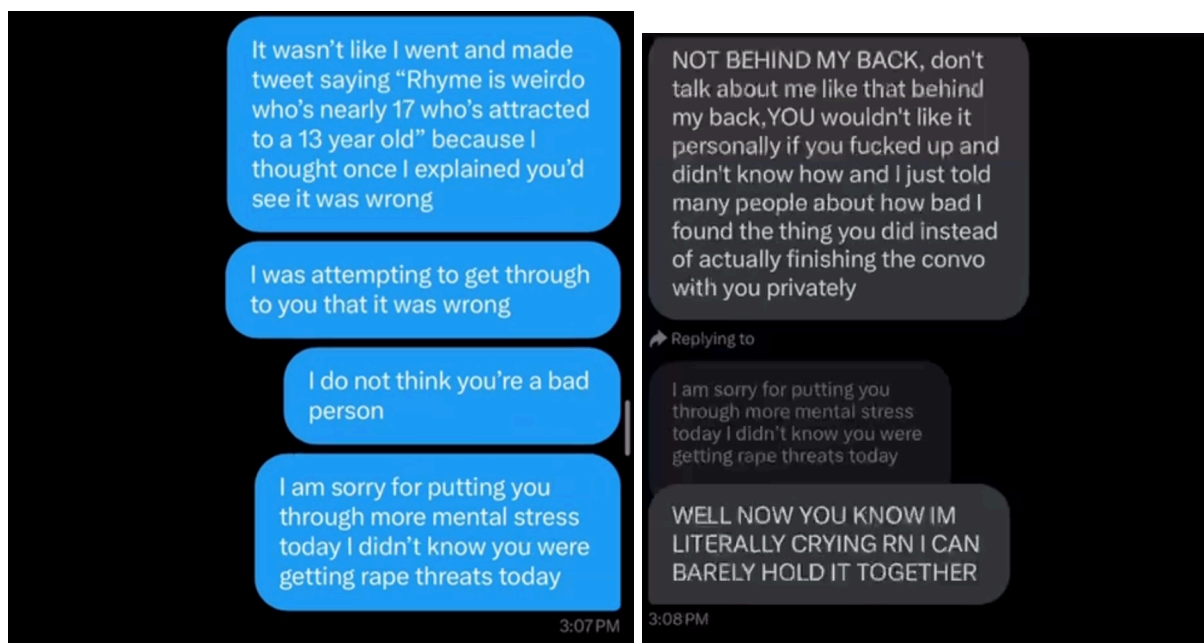

When this is the tweet.

Back to the Twitter DMs..

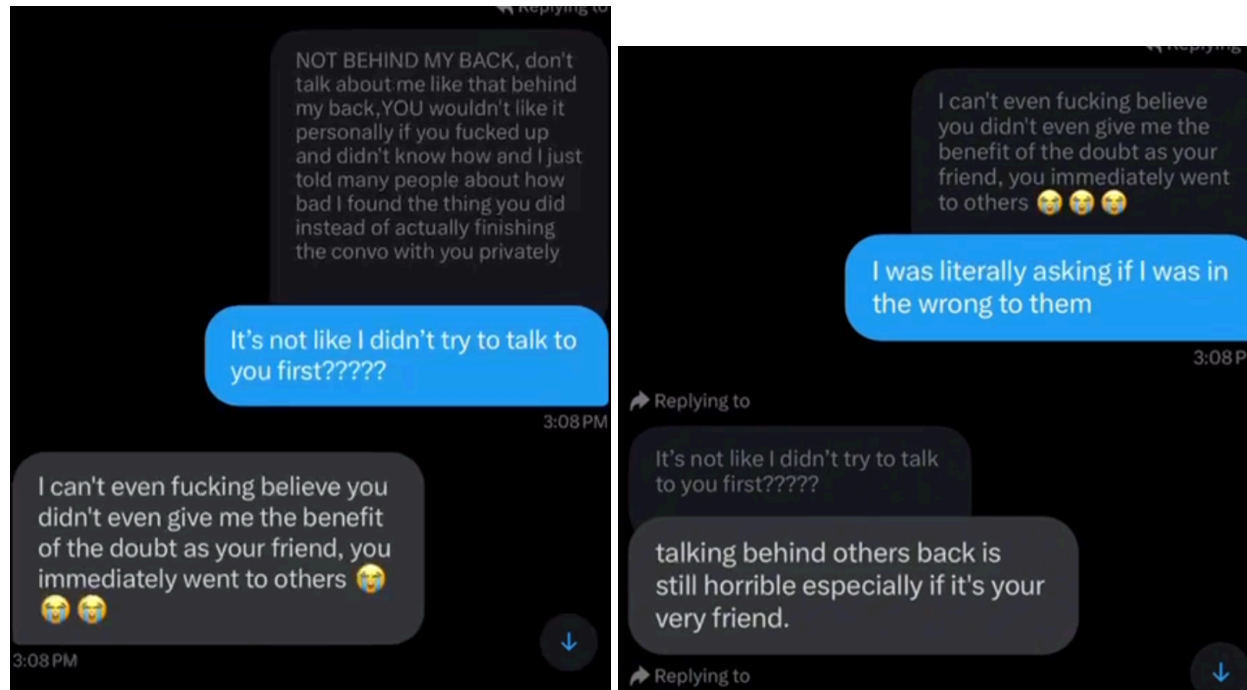

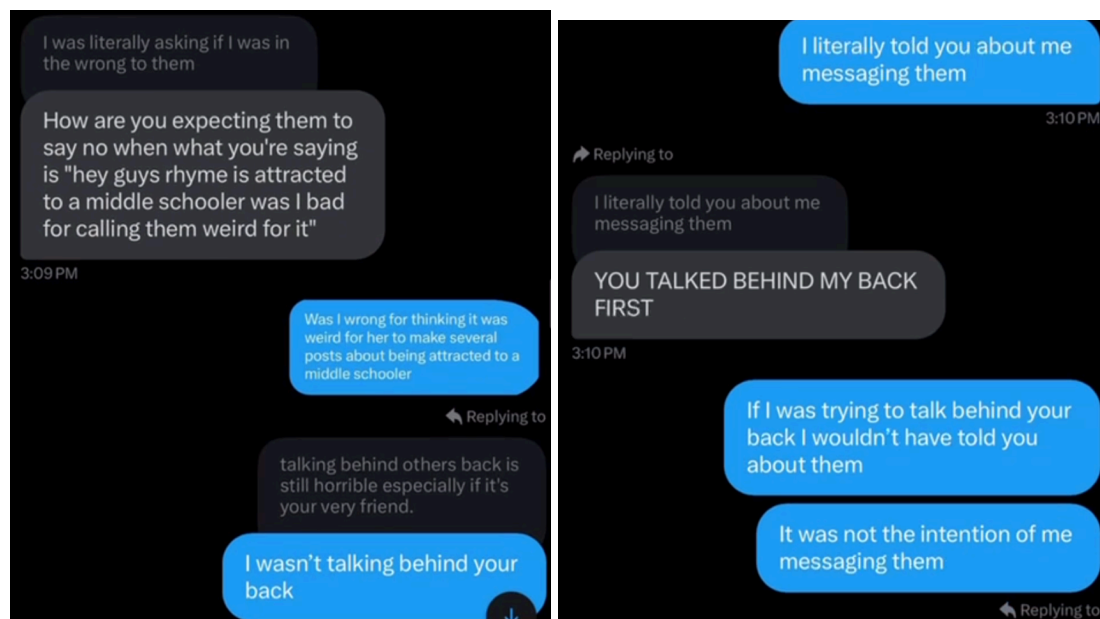

She is guilt tripping and making herself out to be the true victim here. When she is the one who made the tweets being attracted to a minor. Mind you, this conversation has been going on for 2 hours in dms at this point. And this all could've been avoided by her simply saying "I did not know his age"

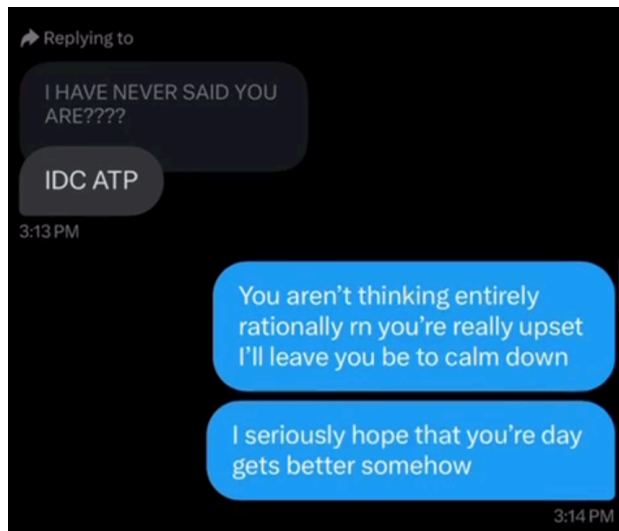

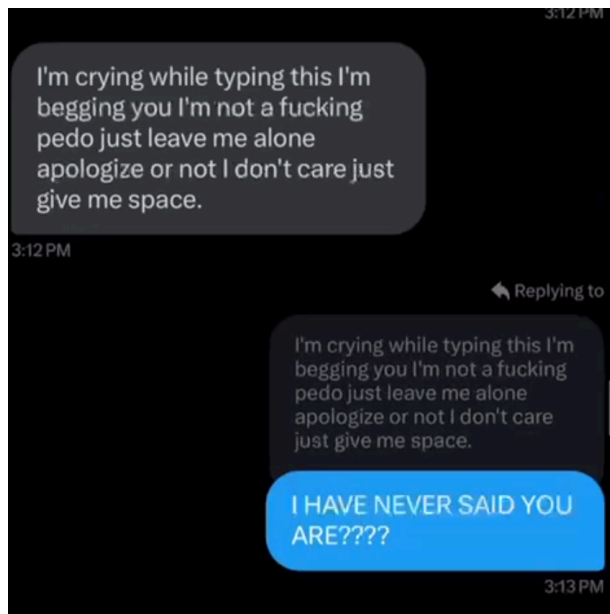

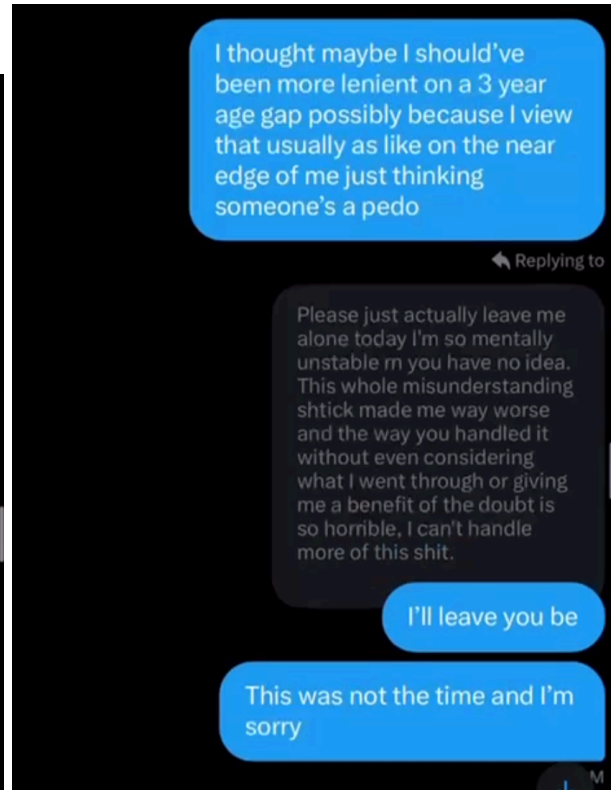

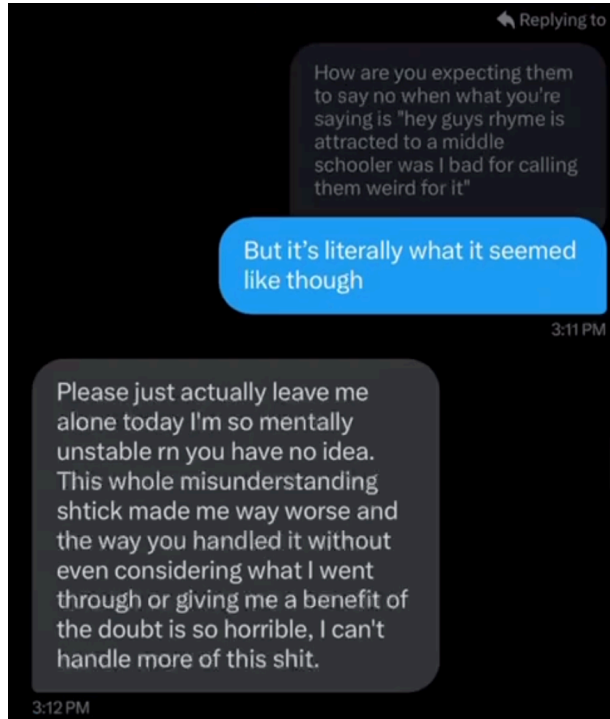

I know I am betraying what I said in the image about not tweeting about this. But I was trying to hear her out here and give her a chance. I was just trying to show to her I genuinely wasn't out to get her at the time. I didn't immediately take this to the public, I wanted to try and help her understand this is wrong as her friend.

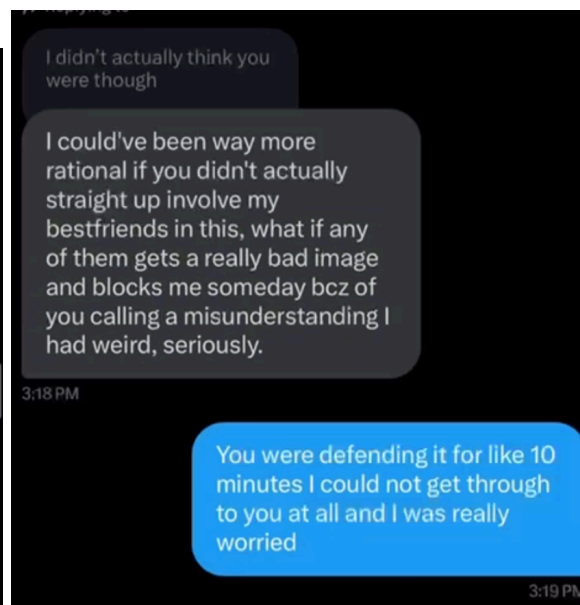

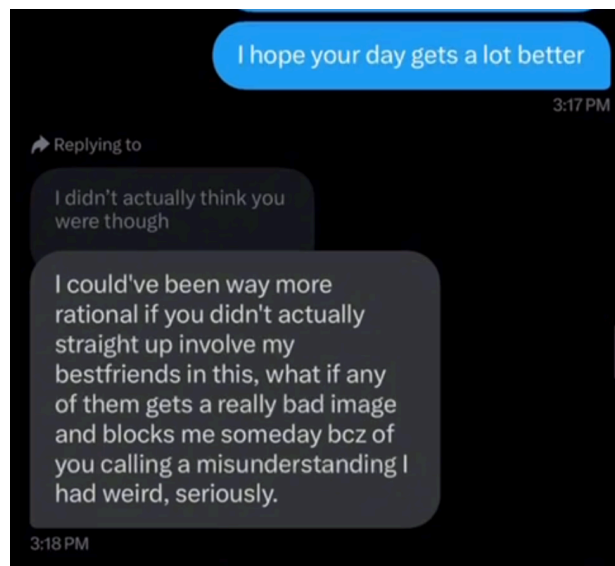

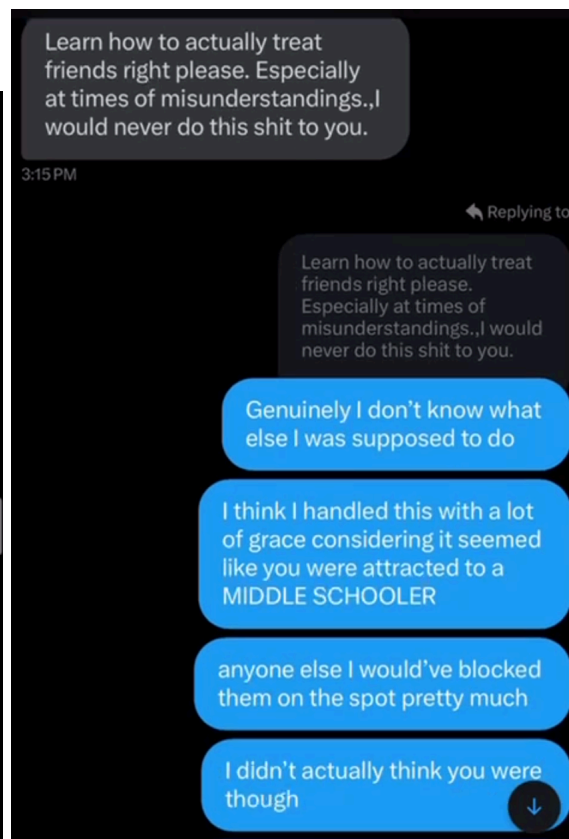

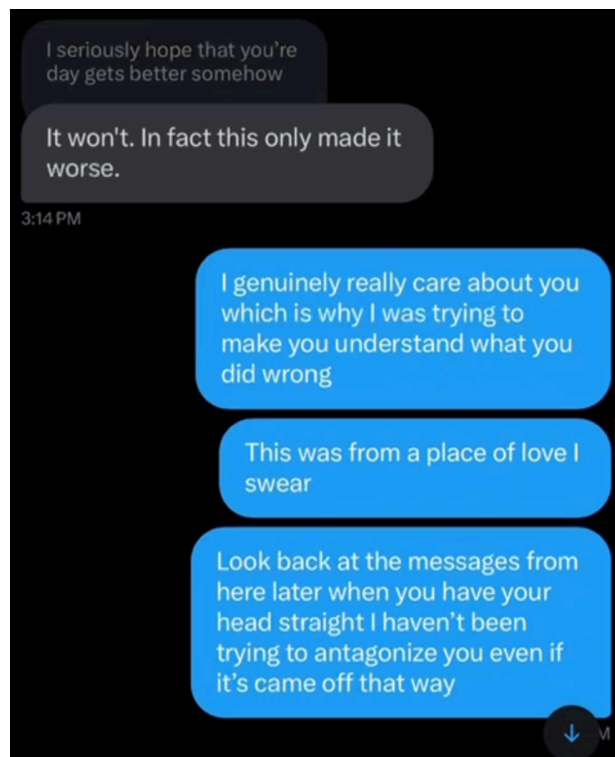

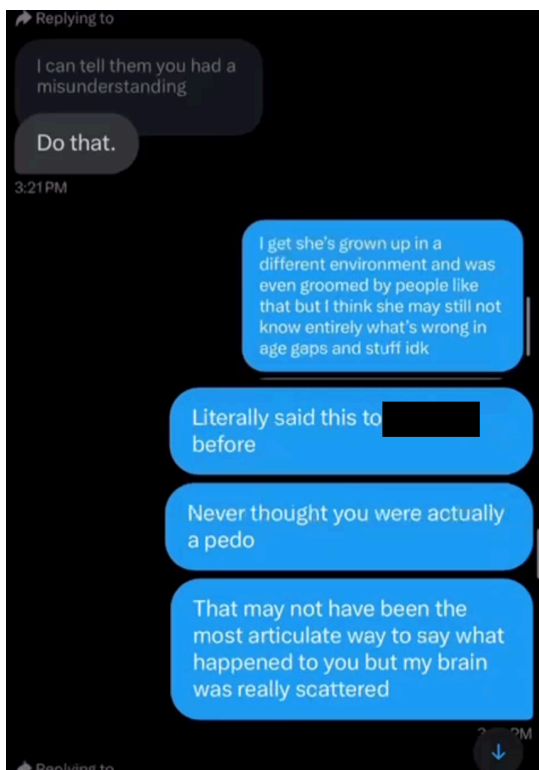

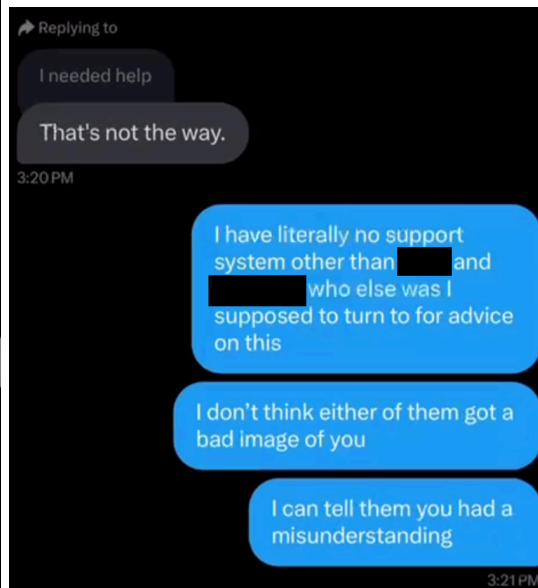

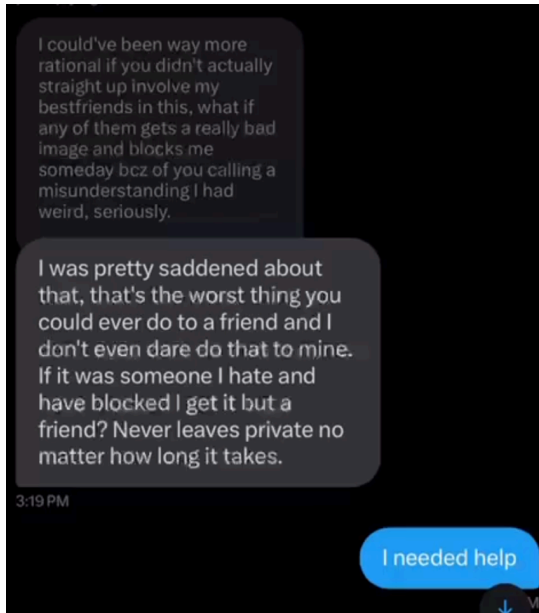

She is very much honing in on trying to make herself the true victim now. Keep this in mind as this doc continues. This is a consistent trend in her behavior where she'll cast blame on others so that the end conclusion is "we both did bad things here" despite the fact she did drastically worse.

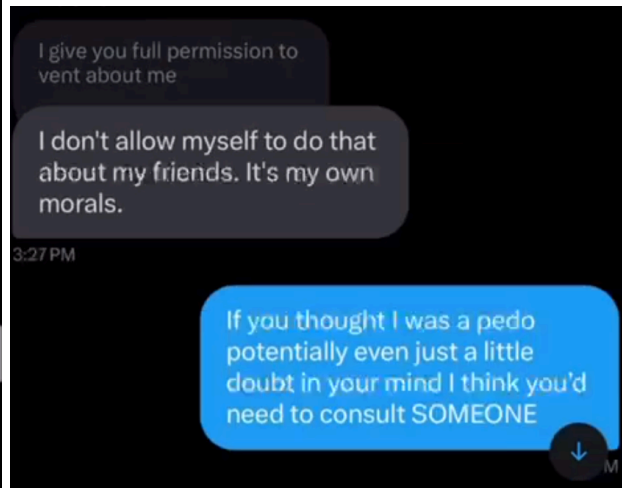

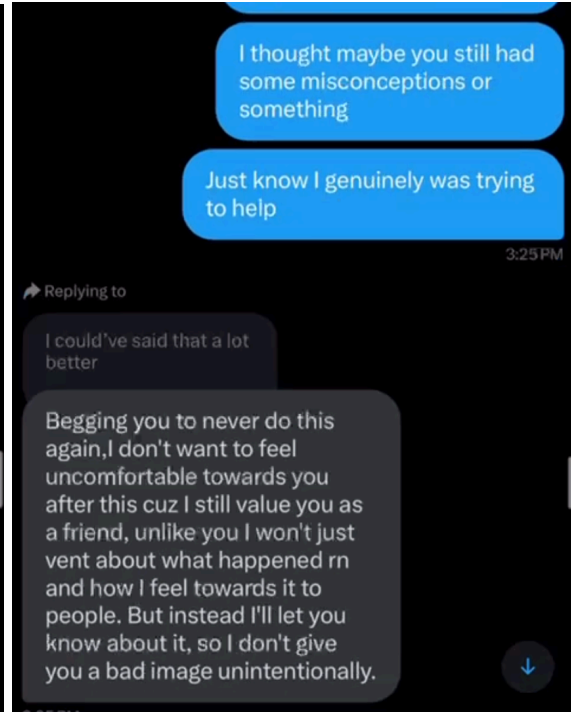

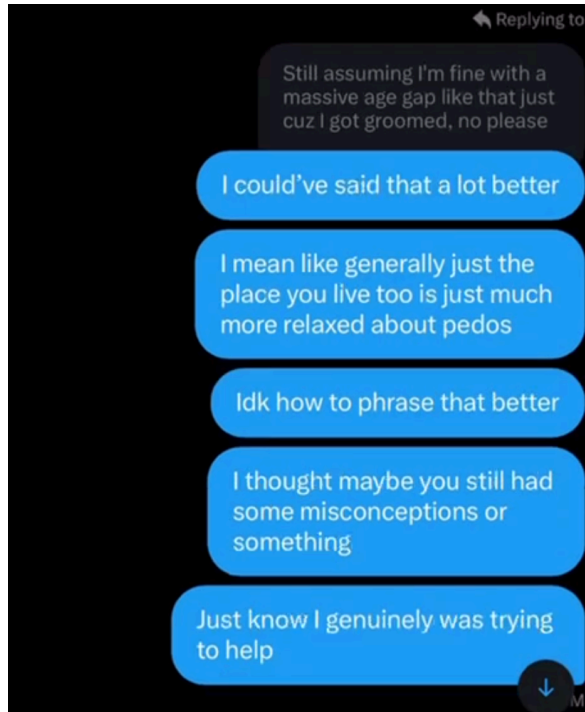

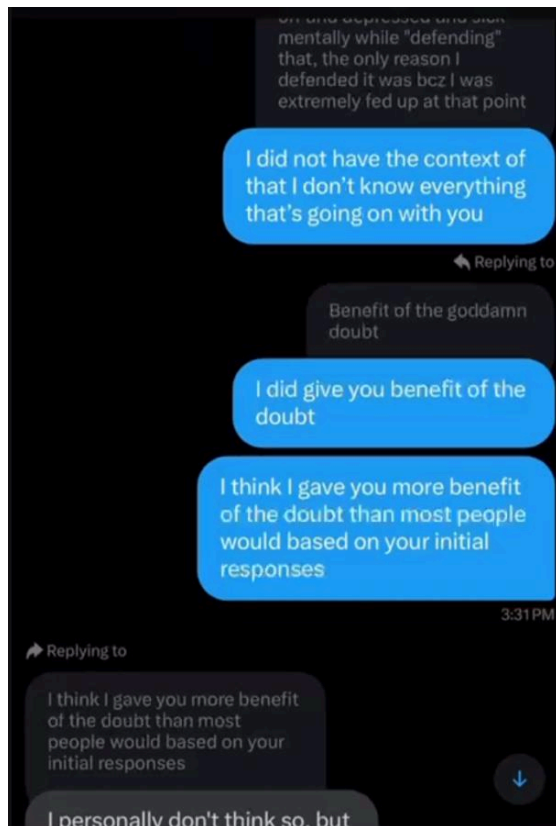

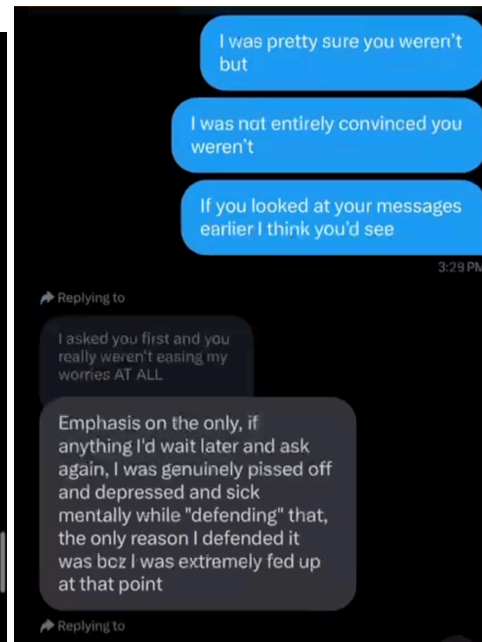

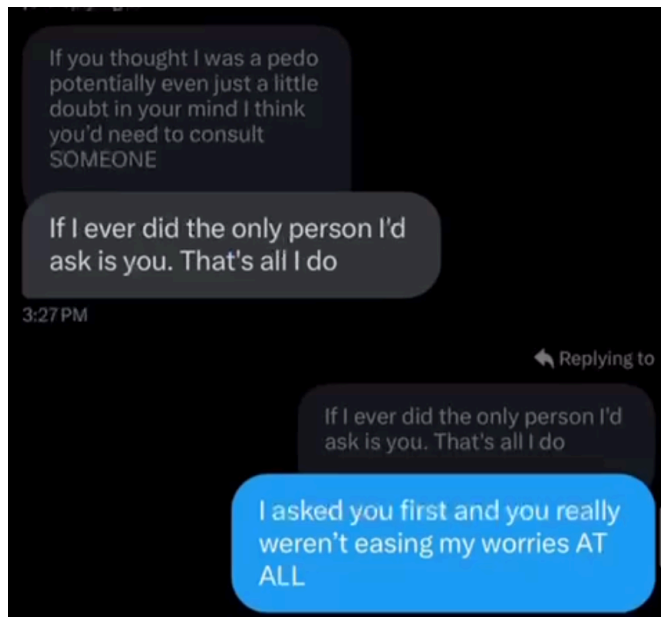

She says, I'M the one who needs to "apologize" now when she is the one who made the tweets about being sexually attracted to a Middle Schooler..... I'm the one who has to apologize.... for calling her out on this....

I regret how I said this about her grooming. I did at the time too, but i just want to make it clear I was trying to say that no matter how aware she is, she could still not have a full grasp on this due to living in Morocco.

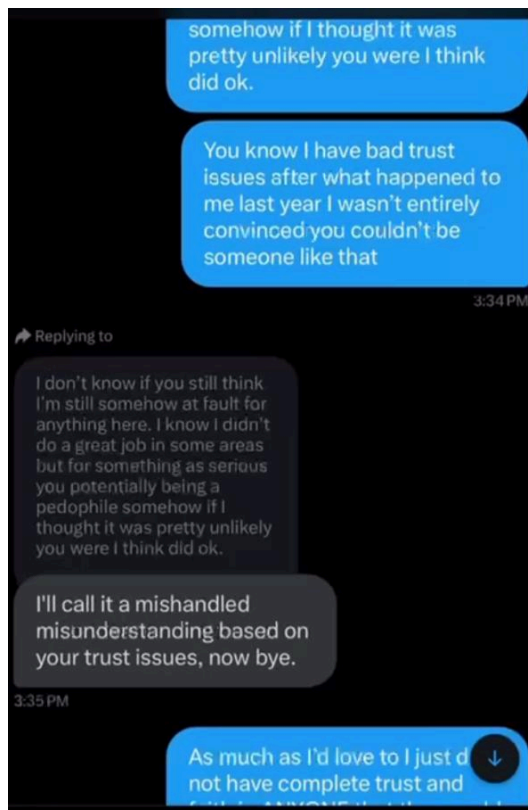

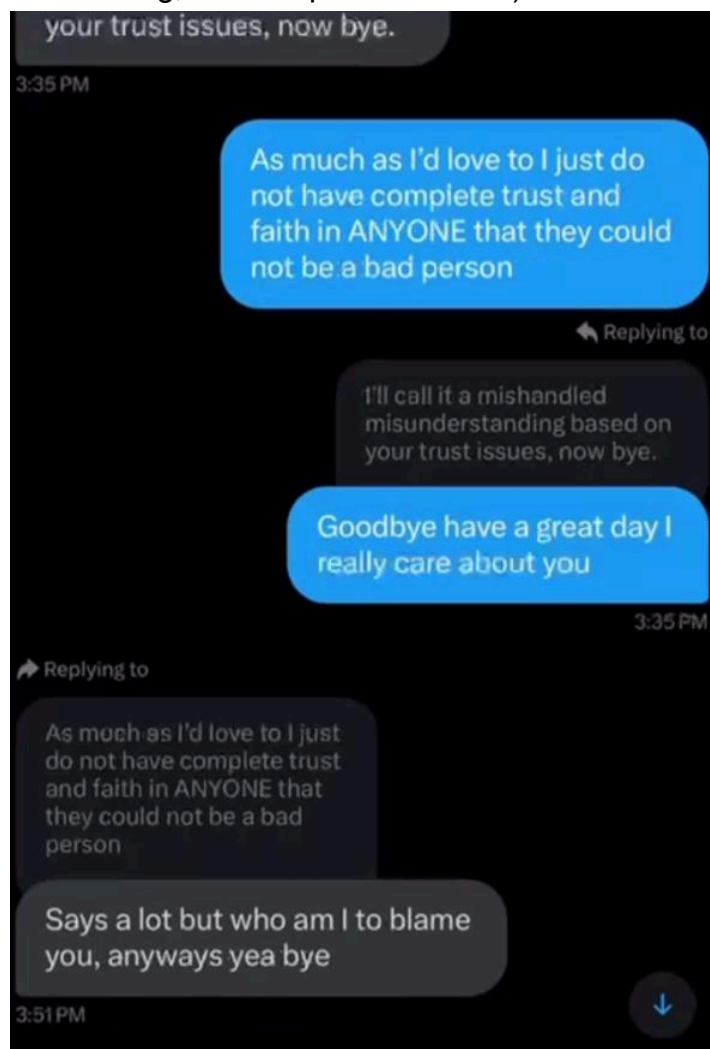

Unfortunately from the way I saved these, this image is slightly cut off and I can't get the full dm anymore since Reem's private account was suspended or deactivated. I think what little you can make out is still telling but I'll try and explain what's cut off if anything in these next few images to the best of my ability.

For this image above here my best guess is the rest was just her saying she wanted to rest her head and lay down after a stressful day.

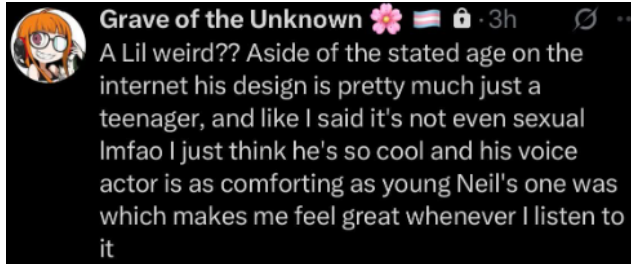

What I was saying at the top of this image is that I thought it was unlikely she was a groomer/pedophile but I had to confront her about it. (Also I am not explaining the trust issues thing, it's unimportant to this.)

Ok that was all of the twitter dms, from these i'm going to say my personal views I've had on these pretty much ever since this happened. But also the possible interpretation that gave me my shadow of doubt on sharing these messages for over a year now.

Reem's narrative changes throughout these tweets where she keeps trying to come up with some excuse to justify this. She at first tries to just say that he looks "enough" like a teenager. Instead of just listening to the very first thing that I said that he is 13. She then tries to say that she just liked the outfit or voice. And that the tweets were just somehow not sexual/romantic in nature at all. Which is very obviously false. She obviously has some level of attraction to him even just the voice but she even says at one point that she just liked how it sounded like "a cool teenager" and didn't mean crush in that way.

that shit it was just a mild hyperfixation over a character I found to have an attractive voice actor for a single night,

So this entire conversation I cannot tell what is the truth or not. Which is really fucking bad when you are getting accused of something this serious. In this entire 3 hour long conversation, you can check the time stamps. It started at 1:00 PM and went until just before 4:00 PM. She's just lying the whole time. Or well she's so inconsistent you do not feel you can discern what the truth in any of this even is. And then she resorts to guilt tripping me about her life. Reem, either intentionally or not, has developed this habit of emotional manipulation. She'll mention how much she suffers in her life. And use that for leverage when she's in the wrong about something. Because it's irrefutable. Yes, her life is so much worse than mine will ever be. And she guilts you about adding onto that pain by calling her out. Reem can never be in the wrong because to be wrong makes her suffer more. And you doing that when you know how hard her life is, just makes her automatically a victim. Because how "dare" inflict more pain on her? Wouldn't it just be easier if you just let this go and not hold her accountable? This happened a number of times throughout our friendship. You'll have to mostly take me at my word for that but this will come up again when I discuss her own docs. So, she then turns this conversation around on me to make me out to be the one in the wrong here. Or at least that we both did bad things now so it makes what she did somehow "not as bad". And now the accountability is shared.

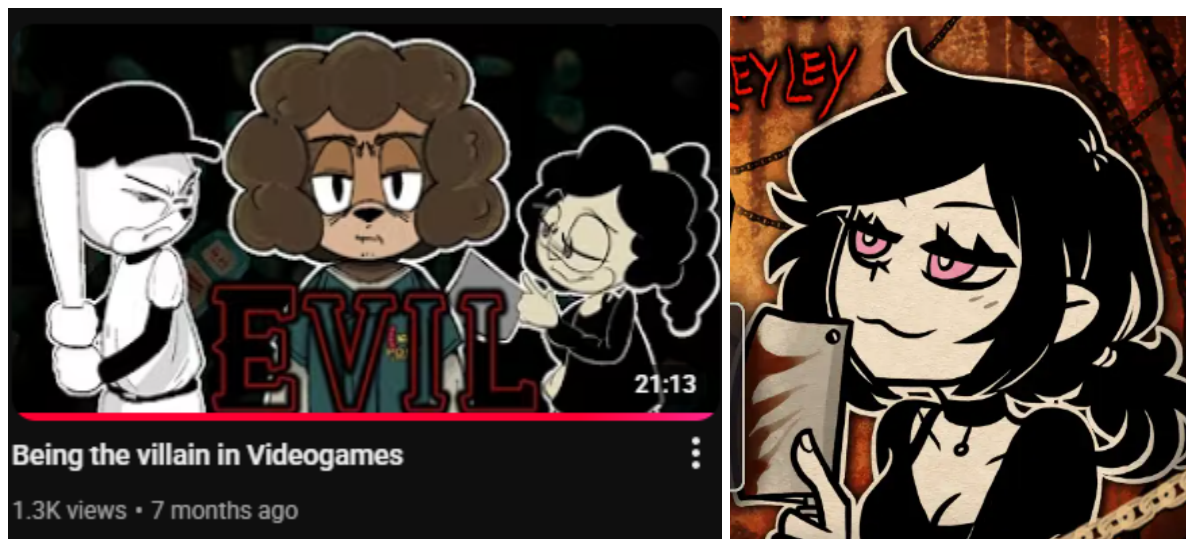

Everything Reem did here is like the worst way you could have possibly responded to this situation .

What I think is most likely here, is that Reem knew she was attracted to Eduardo and knew that she had been caught. So she had to come up with some way to make this seem morally justifiable. Until she couldn't, and she just played dumb and hoped she could get away with her inconsistent narrative through that.

But also I have the other more “benefit of the doubt” interpretation that I alluded to. Reem maybe just is so averse to ever admitting that she's done something wrong. She knew that what she did was wrong. But just HAD to act like she somehow didn't. Which she then accidentally dug herself into a way bigger hole by doing. Making her seem infinitely more like a pedophile than if she just said “Whoops my bad, didn't know”. Because she just cannot take the mental toll of ever doing something bad.

I'd really like it to be option 2, but to believe that's what actually happened you kind of need to think she's the stupidest person on the planet. To accidentally make herself look infinitely more like a pedophile.

At the time though I deluded myself that she somehow just responded to this insanely stupidly. There was just no way she was actually a pedophile. I stayed friends with her for 3 months after this incident until one day Reem got into the game “The Coffin Of Andy and Leyley”.

Evidence here is this video that she made where she talked about the game. The character on the right is a “hedgehogified version of Leyley” from the game.

For those not in the know this game is widely regarded as “The Incest Game”. The game’s creator made this art in regards to people not liking the incest in the game. It’s very fetishized in the game. The incest is included for sexual reasons there’s no grander artistic reasoning for it. I won’t get into it more than that; this doc is not about this game. Just either do research on the game yourself or just trust me it’s very bad to be into this.

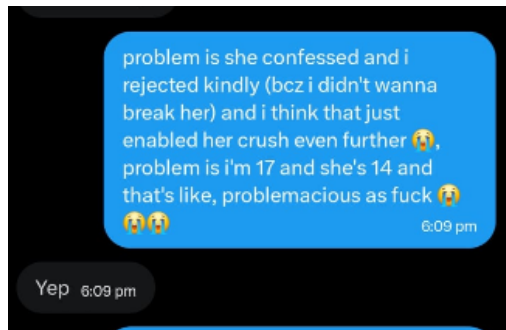

I basically immediately DMed her about how weird this was at the time but I don’t have any of our exchanges saved and they honestly really don’t matter much. Because as I will get into, in June of this year she self admitted to engaging with shipping the two main characters who are brother and sister since then. This was my final straw with her. Both this and the Eduardo stuff combined was too much for me to just ignore. I was no longer comfortable being friends with her and cut her off.

Reem’s Other Actions:

This section, as I have stated before, is about docs Reem has written about herself. I will do my best to explain what’s going on here, but it is probably best to just read these to get a fuller picture here. I’m going to be focused on drawing comparisons and showing inaccuracies in what Reem has said. I will not be fully representing her side, so if you wish to give her more grace. I recommend just reading these by themselves either before or after reading this section. I will link both of the sources I’m drawing upon from here in the replies to the tweet this doc is linked to on.

Reem self admits in her doc “Acknowledging my biggest regret”. With a 14 year old, when she was 17, She sent nudes, had sexual rps, casual sex talks, requested nsfw art from, shared nsfw art with, and flirted, with a 14 year old. Reem claims that the situation was more complicated and “codependent” and that she isn’t a groomer. This is very untrue and I will be explaining why.

She acknowledges the fact this age gap was wrong in a message she included from herself in the doc.

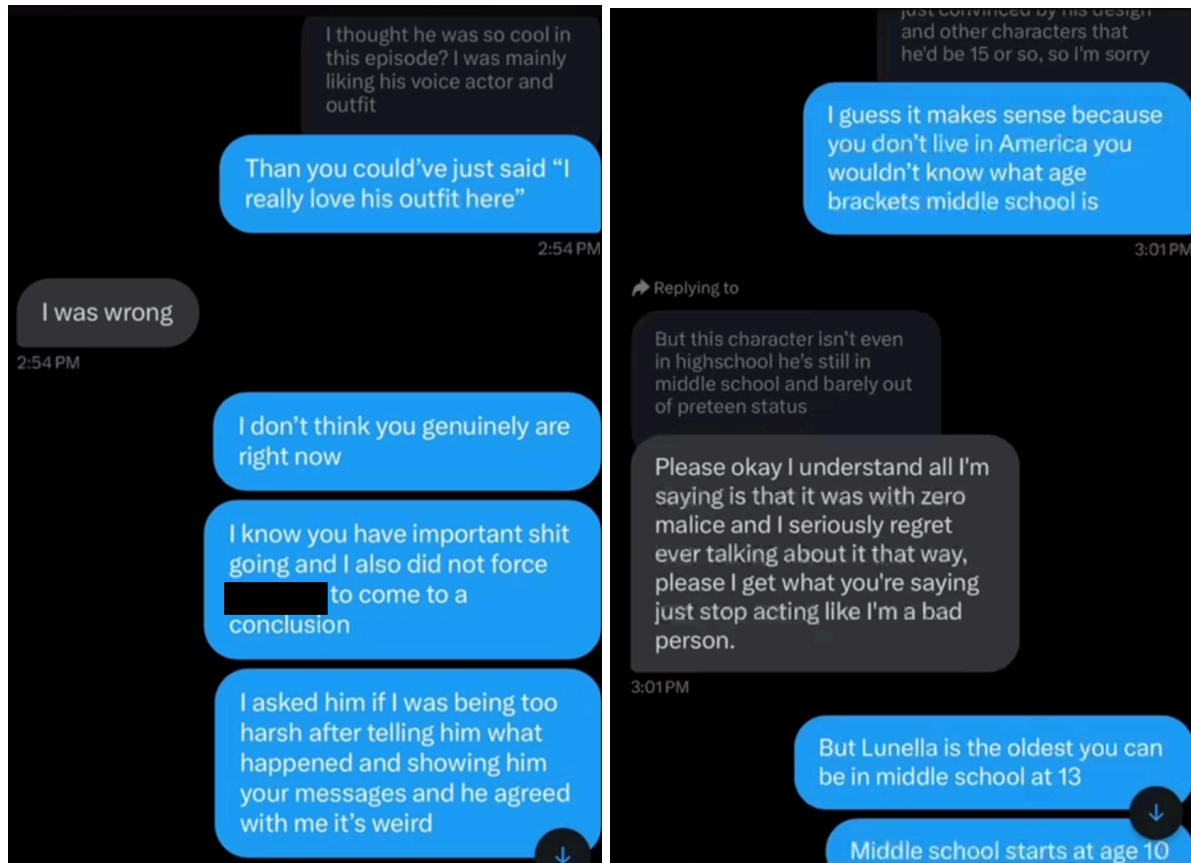

But at the start of the doc, Reem phrases it like she had no idea that this age gap was wrong. Despite the fact that this DM was sent to the victim’s friend at the time before they even were together. And I also very clearly should’ve drilled it into her at this point that this age gap is wrong. (Image below is the start of the doc) upfront with nsfw topics, i was always unsure how to respond to these. I knew that we’re both minors. So it can’t be that bad, i didn’t initiate anything, but i didn’t have the capacity to put a stop to it either. Cuz whenever it is said, all i think about is how sad they will get and that “this will convinced me to exchange nudes with the fact we’re both minors, something i couldn’t argue against. Which was the worst thing i’ve done in this whole situation. Enabling and opening the door to everything that happened after.

She continues to emphasize the idea throughout this doc that “she just had no way to refute what was wrong about this”.

This is so fucking absurd when I had a 3 HOUR LONG CONVERSATION with her where she “supposedly” understood that almost this EXACT age gap was wrong.

If a 3 hour conversation on this isn't enough.... What is??? It's hard to see how Reem just.... Would forget this....

In fact, I have proof she didn't. She sent this to a mutual friend right before they stopped being friends with her for the Eduardo incident. Where she mentions me (tav) despite this friend not mentioning me at all beforehand while trying to end their friendship. Reem just knows I know this about her and is scared of this coming out. And assumed this person would pass the message along.

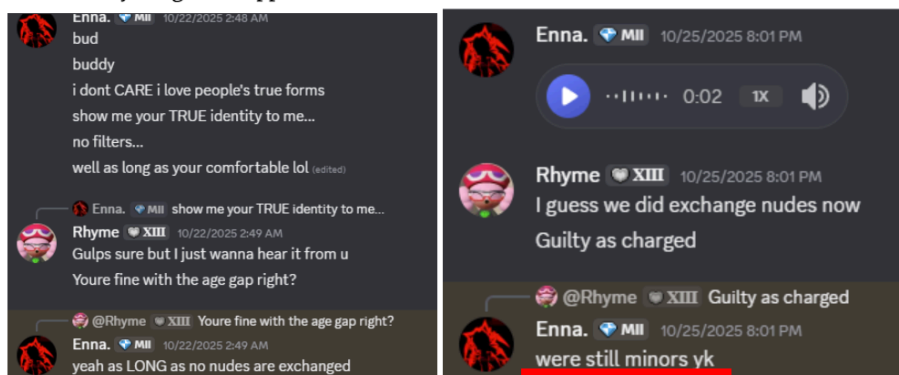

This is a whole year after the initial Eduardo situation. This is a month after the doc I'm talking about here came out. Maybe she somehow wasn't thinking about it in October. But it feels very unlikely she'd not remember it then but suddenly now. Me and Reem were pretty close. She called me her "bestie" in one of those initial Twitter replies. Me stopping being friends with her was a big deal to us both. It's just not realistic to think that Reem just somehow forgot this Eduardo incident.

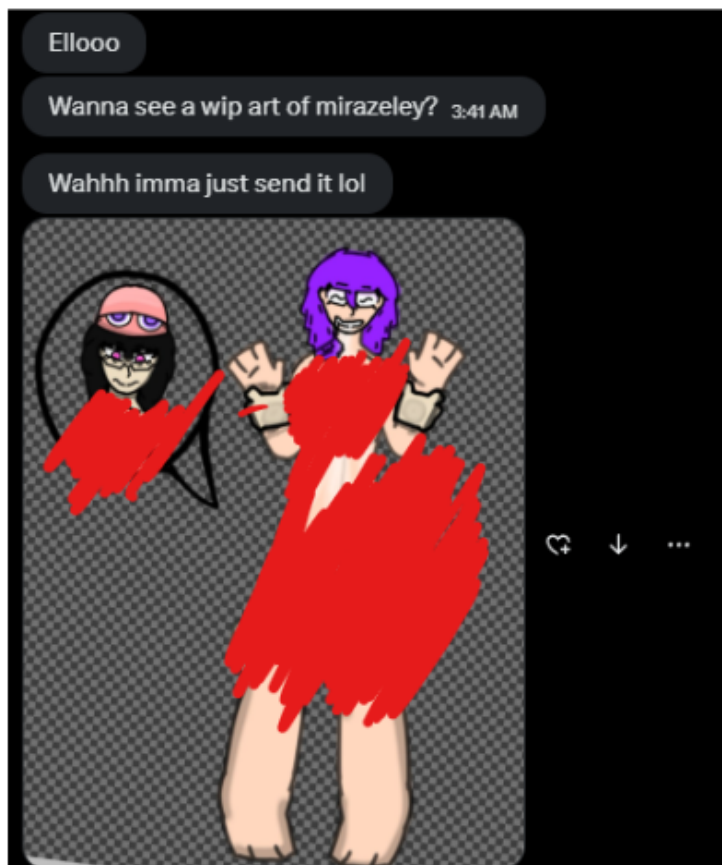

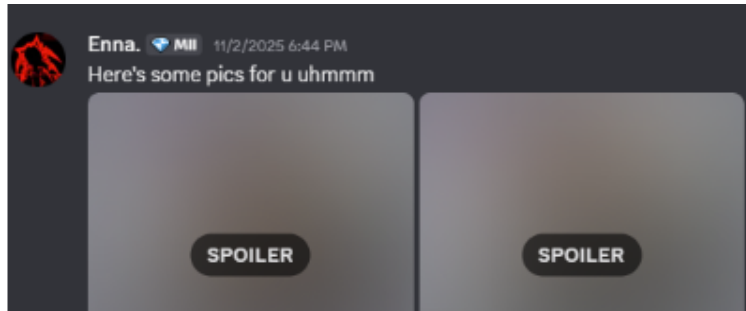

Going back to her sending these nudes to this 14 year old, Reem acknowledges that she is aware of the age gap and asks in a message "You're fine with the age gap right" like asking the 14 year old for consent here somehow makes it ok. You have more power in this relationship than the 14 year old..... That's not even the worst thing in this section of the doc. She says that Enna (the victim) "convinced" Reem to send them nudes. But shows ZERO proof of this in the messages she shows. She in fact, shows Enna asking the opposite. Stating "yeah as LONG as no nudes are exchanged". Reem then just shows the aftermath of sending those nudes and then the 14 year old justifying this as them both "being minors".

They eventually broke up with their old partner which was extremely worrying to me. They started constantly doing more sexual remarks and sending "hot pictures (not nudes)", she also expressed not wanting nudes exchanged which was a relief. but soon after during another convo convinced me to exchange nudes with the fact we're both minors, something i couldn't argue against. Which was the worst thing i've done in this whole situation. Enabling and opening the door to everything that happened after.

You could argue this was an accident or maybe there was NSFW in those messages she didn't want to show. But if she was really being open and honest here she could've censored that NSFW. She did that for art they exchanged and showed that the spoiler warning was on some of Enna's nudes. She could have completely blocked out the nudity and still shown the messages of Enna reportedly 'initiating' this.

There's no rational explanation for so many of the things omitted and contradicted in this document. To rationalize Reem's actions here. You again, have to think she's just the biggest idiot at every turn. I think it's safe to say she's likely projecting this image to manipulate and get away with these things. It's her tactic. She makes herself seem incompetent and incapable. And if you dare to question her on this, she guilt trips you with how much she suffers in her life. And makes you want to back off, because you don't want to cause this person you love and trust more pain. Reem does suffer very greatly. But she's used it as the perfect excuse to get away with these things. Her situation is her excuse for everything. It's true to an extent, and lies formed in some bit of truth are usually the most effective. She can say she just doesn't know about morality, despite having it drilled into her skull by me in this situation months before this started in October of last year. She still doesn't know. She makes you feel so bad for her you overlook reason in situations like this and try so hard to see the best in her. See how this could somehow make sense where she's still a good person.

My only favorable perspective I can give to Reem at this point is maybe she's doing all of these manipulative tactics still mostly unintentionally. Again, going back to what I said where she can never feel she's in the wrong on these things. She says that she felt she had "no power to say no" in this situation.

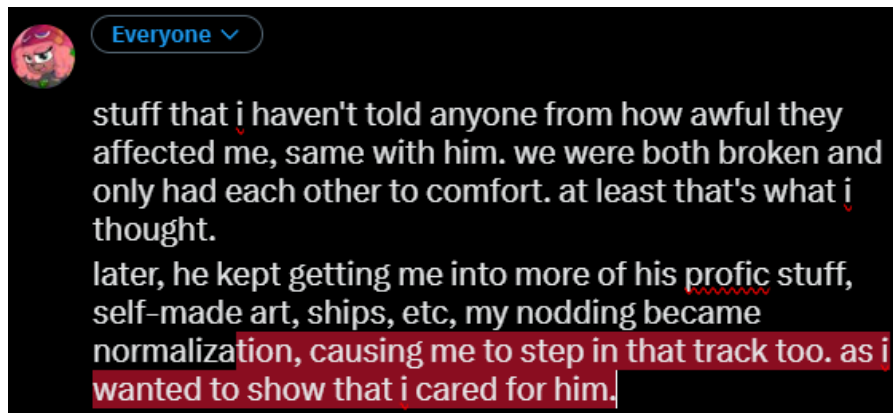

But as shown that obviously never happened for a while, Enna continuously initiated sexual dms, and by that time, i had no power to say no, and what was worrying before to me became normal because of the constant enabling, and my attachment to them was at its peak, so i also dipped.

Rhyme just keeps making excuses for herself in these situations. She claims at the end of this doc that this relationship was horribly unhealthy for both of them. But she had no reason to go along with this. What was stopping her from saying no. It's pretty clear she knew this was wrong at this point. The only thing that was stopping her from saying it was likely genuine desire. I said I can see this being mostly unintentional. I meant that just in her having these manipulation tactics. I don't know if she's aware she's doing these. It might just be her personality. But I see no conceivable way that isn't just extreme mental gymnastics to how she isn't intentionally choosing to prey on the victim here. She may hate herself for doing it on some level. But she still wants to. She is the older one here. She has the power. She should have known to cut contact with Enna. But she did not. She said yes to the nudes. She sent nudes of herself. It was intentional. This is grooming. But she's still claiming this wasn't her fault... Well she does say that she is taking "full accountability", after just filling up that very paragraph with excuses for why Enna had a stake in this too. Also just the whole doc, she's just pushing blame onto her victim.

This was horribly unhealthy for both of us,

There is no doubt that Enna was the most affected from this situation. Our relationship was so complicated and unhealthy, if given other circumstances, no one would have wanted this to ever happen. If i wasn't so vulnerable, or at least had any mentoring. I would have managed to stop it then. Same with Enna. we fucked up massively. they may have initiated it. But they are 15. I was 17. I should, by all technicalities, take full accountability here, as the person who should have known better not to indulge in such things. I regret every single second, every single dm i sent that could Reem can just never take full accountability for her actions. Despite what she claims. In the other recent callout she made on herself (I've been calling it a doc for simplicity's sake but it is a twitter thread). She details how she made a friend that confessed to her that he was a proshipper. And that's what got her into The Coffin Of Andy and Leyley. She should have known that proshipping was bad. I'm almost confident she did know. I technically have no evidence this friend is even real since she shows none in the thread. But either way, if he's real or not she's used him as an excuse. Either as a fabrication to shift blame or just seeing the opportunity. She now has someone to blame for manipulating her. I keep reiterating this, but it really is her mindset that if she is not the sole guilty party, that makes her look much better, because it now seems she's been manipulated or is only partially at fault.

When is it ever gonna just be Reem's fault.... How many times can you slip up like this before the facade falls and it's obvious you aren't as oblivious and unaware as you claim...

REEM IS STILL "FRIENDS" WITH THE PERSON SHE GROOMED. SHE CLAIMS TO BE GROWING BUT SOMEHOW CAN'T SEE THAT SHE CAN'T HAVE A HEALTHY

RELATIONSHIP WITH THE PERSON SHE SENT NUDES TO WHEN THEY WERE 14.

Final Apology to Enna

To Enna, I still and forever will value you as my friend despite the hardships we went through, and immature, unhealthy, but none of us wanted any true harm to be caused. I'm apologizing to you publicly after i apologized multiple times privately because you deserve closure. This situation, this hurt has to end. And i promised you that i will walk by your side until both of us manage to heal. I'm afraid of not improving more than i'm afraid for my online reputation/image. I'm proving that by doing this. I'm taking full accountability for what i've done. Whether i wanted it to happen or not.

If there's anything i could do to help. I would do in an instant. I am sorry.

She claims to be growing. But she basically just admits here. She made this document to gain Enna's trust. Reem just wants the appearance that she is a moral person. It's all just excuses.

I just can't buy that Reem is a good person anymore. I hope I've been able to convince you why this was necessary to share. I may not have the hardest evidence possible. I think through connecting the lines here though, I've made a case that there's beyond a reasonable level of doubt that Reem is a danger to others and this needs to be known about her. I sincerely hope that she doesn't have any other victims and that this is somehow actually all wrong. This needed to be out there.
