I wake up, after short nap, and cannot find my favorite dancing figurine, which I brought from Mexico. Do not think me mad. This is the prank of some geist! It wants to ruin my progress on report! How unscientific! What will I do now? Im in despair! Bitte, please, help me! My report is under serious threat!

CABARET QUEEN

Hey, I want to tell you everything. I was in SoHo today. They are planning some sort of race. So I headed over to see what was going on. And a caterpillar, a blue caterpillar merchant, was trying to sell some half-blind old man some red tchotchke. Well, I interrupted the fascinating negotiations. But that blue creature got away from me! The old man said he almost bought a French dancer figurine from the caterpillar. I don't know where the caterpillar has taken it, of course, but we need to figure out what we can trade with it to get the figurine back and return it to its rightful owner!

KINGS OF THE DANCE FLOOR

I write an important science report: 'Dance therapy as a tool for treating diseases of the feet, ears, and eyes.' All of my life, I collect figurines of dancers, as a visual aid for my report. But they are lost! Panic! If I do not find the whole figurine, then I will be in trouble! Total failure! I beg you, please, find the figurines, turn them in, and you will find my main dancing figurine! Great therapy for my client! Only then will I be able to count my report completed. Then we shall talk about your problem! But only then. I speak clearly?

To correctly interpret this picture, painted by Fraulein Flemming, I need special tools. (knits his brow): But of course! Without a rubber mallet, I cannot carry out an initial survey or test the reaction. Reaction, reaction, and another reaction! Let us get started! I take hammer and... Wait, where is mein hammer? Ah, yes! Last year, I receive a package with the hammer I ordered. But I was not home! The postmaster sent it to warehouse.

Listen: put a rubber ducky in front of you and ask it any question. And the answer will come to you! No miracles. Just wonders of science! Now we will test the theory. But I will not use duck, but instead dolls. And two dolls at once, for reliable results. After all, maybe I will have two questions, at once... But I do not understand, where could they be? Did I lose them under the bridge? And my mother teach me well, to stay away from dark places!

Theyre a gift? Hmm. Well, ill need to think about that. Where can we get strawberries? Maybe at the market on Petticoat Lane? No, my friends tell me the prices there are ridiculous, and these are tough times... Oh, how could I forget about Miss Bellinis boudoir? I often stop by to water the flowers and sweep up the place. There werent many strawberries there last I visited, but there should be enough for you. Id bring you the berries myself, but I have a lot to do. GOOD TIMELY ADVICE

(thoughtfully): Well, what else can I say? Of course, one picture not enough for a good full analysis of Fraulein Alices character. We need something else! But what? Give me time to think, bitte... Naturlich! Why did I not think of that right away? To see her handwriting would be good. Or better, some note she writes. It would be good if text were written not long ago. Ah, ja! It must say something very important about Fraulein Fleming. Can you find one? We have to try. I very much want to get to the truth! But who to consult about these notes? Maybe with one of your friends?

PSYCHOWATCH

(sighs): Naturlich, I see that you can be trusted with secrets of other people. I tell you, how I lost the watch. Just do not tell anyone? (whispers): The whole city thinks I do not leave my house. But I have all of them tricked! Haha! Shhhh... In fact, sometimes I go out walking at night or at dusk, when no one will see me. And on one walk, I go into the confectioners, order a cup of Turkish coffee with pepper, and lose my watch. I could not return when I realize, for dawn had come. Bitte, help me find my watch, it is such a valuable gift!

HELPING THE INVENTORS

Time for me to see the light. Enough hiding in my office! So much to do, you cannot even imagine! I suggest we meet at noon today in the confectioners and from there go visit Tweedledee and Tweedledum. But I very much doubt that they will find time to talk. But... if you take my foundational work on problems of artificial intelligence, I am sure they will want to talk with you then. After all, they were the ones who requested that research... So, see you in the confectioners!
