

Subject line: My turn!

Bonjuar (name),

I was searching online for a resistance band for my girlfriend, and while I was searching, Something caught my eye. I found one of your products called "black glutes band".

I then looked into your website to see if you had any other stuff that's similar to the band. I found the <product>

I liked how you added an exercise program on your website, this will increase your sales a little more and it will show the audience you care about them and their health, very clever that you did that.

But I feel like something missing on your website...

I once knew this person who didn't have anything on his website, just products.

His website reminds me of your website, but when he got some advice on improving his website...

His life changed.

I got an idea.

And it's my turn.

I can see you're missing some marketing funnels on your website and I can more up your traffic!

I call it "proof marketing", sounds corny but i got the idea from a article.

I remade some little adjustments to your website.

Would you like me to send it? Reply with "no" if you don't want to so I can remove you from my list.

Best
